EXTRACTS FROM THE CHARTER OF MASSACHUSETTS BAY, BY WILLIAM AND MARY OF ENGLAND.

OCTOBER 7/17, 1691.

Sources.

The revolution in New England in 1689, which deposed Sir Edmund Andros, established a provisional government of brief duration. October 7/17, 1691, William and Mary issued a new charter, which incorporated, under the "Province of Massachusetts Bay," Massachusetts, New Plymouth, Maine, Pemaquid, and Nova Scotia. The union of Maine with Massachusetts continued until the erection of the "District of Maine" into an independent state. With the consolidation of government the names of Cornwall and Devonshire disappeared, and Yorkshire shared equal privileges with Suffolk and Middlesex.

The "Province Charter" was brought over by Sir William Phips, who was by royal appointment the first governor under the new charter. The original document is in the State House under the custody of the secretary of state for Massachusetts. It is longer in point of text than any other charter issued by the British crown, and was so carefully drawn that it served, with certain modifications, as a model for the earlier state constitutions.

The charter of William and Mary was first printed by Daniel Neal, "History of New-England, containing an Impartial Account of the Civil and Ecclesiastical Affairs of the Country to the Year of our Lord 1700" (London, 1720), II., Appendix I., 617-642; also second edition of the same (London, 1747), II., Appendix II., 258-288. It was printed both in English and in French, from "Acts and Laws of Massachusetts Bay" (London, 1724), in "Mémoires des Commissaires du Roi et de ceux de sa Majesté Britannique, sur les possessions et les Droits respectifs des deux Couronnes en Amérique" (Paris, 1755), II., 593-641. It is in "The Charters of the British Colonies in America" (printed for J. Almar, London, 1775), 1-23; In "Masère Papers," or "Occasional Essays on Various Subjects, chiefly Political and Historical" (London, 1809), 93-124; also in Ben: Perley Poore, "The Federal and State Constitutions, Colonial Charters, and other Organic Laws of the United States" (Washington, 1877), 942-954; and, from "Masonian Papers," IV., 145, it is printed by Albert Stillman Batchellor, editor, "Provincial Papers of New Hampshire" (Manchester, 1891), XIX., 334-354. A transcript from a copy in the Chapel of the Rolls, London, was printed in a "Statement on the Part of the United States, of the case referred, under the Convention of 1827 . . ." (printed but not published, Washington, 1829), Appendix XIII., 109-122. A transcript from the charter was prefixed to "The Acts and Resolves, public and private, of the Province of the Massachusetts Bay," printed by Ellis Ames and Abner Cheney Goodell, compilers, Boston, 1869-92, 7 vols.

The text adopted is the printed form in "Acts and Resolves," I., 1-26.

COVENANT OF LANDS WITH SIR WILLIAM PHIPS, BY MADOKAWANDO, SAGAMORE OF PENOBSCOT.

MAY 9/19, 1694.

Sources.

By the covenant of lands with Sir William Phips, governor of the Province of Massachusetts, Madokawando, sagamore of Penobscot, released lands on both sides of the St. Georges River, which were finally incorporated with the Waldo patent under the "Ten Proprietors." The deed of conveyance was made at Pemaquid, May 9/19, 1694, and was recorded at York, January 17/28, 1721/2, with other papers relating to the original Muscongus grant.

Madokawando is an important character in the history of eastern Maine, both as father-in-law of Castine and because of his own position as sagamore of Penobscot. Of this conveyance to Governor Phips it is said that some of the Penobscots denied the authority of their chief to make such a transfer of lands; nevertheless the purchase of the title of Spencer Phips, heir of Governor Phips, by President Leverett of Harvard College, who was a proprietor of the Muscongus grant established the legality of the claim.

EXTRACTS FROM COMMISSION ESTABLISHING A BOARD OF TRADE, BY WILLIAM III. OF ENGLAND.

MAY 15/25, 1696.

Sources.

The commission of William III. for establishing a Board of Trade was given at Westminster, May 15/25, 1696. Although the new Board of Trade which took the place of the Plantation Committee of the Privy Council had the avowed object of promoting trade and improving the plantations, it was really created to subserve private interests; and it became a constant source of annoyance to the colonies, until its functions ceased with the Revolution. The continuance of Edward Randolph as surveyor-general of His Majesty's customs in America did not render its surveillance any more agreeable.

Because the Board of Trade separated Nova Scotia from Massachusetts Bay extracts are included in this compilation. The commission is in the records of the Privy Council, "Journal," IX., 1, from which source it is printed by Edmund Bailey O'Callaghan, editor, "Documents relative to the Colonial History of the State of New York" (Albany, 1854), IV., 145-148, which is the text adopted for these extracts.

REPORT IN FAVOR OF A CAPTAIN-GENERAL FOR THE COLONIES, BY THE BOARD OF TRADE.

FEBRUARY 25
MARCH 7, 1696/7.

Sources.

The request of the colony of Massachusetts Bay for a union of colonies in the prosecution of the French and Indian War led to an investigation by the Board of Trade.

The report is inserted in this compilation because it shows the intimate relation of the colonies at the time when Captain Chubb had surrendered Pemaquid to the French.

A valuable study on the Board of Trade and its influence on New England History is by John Andrew Doyle, "The English in America, Puritan Colonies," II., ch. vii. The original report is in "New England Entries, Board of Trade," A, 134, and is printed by Edmund Bailey O'Callaghan, editor, "Documents relative to the Colonial History of the State of New-York" (Albany, 1854), IV., 259-261, which is the source adopted for this compilation.

Text.

TO the KING'S MOST EXCELLENT MAJESTY

May it please your Majesty

In obedience to your Majesty's Order in Council dated the 10th of December last, we having taken into consideration the Representation of your Majesty's Lieutenant Governor, Council and Assembly of the Massachusetts Bay in New England thereunto annexed, humbly praying that your Majesty's severall governments within those territories may be jointly concerned in the prosecution of the war and supporting the charge thereof; and having at the same time received severall memorialls from the Agents of that Province here, and from other persons concerned both in that and the neighbouring colonies relating to an Union proposed to be made amongst them for common defence; we humbly beg leave to lay before Your Majesty the state of what has been offered to us upon that subject.

The importance and advantages of an Union for mutual defence and common security are by all sides agreed on; but the objections against the methods proposed for putting it in execution are various, according to the different interests of those by whom they are made.

The proposition chiefly insisted on in the forementioned Memorialls is that the person whom Your Majesty shall be pleased to send Governour of the Massachusetts Colony may also be the Civil Governour of New York and New Hampshire and Generall of all the Forces of the Massachusetts New York and New Hampshire Connecticut, Rhode Island and the Jerseys.

But to this the agent of Connecticut here (In the name of the Governour and Company of that Colony) has objected, that the imposing even a Military Governor over them, with power to demand men ammunition and provisions, and to lead and carry their men at the pleasure of the said General, out of the said Colony, without consent and advice of the said Governour and Company, will be hard on the inhabitants, and (as they conceive) contrary to their charter.

The proprietor of New Hampshire (who by your Majesties appointment is the present Governour thereof) has also objected to us his reasons against the subjecting of that Province to the Government of the Massachusetts; as tending to increase a charge upon the inhabitants there, without any addition to their security, and without any appearance (as he argues) of assurance to your Majesty that the government of the said Province will be better administered by strangers than by the said Proprietor and the inhabitants themselves.

The Agents of New York have more particularly than others opposed the Union of that Province and the Massachusetts under one Civill Governor by these following considerations:—The nearest limits of those Provinces (say they) are two hundred miles distant from one another, Connecticut and Rhode Island lye between them, New York being the less both in bounds and strength & being most exposed to the enemy, is incapable of giving any assistance to the Massachusetts in time of danger, the towns of New Yorke & Boston having been always rivalls in trade, this Union would (in that respect) be very prejudicial to the former. The residence of the Governour of New Yorke at Boston would oblige the inhabitants of New Yorke to repaire thither, upon many occasions relating to the Civill Administration, and be very grievous and burdensome to them. The Sallary of the Governour of New York being paid out of certain funds raised by the General Assembly of that Province for a limited time, and expended by him amongst them, it would seem a hardship to them if that money should be issued out of the Province for the support of the Governour residing at Boston.

To which the forementioned Agents of the Massachusetts have answered: — that the distance between the territories of New Yorke and the Massachusetts is much lesse than the Agents of New York have represented it, and that the inconveniencies by them said to be consequential of the residence of a Governour at Boston, may be avoided by his removall sometimes (as occasion shall require) to New Yorke, and at other times by having constantly a Deputy there. But what they finally pray is, that the advantage of a Military Head or Captain Generall being agreed to, Your Majesty would therefore be pleased to appoint one accordingly, and the support of such a Captain Generall requiring necessarily a much greater expence than any other particular Governour, they submitt their proposition of uniting the Governments of the Massachusetts, New York and New Hampshire (in order to the better defraying of that charge) unto Your Majesty's Royall pleasure.

This being the state of that matter as it hath been sett forth to us the forementioned memorials; and we having also humbly laid before their excellencies the late Lord Justices (by our Representation dated the 30th of September last) our opinion that it is hardly possible Your Majesty's Colonies on the Northerne Continent of America, can be preserved, unlesse Your Majesty shall be pleased to constitute during this war, some active vigilant and able man to be Captain Generall of all Your Majestys, forces and of all the Militias of those Colonies ; which opinion we then grounded upon a report of your Majesty's Attorney and Solicitor Generall dated the 2^d of April 1694 declaring it Your Majesty's right to constitute a Chief Commander with such authority, especially during the war ; and further also we having more particularly proposed to Your Majesty (by our Representation dated the 25th November last) that the Governour whom your Majesty shall please to constitute over the Province of the Massachusetts Bay may likewise have the superior command throughout all New England for the security and defence thereof during the war : We now humbly crave leave to add that the distinct Proprieties, Charters, and different forms of Government in severall of those neighbouring Colonies, make all other Union, except under such a Military Head (in our opinion) at present impracticable, and that what hath yet been done towards such a Military Union for Common defence (by the appointment of a Quota in the year 1694) hath been so little complied with, that it requires the exertion of a more vigorous power than hath hitherto been practised, to make it produce the desired effect.

But upon the whole, it being evident that notwithstanding the different constitutions of the Governments of the Massachusetts, New Hampshire and New York, yet Your Majesty hath the right of appointing Governours in all those places, and also (according to the forementioned opinion of Your Majesty's Attorney and Sollicitor Generall) the right of constituting a Military Head both over them and all other Your Majesty's Provinces, Colonies and Plantations in America during the time of war : We are humbly of opinion that Your Majesty be graciously pleased to constitute a fit person to be Governor over the Provinces of New York, Massachusetts Bay and New Hampshire, and that the same person be also Captaine Generall of all Your Majesty's forces both there and in Connecticut, Rhode Island and the Jerseys, and that the chief residence of such Governor or Captaine Generall during the war be appointed to be at New York, that the Province being most in danger to be attacked by the enemy, and the inhabitants not one fourth part of the number that are in Massachusetts, and also, because the Sallary of £600 now paid to that Governor arises (or has been alledged) out of subsidies granted by the Assembly there. But neverthelesse that the said Governor or Captaine Generall may have liberty to remove from thence to Boston and back againe from time to time, leaving Lieutenants in either place respectively as occasion shall require.

And in the last place we are also humbly of opinion that the Generall Assemblies of all those neighbouring Colonies by the prudent conduct of such a Captaine Generall may be made to understand their own true interest and thereby induced to enact such laws in their respective governments as shall be necessary to enable the said Captaine Generall to execute Your Majesty's Commissions, so as shall be most for your Majesty's service, their own defence and generall advantage.

All which neverthelesse is most humbly submitted

JUNE 18/28, 1697.

Sources.

The commission from William III. to the Earl of Bellomont as captain-general and governor-in-chief of the "province of New York and the territories depending thereon in America" was issued June 18/28, 1697. In "New-England Entries," Board of Trade, A, 143, there is a communication in behalf of his majesty from the Duke of Shrewsbury to the Lords of Trade, March 16/26, 1696/7, in which he signifies to their lordships the appointment of Governor Bellomont, in order that they may prepare his several commissions and instructions. According to the report of the Lords of Trade, ^{February 25,} ^{March 7,} 1696/7, Massachusetts Bay and New Hampshire were the dependencies of New York. During the war the Earl of Bellomont would also be the captain-general of all his majesty's forces in Connecticut, Rhode Island, and the Jerseys. Instructions drawn up by the Lords Justices were issued ^{August 31,} ^{September 10,} 1697.

The commission was printed from "New-York Entries," A, 190, now in the Public Record office, London, by Edmund Bailey O'Callaghan, editor, "Documents Relative to the Colonial History of the State of New York" (Albany, 1854), IV., 266-273; instructions, ibid., 284-292.

The text adopted is O'Callaghan's, which is the only printed source noted.

EXTRACTS FROM THE PEACE OF RYSWICK, BETWEEN WILLIAM III. OF ENGLAND AND LOUIS XIV. OF FRANCE.

SEPTEMBER 10/20, 1697.

Sources.

The peace concluded at Ryswick, September 10/20, 1697, by William III. of England and Louis XIV. of France was in reality but little more than a truce between the two powers. Nevertheless it rendered null the conquests made in Acadia during the conflict known as King William's War. Not only was Acadia relinquished to the French but the Sagadahoc territory was again disputed ground. While the French claimed that it had been restored to them by the treaties of St. Germain and Breda, the Lords of Trade on the other hand urged the province to rebuild the fort at Pemaquid.

It is of interest to note in the concluding articles of the treaty of Ryswick efforts toward arbitration as well as friendly mediation.

The best Latin text of the terms of peace is that of Jean Dumont, "Corps Universel Diplomatique du Droit des Gens" (Amsterdam, 1731), VII. part ii., 399-402; from that source it is reprinted in both Latin and French in "Mémoires des Commissaires du Roi et de ceux de sa Majesté Britannique, sur les Possessions et les Droits respectifs des deux Couronnes en Amérique" (Paris, 1755), II., 92-108. In French it is also in "Collection de Manuscrits contenant Lettres, Mémoires, et Autres Documents Historiques relatifs à la Nouvelle-France" (Quebec, 1883), II., 227-236. The earliest English text is in "A General Collection of Treatys, Declarations of War, Manifestos, and Other Public Papers, relating to Peace and War" (London, 1710), I., 302-308; and in another nearly contemporaneous edition, "A Collection of Treaties of Peace and Commerce, containing all those that have been concluded from the Peace of Munster, inclusive to this Time" (London, 1714), 180-182. More reliable texts are those of Charles Jenkinson, "A Collection of all the Treaties of Peace, Alliance, and Commerce, between Great Britain and Other Powers, from . . . 1648, to . . . 1783" (London, 1785), I., 299-305; and George Chalmers, "A Collection of Treaties between Great Britain and Other Powers" (London, 1790), I., 332-340.

The text adopted for these extracts from the peace of Ryswick is that of Chalmers, from the copy "published by authority in 1697."

Text.

I. THAT there be an universal perpetual peace, and a true and sincere friendship, between the most Serene and Mighty Prince William the Third, King of Great Britain, and the most Serene and Mighty Prince Lewis the Fourteenth, the most Christian King, their heirs and successors, and between the kingdoms, states and subjects of both; and that the same be so sincerely and inviolably observed and kept, that the one shall promote the interest, honour, and advantage of the other, and that on both sides a faithful neighbourhood, and true observation of peace and friendship, may daily flourish and increase.

II. That all enmities, discords, and wars, between the said King of Great Britain and the most Christian King, and their subjects, cease and be abolished, so that on both sides they forbear and abstain hereafter from all plundering, depredation, harm-doing, injuries, and infestation whatsoever, as well by land as by sea, and on fresh waters, every where; and especially throughout all the kingdoms, territories, dominions, and places, belonging to each other, of what condition soever they be.

III. That all offences, injuries, damages, which the said King of Great Britain and his subjects, or the said most Christian King and his subjects, have suffered from each other during this war, shall be forgotten, so that neither on account of them, or for any other cause or pretence, neither party, or the subjects of either, shall hereafter do, cause, or suffer to be done, any hostility, enmity, molestation, or hinderance to the other, by himself or others, secretly or openly, directly or indirectly, by colour of right or way of fact. . . .

VII. The most Christian King shall restore to the said King of Great Britain, all countries, islands, forts, and colonies, wheresoever situated, which the English did possess before the declaration of this present war. And in like manner the King of Great Britain shall restore to the most Christian King all countries, islands, forts, and colonies, wheresoever situated, which the French did possess before the said declaration of war; and this restitution shall be made, on both sides, within the space of six months, or sooner if it can be done. And to that end, immediately after the ratification of this treaty, each of the said Kings shall deliver, or cause to be delivered, to the other, or to commissioners authorized in his name for that purpose, all acts of concession, instruments, and necessary orders, duly made and in proper form, so that they may have their effect.

VIII. Commissioners shall be appointed on both sides, to examine and determine the rights and pretensions which either of the said Kings hath to the places situated in Hudson's Bay; but the possession of those places which were taken by the French, during the peace that preceded this present war, and were retaken by the English during this war, shall be left to the French, by virtue of the foregoing article. The capitulation made by the English on the fifth of September, 1696, shall be observed, according to its form and tenor; that the merchandizes therein mentioned shall be restored; the governor of the fort taken there shall be set at liberty, if it be not already done; the differences arisen concerning the execution of the said capitulation, and the value of the goods there lost, shall be adjudged and determined by the said commissioners; who, immediately after the ratification of the present treaty, shall be invested with sufficient authority for settling the limits and confines of the lands to be restored on either side, by virtue of the foregoing article, and likewise for exchanging of lands, as may conduce to the mutual interest and advantage of both Kings.

And to this end the commissioners so appointed shall, within the space of three months from the time of the ratification of the present treaty, meet in the city of London, and within six months, to be reckoned from their first meeting, shall determine all differences and disputes which may arise concerning this matter; after which, the articles the said commissioners shall agree to, shall be ratified by both Kings, and shall have the same force and vigour as if they were inserted word for word in the present treaty . . .

XVI. Under this present treaty of peace shall be comprehended those who shall be named by either party, with common consent, before the exchange of ratifications, or within six months after. But in the mean time, the most Serene and Mighty Prince William, King of Great Britain, and the most Serene and Mighty Prince Lewis, the most Christian King, gratefully acknowledging the sincere offices and indefatigable endeavours, which have been employed by the most Serene and Mighty Prince Charles King of Sweden, by the interposition of his mediation, in bringing this happy work of the peace, with the Divine assistance, to the desired conclusion; and to shew the like affection to him, it is by consent of all parties stipulated and agreed, that his said Sacred Royal Majesty of Sweden shall, with all his kingdoms, countries, provinces, and rights, be included in this treaty, and comprehended, in the best manner, in the present pacification.

XVII. Lastly, the solemn ratifications of this present agreement and alliance, made in due form, shall be delivered on both sides, and mutually and duly exchanged at the royal palace of Ryswick, in the Province of Holland, within the space of three weeks, to be reckoned from the day of the subscription, or sooner if it may be.

In testimony of all and every the things before mentioned, and for their greater force, and to give them all the vigour and full authority they ought to have, the underwritten Ambassadors Extraordinary and Plenipotentiaries, together with the Illustrious and most Excellent the Extraordinary Ambassador Mediator, have signed and sealed the present instrument of peace.

Done, &c.

Signed by the English and French Ambassadors, and by the Mediator.

EXTRACTS FROM THE PEACE OF UTRECHT, BETWEEN QUEEN ANNE OF ENGLAND AND LOUIS XIV. OF FRANCE.

MARCH 31
APRIL 11, 1713.

Sources.

The treaty of peace and friendship, concluded ^{March 31,} _{April 11,} 1713, between Queen Anne of England and Louis XIV. of France, was but one of many negotiations made at the congress of Utrecht. By this treaty Nova Scotia, or Acadia, "with its ancient boundaries" was ceded to England. Although Nova Scotia has ever since remained a British province, a long controversy, which gave rise to voluminous publications, resulted from indefinite terms of the boundaries.

The text of the treaty has been printed many times. In French it is found entire in Jean Dumont "Corps Universel Diplomatique du Droit des Gens" (Amsterdam, 1731), VIII., part I, 339-342; it is reprinted from that source in "Mémoires des Commissaires du Roi et de ceux de sa Majesté Britannique, sur les Possessions et les Droits respectifs des deux Couronnes en Amérique" (Paris, 1755), II., 113-136; in both Latin and French in Casimir Freschot, "Actes, Mémoires, & autres Pièces Authentiques concernant la Paix d'Utrecht" (Utrecht, 1714), II., 457-509. The entire text in English is in "A General Collection of Treatys, Declarations of War, Manifestos, and Other Public Papers, relating to Peace and War" (London, 1710), III., 378-422; Charles Jenkinson, "A Collection of all the Treaties of Peace, Alliance, and Commerce, between Great Britam and Other Powers from . . . 1648 to . . . 1783" (London, 1785), II., 5-40; and George Chalmers, "A Collection of Treaties between Great Britain and Other Powers" (London, 1790), I., 340-390; in both English and French it is in "A Collection of the Acts passed in the Parliament of Great Britain, and of Other Public Acts Relative to Canada" (printed by P. E. Desbarats, Quebec, 1800), 34-41. Extracts are cited by William Bollan, "The Importance and Advantage of Cape Breton" (London, 1746), 29-36; "Statement on the Part of the United States, of the Case referred, in pursuance of the Convention of 1827 . . ." (printed, but not published, Washington, 1829), Appendix VII., 63; and William Houston, "Documents Illustrative of the Canadian Constitution" (Toronto, 1891), 3-5.

The text adopted is that of Chalmers whose reprint was made from a copy "published by authority in 1713."

Text.

XII. The most Christian King shall take care to have delivered to the Queen of Great Britain, on the same day that the ratifications of this treaty shall be exchanged, solemn and authentic letters, or instruments, by virtue whereof it shall appear, that the island of St. Christopher's to be possessed alone hereafter by British subjects, likewise all Nova Scotia or Acadie, with its ancient boundaries, as also the city of Port Royal, now called Annapolis Royal, and all other things in those parts, which depend on the said lands and islands, together with the dominion, propriety, and possession of the said islands, lands, and places, and all right whatsoever, by treaties, or by any other way obtained, which the most Christian King, the Crown of France, or any the subjects thereof, have hitherto had to the said islands, lands, and places, and the inhabitants of the same, are yielded and made over to the Queen of Great Britain, and to her crown, for ever, as the most Christian King doth at present yield and make over all the particulars abovesaid; and that in such ample manner and form, that the subjects of the most Christian King shall hereafter be excluded from all kind of fishing in the said seas, bays, and other places, on the coasts of Nova Scotia, that is to say, on those which lie towards the east, within 30 leagues, beginning from the island commonly called Sable, inclusively, and thence stretching along towards the south-west.

XIII. The island called Newfoundland, with the adjacent islands, shall from this time forward belong of right wholly to Britain; and to that end the town and fortress of Placentia, and whatever other places in the said island are in the possession of the French, shall be yielded and given up, within seven months from the exchange of the ratifications of this treaty, or sooner, if possible, by the most Christian King, to those who have a commission from the Queen of Great Britain for that purpose. Nor shall the most Christian King, his heirs and successors, or any of their subjects, at any time hereafter, lay claim to any right to the said island and islands or to any part of it, or them. Moreover it shall not be lawful for the subjects of France to fortify any place in the said island of Newfoundland, or to erect any buildings there, besides stages made of boards, and huts necessary and usual for drying of fish; or to resort to the said island, beyond the time necessary for fishing, and drying of fish. But it shall be allowed to the subjects of France to catch fish, and to dry them on land, in that part only, and in no other besides that, of the said island of Newfoundland, which stretches from the place called Cape Bonavista to the northern point of the said island, and from thence running down by the western side, reaches as far as the place called Point Riche. But the island called Cape Breton as also all others, both in the mouth of the river of St. Lawrence, and in the gulph of the same name, shall hereafter belong of right to the French, and the most Christian King shall have all manner of liberty to fortify any place or places there.

XIV. It is expressly provided, that in all the said places and colonies to be yielded and restored by the most Christian King, in pursuance of this treaty, the subjects of the said King may have liberty to remove themselves, within a year, to any other place, as they shall think fit, together with all their moveable effects. But those who are willing to remain there, and to be subject to the kingdom of Great Britain, are to enjoy the free exercise of their religion, according to the usage of the church of Rome, as far as the laws of Great Britain do allow the same.

XV. The subjects of France inhabiting Canada, and others, shall hereafter give no hinderance or molestation to the five nations or cantons of Indians, subject to the dominion of Great Britain, nor to the other natives of America, who are friends to the same. In like manner, the subjects of Great Britain shall behave themselves peaceably towards the Americans who are subjects or friends to France; and on both sides they shall enjoy full liberty of going and coming on account of trade. As also the natives of those countries shall, with the same liberty, resort, as they please, to the British and French colonies, for promoting trade on one side and the other, without any molestation or hinderance, either on the part of the British subjects or of the French. But it is to be exactly and distinctly settled by commissaries, who are, and who ought to be accounted the subjects and friends of Britain or of France.

EXPLANATORY CHARTER OF MASSACHUSETTS BAY,
BY GEORGE I. OF ENGLAND.

AUGUST 26
SEPTEMBER 6, 1725.

Sources.

The "Explanatory Charter" of August 26, 1725, with the box in which it was sent from England, is in the custody of the secretary of state for Massachusetts. Because it was designed to regulate omissions in the "Province Charter" in regard to the organization of the legislative assembly, the document is sometimes called the "Supplementary" Charter. It was accepted by the General Court, January 15/26, 1725/6. The Explanatory Charter affords an interesting study in the development of popular government. As it was the model of legislative proceedings it is printed entire in this compilation.

It was first "printed for and sold by D. Henchman," under the title "The Explanatory Charter granted by His Majesty, King George I. to the Province of the Massachusetts-Bay in New-England" (Boston, 1725/6), 2-7; later editions are by Nathan Dane, William Prescott, and Joseph Story, compilers, "The Charters and General Laws of the Colony and Province of Massachusetts Bay" (Boston, 1814), 38-40, and Ben: Perley Poore, compiler, "The Federal and State Constitutions, Colonial Charters, and Other Organic Laws of the United States" (Washington, 1877), 954-956.

The text adopted here is that of Ellis Ames and Abner Cheney Goodell, compilers, "The Acts and Resolves, public and private, of the Province of the Massachusetts Bay" (Boston, 1869), I., 21-23.

The commission of Colonel Richard Philipps as captain-general and governor-in-chief of Nova Scotia was given by George II. of England, September 11/22, 1728. Although by the province charter of 1691, Nova Scotia was consolidated with Massachusetts Bay, yet, on account of its remoteness, and the distracted condition resulting from King William's war, the Lords of Trade in 1696 separated it. After the peace of Utrecht, Nova Scotia became a royal province. In subsequent negotiations the commissions of the first royal governors were used as evidence of separation of the provinces.

A transcript of the commission of 1728 to Colonel Philipps, "extracted from the original articles," is in "Massachusetts Archives," V., 331-333, with instructions, July 1/12, 1729, ibid., 334-337; with another of similar purport, issued two years later, it is printed in a "Statement on the Part of the United States, of the Case referred, in pursuance of the Convention of 1827 . . ." (printed but not published, Washington, 1829), Appendix XV., 125-129; and an extract from the earlier commission was printed with "Resolves of the Eighth Legislature of the State of Maine"

(Portland, 1828), Appendix, 119, 120; also "American State Papers, Foreign Relations" (Washington, 1859), VI., 915.

Study of the text shows that the date, 1719, of the printed forms, is an error.

EXTRACTS FROM DECISION ON THE NORTHERN BOUNDARY BETWEEN MASSACHUSETTS AND NEW HAMPSHIRE. BY GEORGE II. OF ENGLAND.

AUGUST 5/16, 1740.

Sources.

In 1737 the Board of Trade selected commissioners to investigate the northern boundary claims, with a view to the settlement of the long controversy between Massachusetts and New Hampshire. The king's decision on the return of the commissioners was rendered August 5/16, 1740, and was sent over at once with instructions to Jonathan Belcher, governor-in-chief of the Province of Massachusetts Bay. The northern line, as established in 1740, was the basis of the present boundary between Maine and New Hampshire; although inexact knowledge of the variation of the magnetic needle caused errors, they were corrected by later surveys.

Walter Bryant's journal which, as he stated on oath, was a true and exact record of the survey in 1741 is in the Massachusetts Archives; it was first published in the "Historical Magazine" (1871), XIX., 17-19; later by Nathaniel Bouton, compiler, "Records of New Hampshire, Provincial Papers" (Manchester, 1872), VI., 349-351.

There are several manuscript copies of the commissioners' "Report" and the king's "Decision," in "Massachusetts Archives," V., 115-119; New Hampshire MSS., "Province Boundaries," 161; and "Masonian Papers," IV., 171. The report was first printed by Jeremy Belknap, "History of New Hampshire" (Boston, 1791), II., 143-145. Both the report and the king's decision are in a "Statement on the Part of the United States, of the Case referred, in pursuance of the Convention of 1827 . . ." (printed but not published, Washington, 1829), Appendix XXIV., 207-209. In New Hampshire Historical Society "Collections," II., 267-290, is "An Historical Sketch of the Northern Boundary of New Hampshire." The documents relating to the controversy have been collected and published by Albert Stillman Batchellor, editor, "Provincial Papers of New Hampshire, 1679-1764" (Manchester, 1891), XIX.; the royal decision is found in pages 476-479.

The text here adopted for the extracts relating to the boundary between the District of Maine and the Province of New Hampshire is that of the "Massachusetts Archives."

EXTRACTS FROM THE TREATY OF AIX-LA-CHAPELLE, BETWEEN GEORGE II. OF ENGLAND, LOUIS XV. OF FRANCE, AND THE STATES GENERAL.

OCTOBER 18, N. S., 1748.

Sources.

The definitive treaty of peace between George II. of England, Louis XV. of France, and the States General, which was concluded at Aix-la-Chapelle, received also the sanction of the other great European powers. In the surrender of Louisburg and Cape Breton, although England virtually gave to France all the advantages gained by recent victories, the boundaries were left as before the war. By the appointment of Commissioners, according to the new treaty, an unsuccessful attempt was made to determine the ancient limits. Governor Shirley of Massachusetts represented the English government on the commission, which spent four years at Paris in futile attempts to adjust conflicting claims. That the discussions, and the evidence amassed were extensive, is shown by the quarto volumes of "Mémoires des Commissaires du Roi, et de ceux de sa Majesté Britannique, sur les Possessions et les Droits respectifs des deux Couronnes en Amerique" (Paris, 1755-1757), and "The Memorials of the English and French Commissioners Concerning the Limits of Nova Scotia or Acadia (London, 1755); in 1756 a duodecimo edition of the "Mémoires" was published in Paris, and whenever fresh material had been collected both English and French editions followed as rejoinders. Mitchell's map, which was the basis of the decisions of subsequent commissions, under the treaty of Ghent, was published in 1755 for the Lords of Trade.

An early text of the treaty of Aix-la-Chapelle is that of Frid. Aug. Guil. Wenck "Codex Juris Gentium Recentissimi" (Leipzig, 1788), II., 337-361. The treaty was printed in English by Charles Jenkinson, "A Collection of all the Treaties of Peace, Alliance and Commerce, between Great-Britain and Other Powers, from . . . 1648 to . . . 1783" (London, 1785), II., 370-387; and George Chalmers, "A Collection of Treaties between Great Britain and Other Powers" (London, 1790), I., 424-443.

The text followed in this reprint is that of Chalmers, which is based on the authorized version.

Text.

I. There shall be a christian, universal, and perpetual peace, as well by sea as land, and a sincere and lasting friendship, between the eight Powers abovementioned, and between their heirs and successors, kingdoms, states, provinces, countries, subjects, and vassals, of what rank and condition soever they may be, without exception of places or persons. So that the high contracting Powers may have the greatest attention to maintain, between them and their said states and subjects, this reciprocal friendship and correspondence, not permitting any sort of hostilities to be committed, on one side or the other, on any cause, or under any pretence whatsoever; and avoiding every thing that may, for the future, disturb the union happily re-established between them; and, on the contrary, endeavouring to procure, on all occasions, whatever may contribute to their mutual glory, interests, and advantage, without giving any assistance or protection, directly or indirectly, to those who would injure or prejudice any of the said high contracting parties.

II. There shall be a general oblivion of whatever may have been done or committed during the war now ended. And all persons, upon the day of the exchange of the ratifications of all the parties, shall be maintained or re-established in the possession of all the effects, dignities, ecclesiastical benefices, honours, revenues, which they enjoyed, or ought to have enjoyed, at the commencement of the war, notwithstanding all dispossessions, seizures, or confiscations, occasioned by the said war.

III. The treaties of Westphalia of 1648; those of Madrid, between the crowns of England and Spain, of 1667 and 1670; the treaties of peace of Nimeguen of 1678 and 1679; of Ryswick of 1697; of Utrecht of 1713; of Baden of 1714; the treaty of the triple alliance of the Hague of 1717; that of the quadruple alliance of London of 1718; and the treaty of peace of Vienna of 1738, serve as a basis and foundation to the general peace, and to the present treaty; and, for this purpose, they are renewed and confirmed in the best form, and as if they were herein inserted word for word; so that they shall be punctually observed for the future in all their tenor, and religiously executed on the one side and the other; such points, however, as have been derogated from in the present treaty excepted.

IV. All the prisoners made on the one side and the other, as well by sea as by land, and the hostages required or given during the war, and to this day, shall be restored, without ransom, in six weeks at latest, to be reckoned from the exchange of the ratification of the present treaty; and it shall be immediately proceeded upon after that exchange: and all the ships of war, as well as merchant vessels, that shall have been taken since the expiration of the terms agreed upon for the cessation of hostilities at sea, shall be, in like manner, faithfully restored, with all their equipages and cargoes; and sureties shall be given on all sides for payment of the debts, which the prisoners or hostages may have contracted, in the states where they had been detained, until their full discharge.

V. All the conquests, that have been made since the commencement of the war, or which, since the conclusion of the preliminary articles, signed the 30th of April last, may have been or shall be made, either in Europe, or the East or West Indies, or in any other part of the world whatsoever, being to be restored without exception, in conformity to what was stipulated by the said preliminary articles, and by the declarations since signed ; . . .

VIII. In order to secure and effectuate the said restitutions and cessions, it is agreed, that they shall be entirely executed and accomplished on all sides, in Europe, within the term of six weeks, or sooner if possible, to be reckoned from the day of the exchange of the ratifications of all the eight Powers ; it being provided, that in fifteen days after the signing of the present treaty, the generals, or other persons, whom the high contracting parties shall think proper to appoint for that purpose, shall meet at Brussels and at Nice, to concert and agree on the method of proceeding to the restitutions, and of putting the parties in possession, in a manner equally convenient for the good of the troops, the inhabitants, and the respective countries ; but so that all and each of the high contracting Powers may be, agreeable to their intentions, and to the engagements contracted by the present treaty, in full and peaceable possession, without any exception, of all that is to be acquired to them, either by restitution or cession, within the said term of six weeks, or sooner if possible, after the exchange of the ratifications of the present treaty by all the said eight Powers.

IX. In consideration that, notwithstanding the reciprocal engagement taken by the eighteenth article of the preliminaries, importing that all the restitutions and cessions should be carried on equally, and should be executed at the same time, his most Christian Majesty engages, by the sixth article of the present treaty, to restore within the space of six weeks, or sooner if possible, to be reckoned from the day of the exchange of the ratifications of the present treaty, all the conquests which he has made in the Low Countries; whereas it is not possible, considering the distance of the countries, that what relates to America should be effected within the same time, or even to fix the time of its entire execution; his Britannic Majesty likewise engages on his part to send to his most Christian Majesty, immediately after the exchange of the ratifications of the present treaty, two persons of rank and consideration, who shall remain there as hostages, till there shall be received a certain and authentic account of the restitution of Isle Royal, called Cape Breton, and of all the conquests which the arms or subjects of his Britannic Majesty may have made, before or after the signing of the preliminaries, in the East and West Indies.

Their Britannic and most Christian Majesties oblige themselves likewise to cause to be delivered, upon the exchange of the ratifications of the present treaty, the duplicates of the orders addressed to the commissaries appointed to restore and receive, respectively, whatever may have been conquered on either side, in the said East and West Indies, agreeably to the second article of the preliminaries, and to the declarations of the 21st and 31st of May, and the 8th of July last, in regard to what concerns the said conquests in the East and West Indies. Provided nevertheless, that Isle Royal, called Cape Breton, shall be restored, with all the artillery and warlike stores which shall have been found therein on the day of its surrender, conformably to the inventories which have been made thereof, and in the condition that the said place was in on the said day of its surrender. As to the other restitutions, they shall take place conformably to the meaning of the second article of the preliminaries, and of the declarations and convention of the 21st and 31st of May, and the 8th of July last, in the condition in which things were on the 11th of June, N.S. in the West Indies, and on the 31st of October also, N.S. in the East Indies. And every thing besides shall be re-established on the foot that they were or ought to be before the present war.

The said respective commissaries, as well those for the West, as those for the East Indies, shall be ready to set out on the first advice that their Britannic and most Christian Majesties shall receive of the exchange of the ratifications, furnished with all the necessary instructions, commissions, powers, and orders, for the most expeditious accomplishment of their said Majesties intentions, and of the engagements taken by the present treaty.

EXTRACTS FROM THE PEACE OF PARIS, BETWEEN GEORGE III. OF ENGLAND AND LOUIS XV. OF FRANCE.

FEBRUARY 10, 1763.

Sources.

The definitive treaty of peace and friendship, concluded at Paris, February 10, 1763, between George III. of England and Louis XV. of France, was the closing act in the long conflict between the two powers in North America. With the exception of the islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon, France ceded the whole of her northern territory to Great Britain.

The treaty has been so often published that it would be hardly possible to give a full list of references. The earliest English prints were in the periodicals of that period: "The Annual Register" (1762), 233-243; "The Gentleman's Magazine" (1763), 121-126, with map (page 576), giving boundaries of the newly acquired territory; "The London Magazine" (1763), 149-155; and Hansard, "The Parliamentary History of England" (1753-1765), XV.,

1291-1305. In general collections of treaties it is printed by Charles Jenkinson, "A Collection of all the Treaties of Peace, Alliance, and Commerce, between Great Britain and Other Powers, from . . . 1648 to . . . 1783" (London, 1785), III., 177-193; George Chalmers, "A Collection of Treaties between Great Britain and Other Powers" (London, 1790), I., 467-484; Frid. Aug. Guil. Wenck, "Codex Juris Gentium Recentissimi" (Leipzig, 1795), III., 329-348; and George Frédéric de Martens, "Recueil de Traités . . . des Puissances et états de l'Europe . . ." (Göttingue, 1817), I., 104-121. Extracts are in a "Statement on the Part of the United States, of the Case referred, in pursuance of the Convention of 1827 . . ." (printed but not published, Washington, 1829), Appendix, VII., 64, 65; David Mills, M. P., "A Report on the Boundaries of the Province of Ontario" (Toronto, 1873), 218, 219; Charles Lindsey, "An Investigation of the Unsettled Boundaries of Ontario" (Toronto, 1873), 118, 119; William Houston, "Documents Illustrative of the Canadian Constitution" (Toronto, 1891), 61-65; William Kingsford, "The History of Canada" (London and Toronto, 1890), IV., 505-507, and William Macdonald, editor, "Select Charters and Other Documents, Illustrative of American History, 1606-1775" (New York, 1899), 261-266.

The extracts which relate both to the cession of Canada and Nova Scotia, and to the rights of fishing in certain waters are taken from "The Annual Register," 1762, which contains an authorized copy.

Text.

The Definitive Treaty of friendship and peace between his Britannic majesty, the most Christian king, and the king of Spain. Concluded at Paris, the 10th day of February, 1763. To which the king of Portugal acceded the same day.

In the name of the most Holy and Undivided Trinity,
 Father, Son, and Holy Ghost. So be it.

IV. His most Christian majesty renounces all pretensions which he has heretofore formed, or might form, to

Nova Scotia, or Acadia, in all its parts, and guaranties the whole of it, and with all its dependencies, to the king of Great Britain: moreover, his most Christian majesty cedes and guaranties to his said Britannic majesty, in full right, Canada, with all its dependencies, as well as the island of Cape Breton, and all the other islands and coasts in the gulph and river of St. Lawrence, and, in general, everything that depends on the said countries, lands, islands, and coasts, with the sovereignty, property, possession, and all rights acquired by treaty or otherwise, which the most Christian king, and the crown of France, have had, till now, over the said countries, islands, lands, places, coasts, and their inhabitants, so that the most Christian king cedes and makes over the whole to the said king, and to the crown of Great Britain, and that in the most ample manner and form, without restriction, and without any liberty to depart from the said cession and guaranty, under any pretence, or to disturb Great Britain in the possessions above-mentioned. His Britannic majesty on his side, agrees to grant the liberty of the Catholic religion to the inhabitants of Canada: he will consequently, give the most effectual orders, that his new Roman Catholic subjects may profess the worship of their religion, according to the rites of the Romish church, as far as the laws of Great Britain permit. His Britannic majesty further agrees that the French inhabitants, or others, who had been the subjects of the most Christian king in Canada, may retire with all safety and freedom where-ever they shall think proper, and may sell their estates, provided it be to subjects of his Britannic majesty, and bring away their effects, as well as their persons, without being restrained in their emigration, under any pretence whatsoever except that of debts, or of criminal prosecutions; the term, limited for this emigration, shall be fixed to the space of eighteen months, to be computed from the day of the exchange of the ratifications of the present treaty.

V. The subjects of France shall have the liberty of fishing and drying on a part of the coasts of the island of Newfoundland, such as is specified in the 13th article of the treaty of Utrecht; which article is renewed and confirmed by the present treaty, (except what relates to the island of Cape Breton, as well as to the other islands, and coasts in the mouth and in the gulph St. Lawrence); and his Britannic majesty consents to leave the subjects of the most Christian king the liberty of fishing in the gulph of St. Lawrence, on condition that the subjects of France do not exercise the said fishery, but at the distance of three leagues from all the coasts belonging to Great Britain, as well those of the continent, as those of the islands situated in the said gulph of St. Lawrence. And as to what relates to the fishery on the coast of the island of Cape Breton out of the said gulph, the subjects of the most Christian king shall not be permitted to exercise the said fishery, but at the distance of fifteen leagues from the coasts of the island of Cape Breton; and the fishery on the coasts of Nova Scotia or Acadia, and every where else out of the said gulph, shall remain on the foot of former treaties.

VI. The king of Great Britain cedes the islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon, in full right, to his most Christian majesty, to serve as a shelter to the French fishermen; and his said Christian majesty engages not to fortify the said islands, to erect no buildings upon them, but merely for the convenience of the fishery, and to keep upon them a guard of fifty men only for the police. . . .

XXVI. Their sacred Britannic, most Christian, Catholic, and most Faithful majesties, promise to observe, sincerely, and bona fide, all the articles contained and settled in the present treaty; and they will not suffer the same to be infringed, directly or indirectly, by their respective subjects; and the said high contracting parties, generally and reciprocally, guaranty to each other all the stipulations of the present treaty.

XXVII. The solemn ratifications of the present treaty, expedited in good and due form, shall be exchanged in this city of Paris, between the high contracting parties, in the space of a month, or sooner if possible, to be computed from the day of the signature of the present treaty.

In witness whereof, We the underwritten, their ambassadors extraordinary and ministers plenipotentiary, have signed with our hand, in their name, and in virtue of our full powers, the present definitive treaty, and have caused the seal of our arms to be put thereto.

Done at Paris the 10th of February, 1763.

BY THE KING

A PROCLAMATION

GEORGE R.

WHEREAS we have taken into Our Royal Consideration the extensive and valuable Acquisitions in America, secured to Our Crown by the late Definitive Treaty of Peace, concluded at Paris the 10th day of February last; and being desirous, that all Our loving subjects, as well of our Kingdoms as of our Colonies in America, may avail themselves, with all convenient Speed, of the great Benefits and Advantages which must accrue therefrom to their Commerce, Manufactures, and Navigation; We have thought fit, with the advice of our Privy Council, to issue this our Royal Proclamation, hereby to publish and declare to all Our loving subjects, that we have, with the Advice of our said Privy Council, granted our Letters Patent under Our Great Seal of Great Britain, to erect within the Countries and Islands, ceded and confirmed to Us by the said Treaty, Four distinct and separate Governments, stiled and called by the names of Quebec, East Florida, West Florida and Grenada, and limited and bounded as follows; viz.

First. The Government of Quebec, bounded on the Labrador Coast by the River St. John, and from thence by a Line drawn from the Head of that River, through the lake St. John, to the South end of the Lake nigh Pissin, from whence the said Line crossing the River St. Lawrence, and the Lake Champlain in Forty-five degrees of North latitude, passes along the High Lands which divide the Rivers that empty themselves into the said River St. Lawrence from those which fall into the Sea; and also along the North Coast of the Baye des Chaleurs, and the Coast of the Gulf of St. Lawrence to Cape Rosieres, and from thence crossing the Mouth of the River St. Lawrence by the West End of the Island of Anticosti, terminates at the aforesaid River of St. John. . . .

Fourthly. The Government of Grenada, comprehending the Island of that Name, together with the Grenadines, and the Islands of Dominico, St. Vincents, and Tobago. And to the end that the open and free Fishery of Our Subjects may be extended to, and carried on, upon the Coast of Labrador and the adjacent Islands, we have thought fit, with the advice of Our said Privy Council, to put all that Coast from the river St. John's to Hudson's Streights, together with the Islands of Anticosty and Madelaine, and all smaller Islands lying upon the said Coast, under the Care and Inspection of our Governor of Newfoundland.

We have also with the advice of our Privy Council, thought fit to annex the Islands of St. John's, and Cape Breton, or Isle Royale, with the lesser Islands adjacent thereto, to Our Government of Nova Scotia. . . .

Given at Our Court at Saint James's, the Seventh Day of October, One thousand seven hundred and sixty-three, in the Third Year of Our Reign.

God save the King.

EXTRACT FROM THE QUEBEC ACT, BY THE PARLIAMENT OF GREAT BRITAIN.

JUNE 18, 1774.

Sources.

The Quebec Act, which passed the House of Lords June 18, 1774, and received the royal sanction June 22, in the fourteenth year of the reign of George III., is often named in popular handbooks on American history as one of the "intolerable acts" which hastened the American revolution. The title, however, simply designates it as "An Act for making more effectual provision for the government of the Province of Quebec, in North America." On account of its reference to boundaries, the act has a special relation to the territorial history of Maine. Although in a transposed order, the limits are those defined in the Royal Proclamation of 1763.

The Quebec Act is in Danby Pickering, editor, "The Statutes at Large" (Cambridge, 1773), XXX., 549-564; in both French and English, in "A Collection of the Acts Passed in the Parliament of Great Britain, and of Other Public Acts Relative to Canada" (printed by W. Vondenvelde, law-printer, Quebec, 1797), 5-15; "American Archives, a Documentary History of the North American Colonies" (Washington, 1837), 4th Series, I., 215-219; and extracts are in the "Report of the Regents of the University on the Boundaries of the State of New York" (Albany, 1874), 90-92; also in "Statement on the Part of the United States of the Case referred, in pursuance of the Convention of 1827 . . ." (printed but not published, Washington, 1829), Appendix XVIII., 169.

That the text might be available to students who could not have access to the large libraries it was printed entire from a copy in the Parliamentary Library, Ottawa, by William Kingsford, "The History of Canada" (London and Toronto, 1892), V., 256-261; it is also printed by William Houston, "Documents Illustrative of the Canadian Constitution" (Toronto, 1891), 90-96.

An extract which gives the boundary lines laid down by the Quebec Act is reprinted from "The Statutes at Large."

Text.

WHEREAS his Majesty, by his royal proclamation, bearing date the seventh day of October, in the third year of his reign, thought fit to declare the provisions which had been made in respect to certain countries, territories, and islands in America, ceded to his Majesty by the definitive treaty of peace, concluded at Paris on the tenth day of February one thousand seven hundred and sixty-three: and whereas, by the arrangements made by the said royal proclamation, a very large extent of country, within which there were several colonies and settlements of the subjects of France, who claimed to remain therein under the faith of the said treaty, was left, without any provision being made for the administration of civil government therein; and certain parts of the territory of Canada, where sedentary fisheries had been established and carried on by the subjects of France, inhabitants of the said province of Canada, under grants and concessions from the government thereof, were annexed to the government of Newfoundland, and thereby subjected to regulations inconsistent with the nature of said fisheries : may it therefore please your most excellent Majesty that it may be enacted : and be it enacted by the King's most excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That all the territories, islands, and countries in North America, belonging to the crown of Great Britain, bounded on the south by a line from the bay of Chaleurs, along the high lands which divide the rivers that empty themselves into the river Saint Lawrence from those which fall into the sea, to a point in forty-five degrees of northern latitude, on the eastern bank of the river Connecticut, keeping the same latitude directly west, through the lake Champlain, until, in the same latitude, it meets the river Saint Lawrence : from thence up the eastern bank of the said river to the lake Ontario ; thence through the lake Ontario, and the river commonly called Niagara ; and thence along by the eastern and south-eastern bank of lake Erie, following the said bank, until the same shall be intersected by the northern boundary, granted by the charter of the province of Pennsylvania in case the same shall be so intersected ; and from thence along the said northern and western boundaries of the said province, until the said western boundary strike the Ohio ; But in case the said bank of the said lake shall not be found to be so intersected, then following the said bank until it shall arrive at that point of the said bank which shall be nearest to the north-western angle of the said province of Pennsylvania ; and thence, by a right line, to the said north-western angle of the said province ; and thence along the western boundary of the said province, until it strike the river Ohio ; and along the bank of the said river, westward, to the banks of the Mississippi, and northward to the southern boundary of the territory granted to the Merchants Adventurers of England, trading to Hudson's Bay; and also all such territories, islands, and countries which have, since the tenth of February, one thousand seven hundred and sixty-three, been made part of the government of Newfoundland, be, and they are hereby, during his Majesty's pleasure, annexed to, and made part and parcel of the province of Quebec, as created and established by the said royal proclamation of the seventh of October, one thousand seven hundred and sixty-three.

II. Provided always, that nothing herein contained, relative to the boundary of the province of Quebec, shall in any wise affect the boundaries of any other colony.

III. Provided always, and be it enacted, That nothing in this act contained shall extend, or be construed to extend, to make void, or to vary or alter any right, title or possession, derived under any grant, conveyance, or otherwise howsoever, of or to any lands within the said province, or the provinces thereto adjoining; but that the same shall remain and be in force, and have effect, as if this act had never been made. . . .

EXTRACTS FROM THE CONSTITUTION OF THE COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS, RATIFIED BY THE PEOPLE.

OCTOBER 25, 1780.

Sources.

Until 1776 Massachusetts claimed to act under the charter of William and Mary, which England had ignored; in 1777-78 the General Court, acting as a convention, drew up a constitution which the people failed to ratify. The "Frame of Government" which was agreed upon by delegates in convention at Cambridge, 1779-80, was ratified by the people in 1780. Although Massachusetts was the last of the original states to form a definite constitution, hers was the first state constitution which was ratified by popular vote. "The Commonwealth" as an official title is a designation which only three other states in the Union have chosen, viz. : Pennsylvania, Vermont and Kentucky. Although the provisions of the constitution of 1780 allowed amendments after fifteen years, it was not until the separation of Maine from Massachusetts in 1820 that a convention was called to revise the Frame of Government. When the constitution was ratified the District of Maine contained but three counties, and was entitled to but four senators in the General Court.

The constitution of 1780 has been frequently printed; prefixed to "Acts and Laws of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts" (Boston, 1781), 3-24; also to "The Perpetual Laws of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts . . ." (Boston, 1787), 9-27; and "The General Laws of Massachusetts" (Boston, 1823), I., 12-40. It is in Ben: Perley Poore, "The Federal and State Constitutions, Colonial Charters, and Other Organic Laws of the United States" (Washington, 1877), 956-973; also in Franklin B. Hough, "American Constitutions: comprising the Constitutions of each State in the Union, and of the United States" (Albany, 1872), I., 621-659.

These extracts from the Frame of Government are reprinted from "Acts and Laws."

EXTRACTS FROM THE DEFINITIVE TREATY OF PEACE BETWEEN THE UNITED STATES AND GREAT BRITAIN.

SEPTEMBER 3, 1783.

Sources.

By the definitive treaty of peace signed at Paris, September 3, 1783, Great Britain not only recognized the independence of the United States of America, but she also relinquished all claims to territory within the limits of the independent states. Under the treaty the northern boundary of the present state of Maine was laid down in accordance with the proclamation of 1763 and the Quebec Act of 1774. Although the eastern boundary was for the first time defined, it was left for subsequent treaties to determine the true location of the limits specified.

Official correspondence relative to the negotiations has been published by Jared Sparks, editor, "The Diplomatic Correspondence of the American Revolution . . ." (Boston, 1829, 1830), and the "Works of Benjamin Franklin" (Boston, 1840); also under direction of Congress; also by Francis Wharton, editor, "The Revolutionary Diplomatic Correspondence of the United States" (Washington, 1889). The text of the treaty has been printed so many times that it is difficult to make a complete bibliography. It was printed often in journals of that period; "The Annual Register" (1783, second edition), 333-342; "The Remembrancer; or Impartial Repository of Public Events" (1783), part ii., 337-340; "The Political Magazine and Parliamentary, Naval, Military, and Literary Journal" (1783), part iv., 309-311; and preliminary articles in "The London Magazine . . ." (1783), 48, 49. With ratification by the Continental Congress, January 14, 1784, and the proclamation of the same date, it is in "Journal of the United States in Congress Assembled: containing the Proceedings from the third day of November, 1783, to the third day of June, 1784" (Philadelphia, 1784), IX., 24-32; also "Secret Journals of the Acts and Proceedings of Congress, 1781-1786," (published under the direction of the United States conformably to a resolution of Congress, Boston, 1821), III., 433-442, with ratification and proclamation, 442-446, and "Senate Ex. Does. 41 Cong., 3 Sess, No. 36." Other early sources are prefixed to "The Perpetual Laws of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts" (Boston, 1789), 29-33; in "A Collection of the Acts Passed in the Parliament of Great Britain, and of Other Public Acts relative to Canada" (printed by P. E. Desbarats, Quebec, 1800); and Geo. Fréd. de Martens, "Recueil de Traités . . . des Puissances et états de l'Europe" (Gottingue, 1818), III., 553-559; and among other texts it is printed in a "Statement on the Part of the United States, of the Case referred, in pursuance of the Convention of 1827 . . ." (printed but not published, Washington, 1827), Appendix I., 11-14; in "All the Treaties between the United States of America and Foreign Nations," in "Statutes at Large of the United States of America" (published by authority of Congress, Boston, 1846), VIII., 180-183; by John H. Haswell, compiler, "Treaties and Conventions concluded between the United States of America and Other Powers since July 4, 1776" (Washington, 1889), 375-379, and in many recent compilations.

In the name of the most holy and undivided Trinity.

IT having pleased the Divine Providence to dispose the hearts of the most serene and most potent Prince, George the third, by the grace of God king of Great-Britain, France and Ireland, defender of the faith, duke of Brunswick and Lunenburgh, arch-treasurer and prince elector of the holy Roman empire, &c. and of the United States of America, to forget all past misunderstandings and differences that have unhappily interrupted the good correspondence and friendship which they mutually wish to restore; and to establish such a beneficial and satisfactory intercourse between the two countries, upon the ground of reciprocal advantage and mutual convenience, as may promote and secure to both perpetual peace and harmony; and having for this desirable end, already laid the foundation of peace and reconciliation, by the provisional articles, signed at Paris, on the 30th of November 1782, by the commissioners empowered on each part, which articles were agreed to be inserted in and to constitute the treaty of peace proposed to be concluded between the crown of Great-Britain and the said United States, but which treaty was not to be concluded until terms of peace should be agreed upon between Great-Britain and France, and his Britannic Majesty should be ready to conclude such treaty accordingly; and the treaty between Great-Britain and France having since been concluded, his Britannic Majesty and the United States of America, in order to carry into full effect the provisional articles abovementioned according to the tenor thereof, have constituted and appointed, that is to say, his Britannic Majesty on his part, David Hartley, esquire, member of the parliament of Great-Britain, and the said United States on their part, John Adams, esquire, late a commissioner of the United States of America at the court of Versailles, late a delegate in Congress from the state of Massachusetts, and chief justice of the said state, and minister plenipotentiary of the said United States to their High Mightinesses the states general of the United Netherlands, Benjamin Franklin, esquire, late delegate in Congress from the state of Pennsylvania, president of the convention of the said state, and minister plenipotentiary from the said United States of America at the court of Versailles; John Jay, esquire, late president of Congress, and chief justice of the state of New York, and minister plenipotentiary from the said United States at the court of Madrid, to be the plenipotentiaries for the concluding and signing the present definitive treaty: who, after having reciprocally communicated their respective full powers, have agreed upon and confirmed the following articles:

ARTICLE 1st. His Britannic Majesty acknowledges the said United States, viz. New-Hampshire, Massachusetts Bay, Rhode Island and Providence Plantations, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, North-Carolina, South-Carolina, and Georgia, to be free, sovereign and independent states: that he treats with them as such, and for himself, his heirs and successors, relinquishes all claims to the government, propriety and territorial rights of the same, and every part thereof.

ARTICLE 2d. And that all disputes which might arise in future, on the subject of the boundaries of the United States, may be prevented, it is hereby agreed and declared, that the following are and shall be their boundaries, viz. from the north west angle of Nova-Scotia, viz. that angle which is formed by a line drawn due north from the source of Saint-Croix river to the highlands; along the said Highlands which divide those rivers that empty themselves into the river Saint Lawrence from those which fall into the Atlantic ocean, to the north-westernmost head of Connecticut river, thence down along the middle of that river to the forty-fifth degree of north latitude; from thence by a line due west on said latitude, until it strikes the river Iroquois or Cataraquy; thence along the middle of the said river into Lake Ontario; . . . East, by a line to be drawn along the middle of the river Saint-Croix, from its mouth in the bay of Fundy to its source, and from its source directly north to the aforesaid Highlands which divide the rivers that fall into the Atlantic ocean from those which fall into the river Saint Lawrence: comprehending all islands within twenty leagues of any part of the shores of the United States, and lying between lines to be drawn due east from the points where the aforesaid boundaries between Nova Scotia on the one part, and East Florida on the other, shall respectively touch the bay of Fundy, and the Atlantic ocean; excepting such islands as now are or heretofore have been within the limits of the said province of Nova Scotia.

ARTICLE 3d. It is agreed, that the people of the United States shall continue to enjoy unmolested the right to take fish of every kind on the Grand Bank, and on all the other banks of Newfoundland; also in the gulph of Saint Lawrence, and at all other places in the sea, where the inhabitants of both countries used at any time heretofore to fish; and also that the inhabitants of the United States shall have liberty to take fish of every kind on such part of the coast of Newfoundland as British fishermen shall use (but not to dry or cure the same on that Island) and also on the coasts, bays, and creeks of all other of his Britannic Majesty's dominions in America; and that the American fishermen shall have liberty to dry and cure fish in any of the unsettled bays, harbours, and creeks of Nova-Scotia, Magdalen islands and Labrador, so long as the same shall remain unsettled; but so soon as the same or either of them shall be settled, it shall not be lawful for the said fishermen to dry or cure fish at such settlement, without a previous agreement for that purpose of the inhabitants, proprietors or possessors of the ground.

ARTICLE 4th. It is agreed that creditors on either side, shall meet with no lawful impediment to the recovery of the full value in sterling money, of all bona fide debts heretofore contracted.

ARTICLE 5th. It is agreed that the Congress shall earnestly recommend it to the legislatures of the respective states, to provide for the restitution of all estates, rights and properties, which have been confiscated, belonging to real British subjects, and also of the estates, rights and properties of persons resident in districts in the possession of his Majesty's arms and who have not borne arms against the said United States. And that persons of any other description shall have free liberty to go to any part or parts of the Thirteen United States, and therein to remain twelve months unmolested in their endeavours to obtain the restitution of such of their estates, rights and properties, as may have been confiscated; and that Congress shall also earnestly recommend to the several states a reconsideration and revision of all acts or laws regarding the premises, so as to render the said laws or acts perfectly consistent, not only with justice and equity, but with that spirit of conciliation, which on the return of the blessings of peace should universally prevail. And that Congress shall also earnestly recommend to the several states, that the estates, rights and properties of such last mentioned persons shall be restored to them; they refunding to any persons who may be now in possession the bona fide price (where any has been given) which such persons may have paid on purchasing any of the said lands, rights or properties since the confiscation. And it is agreed that all persons who have any interest in confiscated lands, either by debts, marriage settlements, or otherwise, shall meet with no lawful impediment in the prosecution of their just rights.

ARTICLE 6th. That there shall be no future confiscations made, nor any prosecutions commenced against any person or persons for or by reason of the part which he or they may have taken in the present war; and that no person shall on that account, suffer any future loss or damage, either in his person, liberty or property, and that those who may be in confinement on such charges, at the time of the ratification of the treaty in America, shall be immediately set at liberty, and the prosecutions so commenced be discontinued.

ARTICLE 7th. There shall be a firm and perpetual peace between his Britannic Majesty and the said states, and between the subjects of the one, and the citizens of the other, wherefore all hostilities both by sea and land, shall from henceforth cease: all prisoners on both sides shall be set at liberty, and his Britannic Majesty shall with all convenient speed, and without causing any destruction, or carrying away any negroes or other property of the American inhabitants, withdraw all his armies, garrisons and fleets from the said United States, and from every post, place and harbour within the same; leaving in all fortifications the American artillery that may be therein, and shall also order and cause all archives, records, deeds and papers, belonging to any of the said states, or their citizens, which in the course of the war may have fallen into the hands of his officers, to be forthwith restored and delivered to the proper states and persons to whom they belong.

ARTICLE 9th. In case it should so happen, that any place or territory belonging to Great-Britain or to the United States, should have been conquered by the arms of either from the other, before the arrival of the said provisional articles in America, it is agreed that the same shall be restored without difficulty, and without requiring any compensation.

ARTICLE 10th. The solemn ratifications of the present treaty expedited in good and due form shall be exchanged between the contracting parties in the space of six months, or sooner if possible, to be computed from the day of the signature of the present treaty.

In witness whereof, we the undersigned, their ministers plenipotentiary, have in their name, and in virtue of our full powers, signed with our hands the present definitive treaty, and caused the seals of our arms to be affixed thereto. DONE at Paris, this third day of September, in the year of our Lord, one thousand seven hundred and eighty-three.

ACT CONFIRMING TREATY WITH PENOBSCOT TRIBE OF INDIANS, BY THE GENERAL COURT OF MASSACHUSETTS.

OCTOBER 11, 1786.

Sources.

The act passed by the General Court of Massachusetts, October 11, 1786, whereby a treaty made with the Penobscot tribe of Indians was confirmed, is the first of a series of negotiations with Indian tribes which was begun by the commonwealth of Massachusetts, and finally assumed by the State of Maine.

The act is reprinted from the "Acts and Laws of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts" (Boston, 1786), Chapter I., pp. 487, 488.

Text.

WHEREAS by a resolve of the General Court of the sixth day of July, in the present year, Benjamin Lincoln, Thomas Rice and Rufus Putnam, Esquires, were appointed Commissioners to treat with the Penobscot tribe of Indians, respecting their claims to lands on Penobscot-River: And whereas the said Commissioners did, on the thirtieth day of August, in the present year, make report of an agreement entered into, between them, the Commissioners, and the said Penobscot tribe of Indians: which report is in the words following, viz.

It was agreed by the said Indians on their part, that they would relinquish all their claims and interests to all the lands on the west side of Penobscot-River, from the head of the tide up to the River Pasquataquis, being about forty-three miles; and all their claims and interest on the east side of the River from the head of the tide aforesaid, up to the River Mantawomkuktook, being about eighty-five miles ; reserving only to themselves the Island on which the old Town stands, about ten miles above the head of the tide, and those Islands on which they now have actual improvements, in the said River, lying from Sunkhaze-River, about three miles above the said old Town, to Passadunkee-Island inclusively, on which Island their new Town, so called, now stands. CXII.

LOTTERY ACT FOR THE SALE OF EASTERN LANDS, BY THE GENERAL COURT OF MASSACHUSETTS.

NOVEMBER 14, 1786.

Sources.

From the time when Maine was consolidated with the Province of Massachusetts Bay by the charter of William and Mary in 1691, until the final separation in 1820, the public lands in Maine were generally disposed of by the General Court of Massachusetts, although the management and disposition were to a certain extent regulated by the Land Office which was established in 1783. The Land Lottery Act of 1786 is entitled "An Act to bring into the public Treasury the Sum of one Hundred and Sixty-three Thousand, and two Hundred Pounds, in public Securities by a Sale of a Part of the Eastern Lands; and to establish a Lottery for that Purpose." In those days when public lotteries were held for the purpose of raising funds to repair highways, build bridges, endow institutions, and even to provide an orrery for Harvard College, it was in the order of established custom that the pressure of debt in the commonwealth should be relieved by the casting of fifty eastern townships into a lottery. In 1788, an additional act enabled the proprietors to exchange with the commonwealth their lots drawn in the lottery. In connection with this lottery act it is interesting to note the forms of punishment sanctioned by law little more than a century ago.

The text adopted is from the "Acts and Laws of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts" (Boston, 1786), I., part ii., chapter 12, pages 513-516.

GRANT OF LANDS AT MT. DESERT TO MADAME DE GREGOIRE, BY THE GENERAL COURT OF MASSACHUSETTS.

JUNE 29, 1787.

Sources.

In response to a petition from Monsieur and Madame De Gregoire to the General Court of Massachusetts, accompanied by a letter from the Marquis de La Fayette, a resolve confirming to them the lands described passed both houses June 29, 1787. By this grant the claims of Madame De Gregoire to territory conferred to her grandfather, Monsieur De La Mothe Cadillac, by Louis XIV., ^{May 24,} ~~June 23,~~ 1689, were recognized as binding upon the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. The legal right, however, would undoubtedly have been held of trifling worth at any other time than during the years which followed the close of the war of Independence. The formal confirmation of ancient claims was a graceful acknowledgment of services rendered by France, rather than a special act of favor to the individuals immediately concerned.

Naturalization of the Gregoires as American citizens was the only restriction imposed by the General Court for the possession of one half of Mt. Desert with land "on the Maine" consisting of portions of the present towns of Trenton, Lamoine, Hancock and Ellsworth. An act for naturalizing Bartholomy De Gregoire, Maria Theresa De Gregoire, his wife, and their children, was passed by the General Court, October 29, 1787.

Comparison with the Cadillac grant, No. XCIV. of this series of documents, shows that the date cited in the resolve of the General Court is an error which probably arose from the imperfect knowledge of the petitioners.

A copy of the petition is in the archives of Massachusetts; the resolve, which is found in "Resolves of the General Court of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts:" (1787) (Boston), 32, was recorded in the Registry of Deeds for Hancock County, I., 518, and it was published in "Resolves of the General Court of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, respecting the Sale of Eastern Lands; with the Reports of the Committees appointed to sell said Lands, from March 1, 1781, to June 22, 1803" (Boston, 1803), 70, 71; from the same source it was contributed by Mr. E. M. Hamor of West Eden, Maine, to the "Bangor Historical Magazine" (Bangor, 1889-1890), V., 232.

Commonwealth of Massachusetts :

In Senate June 29, 1787.

Whereas it appears to this Court, that the lands, claimed by Monsieur and Madame De Gregoire, as described in their petition, were in April, 1691; granted to Monsieur De La Motte Cadillac, by his late Most Christian Majesty Louis XIV, to hold to him as an estate of inheritance, and that said Madame De Gregoire, is grandaughter, and direct heir at law of said De La Motte Cadillac. But whereas by long lapse of possession, the legal title to the said lands, under the said grant, is lost to the heir at law of the said Monsieur De La Motte Cadillac and the said Monsieur and Madame De Gregoire, have not any interest or estate now remaining therein, but through the liberality and generosity of this Court, which are not hereafter to be drawn into precedent : And whereas it is the disposition of this court to cultivate a mutual confidence and union between the subjects of his Most Christian Majesty and the citizens of this State, and to cement that confidence and union by every act of the most liberal justice, not repugnant to the rights of their own citizens :

It is therefore Resolved, that there be, and hereby is granted, to the said Monsieur and Madame De Gregoire, all such parts and parcels of the island of Mount Desert and other islands, and tracts of land particularly described in the grant or patent of his late Most Christian Majesty Louis XIV, to said Monsieur De La Motte Cadillac, which now remains the property of this commonwealth, whether by original right, cession, confiscation or forfeiture, to hold all the aforesaid, parts and parcels of the said lands and islands to them the said Monsieur and Madame De Gregoire, their heirs and assigns, forever.

Provided however, That the committee for the sale of eastern lands, be and they hereby are authorized and fully empowered, to quiet to all or any possessors of, or claimers to the title of any parts of the lands herein described, all such parts and parcels thereof as they the said committee shall think necessary and expedient, and on such consideration and condition, as they the said committee shall judge equitable and just, under all circumstances, conformable to the precedents heretofore established with regard to settlers. And this grant is not to take effect, and it shall not be lawful for the said Monsieur and Madame De Gregoire to take or hold possession of the lands hereby granted, until an act or bill of naturalization has been passed in their favor.

REPORT ON NEW HAMPSHIRE BOUNDARY LINE, BY THE COMMITTEE ON WASTE LANDS.

JANUARY 6, 1790.

Sources.

The "Committee on Waste Lands for the State of New Hampshire," in accordance with instructions, made a survey of the northern boundary between New Hampshire and Massachusetts during the year 1789. Although partial surveys had been made before the Revolution, it was not until January 6, 1790, that the Committee on Waste Lands presented a completed report of the survey beyond the point reached by Bryant in 1741.

The report was first printed by Jeremy Belknap, "History of New Hampshire" (Boston, 1792), III., Appendix XV., 399-401; and by Isaac W. Hammond, compiler, "Records of New Hampshire, Miscellaneous Provincial and State Papers, 1725-1800" (Manchester, 1890), XVIII., 807, 808.

The text adopted for this reprint is that of Mr. Hammond from the original document.

DEED OF EASTERN LANDS TO WILLIAM BINGHAM,
BY THE COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS.

JANUARY 28, 1793.

Sources.

Deed No. 1 of Eastern Lands, granted to William Bingham, is the first of a series of the same tenor by which the commonwealth of Massachusetts conveyed more than two million acres of unappropriated land in Maine to William Bingham of Philadelphia. The tracts of land known as "Bingham's Purchase" consisted of the Kennebec Purchase of one million acres, and the Penobscot, or Eastern, Purchase between the Penobscot river and Passamaquoddy bay, of one million one hundred and seven thousand three hundred and ninety-six acres. The terms of the original sale were at the rate of twelve and one-half cents per acre. Since the reservations for ministerial and school funds were similar to provisions in grants to settlers, they furnished a cause for legislation under the Act of Separation.

For further account of Mr. Bingham reference may be had to Mr. W. Allen's article, "Bingham Land," Maine Historical Society, "Collections," VII.

The deeds were executed, one half were delivered, and the other half were retained by the commissioners until stipulated conditions should be fulfilled. The series was recorded in the Land Office, "Eastern Lands, Deeds, &c.," Book No. 2, pp. 180-248. The deed transcribed for this compilation is No. 1 of the series, pp. 180-183. It is believed that not one of the deeds has ever before been printed.

EXTRACTS FROM JAY'S TREATY BETWEEN THE UNITED STATES AND GREAT BRITAIN.

NOVEMBER 19, 1794.

Sources.

The treaty of amity, commerce and navigation, which is known as "Jay's Treaty," from the principal negotiator on the part of the United States, was concluded at London, November 19, 1794. As the fifth article provided for commissioners to determine "what river was truly intended under the name of the river St. Croix," the treaty has an important relation to the territorial history of Maine. It was the first treaty under constitutional government which the United States of America concluded with any foreign power, and its ratification by the Senate marks an important step in international arbitration.

The treaty was communicated to the Senate by President Washington, June 8, 1795, and was printed, with "Message on the Treaty with Great Britain," Ex. Docs. (misc.) : 4 Cong. 1 sess. pp. 1-32; it was reprinted in "American State Papers, Foreign Relations" (Washington, 1832), I., 520-525; it is also in "Statutes at Large of the United States of America" (Boston, 1846), VIII., 116-131; "Statement on the Part of the United States, of the Case referred, under the Convention of 1827 . . ." (printed but not published, Washington, 1829), Appendix I., 14-26; and John H. Haswell, compiler, "Treaties and Conventions Concluded between the United States of America and Other Powers since July 4, 1776" (Washington, 1889), 379-394; William Macdonald, "Select Documents Illustrative of the History of the United States, 1776-1861" (New York, 1898), 114-130. Among foreign publications it is found in "Cobbett's Political Register" (London, 1815), 347-352, 381-384; "The Parliamentary History of England" (London, 1818), XXXII., 216-233; "British and Foreign State Papers" (London, 1841), I., part i., 784-801; "A Collection of the Acts Passed in the Parliament of Great Britain, and of Other Public Acts Relative to Canada" (printed by W. (Gottingue, 1826), V., 640-688.

The articles which relate to the interests and rights of Maine are reprinted in this compilation from "American State Papers."

Text.

His Britannic Majesty and the United States of America, being desirous, by a treaty of amity, commerce and navigation, to terminate their differences in such a manner, as, without reference to the merits of their respective complaints and pretensions, may be the best calculated to produce mutual satisfaction and good understanding; and also to regulate the commerce and navigation between their respective countries, territories and people, in such a manner as to render the same reciprocally beneficial and satisfactory : they have respectively, named their plenipotentiaries, and given them full powers to treat of, and conclude the said treaty : that is to say : His Britannic Majesty has named for his plenipotentiary, the Right Honorable William Wyndham, Baron Grenville, of Wotton, one of His Majesty's privy council, and his Majesty's principal secretary of state for foreign affairs ; and the President of the said United States, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate thereof, hath appointed, for their plenipotentiary, the Honorable John Jay, Chief Justice of the said United States, and their envoy extraordinary to his Majesty ; who have agreed on and concluded the following articles :

ART. 1. There shall be a firm, inviolable, and universal peace, and a true and sincere friendship, between his Britannic Majesty, his heirs and successors, and the United States of America : and between their respective countries, territories, cities, towns, and people, of every degree, without exception of persons or places.

ART. 2. His Majesty will withdraw all his troops and garrisons from all posts and places within the boundary lines assigned by the treaty of peace to the United States. This evacuation shall take place on or before the first day of June, one thousand seven hundred and ninety-six, and all the proper measures shall in the interval be taken by concert between the government of the United States and his Majesty's governor general in America, for settling the previous arrangements which may be necessary respecting the delivery of the said posts : the United States, in the meantime, at their discretion, extending their settlements to any part within the said boundary line, except within the precincts or jurisdiction of any of the said posts. All settlers and traders, within the precincts or jurisdiction of any of the said posts, shall continue to enjoy, unmolested, all their property, of every kind, and shall be protected therein. They shall be at full liberty to remain there, or to remove with all or any part of their effects; and it shall also be free to them to sell their lands, houses, or effects; or to retain the property thereof, at their discretion; such of them as shall continue to reside within the said boundary lines shall not be compelled to become citizens of the United States, or to take any oath of allegiance to the government thereof; but they shall be at full liberty so to do if they think proper, and they shall make and declare their election within one year after the evacuation aforesaid. And all persons who shall continue there after the expiration of the said year, without having declared their intention of remaining subjects of His Britannic Majesty, shall be considered as having elected to become citizens of the United States.

ART. 5. Whereas doubts have arisen what river was truly intended under the name of the river St. Croix, mentioned in the said treaty of peace, and forming a part of the boundary therein described, that question shall be referred to the final decision of commissioners, to be appointed in the following manner, viz. :

One commissioner shall be named by His Majesty, and one by the President of the United States, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate thereof, and the said two commissioners shall agree on the choice of a third; or, if they cannot so agree, they shall each propose one person, and of the two names so proposed, one shall be drawn by lot in the presence of the two original commissioners. And the three commissioners, so appointed, shall be sworn impartially to examine and decide the said question, according to such evidence as shall respectively be laid before them on the part of the British Government and of the United States.

The said commissioners shall meet at Halifax, and shall have power to adjourn to such other place or places as they shall think fit. They shall have power to appoint a secretary, and to employ such surveyors or other persons as they shall judge necessary. The said commissioners shall, by a declaration, under their hands and seals, decide what river is the river St. Croix, intended by the treaty. The said declaration shall contain a description of the said river, and shall particularize the latitude and longitude of its mouth and of its source. Duplicates of this declaration, and of the statements of their accounts, and of the journal of their proceedings, shall be delivered by them to the agent of the United States, who may be respectively appointed and authorized to manage the business on behalf of the respective Governments. And both parties agree to consider such decision as final and conclusive, so as that the same shall never thereafter be called into question, or made the subject of dispute or difference between them.

ART. 28. It is agreed that the first ten articles of this treaty shall be permanent, and that the subsequent articles, except the twelfth, shall be limited in their duration to twelve years, to be computed from the day on which the ratifications of this treaty shall be exchanged, but subject to this condition, that, whereas the said twelfth article will expire, by the limitation therein contained, at the end of two years from the signing of the preliminary or other articles of peace which shall terminate the present war in which His Majesty is engaged, it is agreed that proper measures shall, by concert, be taken, for bringing the subject of that article¹ into amicable treaty and discussion, so early before the expiration of the said term, as that new arrangements on that head may, by that time, be perfected, and ready to take place. But, if it should, unfortunately, happen, that His Majesty and the United States should not be able to agree on such new arrangements, in that case all the articles of this treaty, except the first ten, shall then cease and expire together.

Lastly. This treaty, when the same shall have been ratified by His Majesty, and by the President of the United States, by and with the advice and consent of their Senate, and the respective ratifications mutually exchanged, shall be binding and obligatory on His Majesty and on the said States, and shall be by them respectively executed and observed, with punctuality and the most sincere regard to good faith. And whereas it will be expedient, in order the better to facilitate intercourse, and obviate difficulties, that other articles be proposed and added to this treaty, which articles, from want of time and other circumstances, cannot now be perfected, it is agreed that the said parties will, from time to time, readily treat of and concerning such articles, and will sincerely endeavor so to form them as that they may conduce to mutual convenience, and tend to promote mutual satisfaction and friendship; and that the said articles, after having been duly ratified, shall be added to, and make a part of, this treaty.

In faith whereof, we, the undersigned, ministers plenipotentiary of His Majesty the King of Great Britain and the United States of America, have signed this present treaty, and have caused to be affixed thereto the seal, of our arms.

EXPLANATORY ARTICLE TO JAY'S TREATY, BY COMMISSIONERS OF THE UNITED STATES AND GREAT BRITAIN.

MARCH 15, 1798.

To obviate certain difficulties which had arisen in determining the latitude and longitude of the St. Croix river under Article V. of the Treaty of Ghent, an explanatory article was added to the treaty in accordance with provisions under Article XXVIII. President John Adams communicated the article to the Senate, May 29, 1798. The explanatory article is printed in "American State Papers, Foreign Relations" (Washington, 1832), II., 183; "Statutes at Large of the United States of America" (Boston, 1846), VIII., 131, 132; "British and Foreign State Papers" (London, 1841), I., part i., 806, 807; in both English and French by Charles de Martens, reviser, "Recueil des Principaux Traités . . . conclus par les Puissances de l'Europe . . ." Text.

Whereas by the twenty-eighth article of the treaty of amity, commerce, and navigation, between His Britannic Majesty and the United States, signed at London the 19th November, 1794, it was agreed, that the contracting parties would, from time to time, readily treat of and concerning such further articles, as might be proposed, that they would sincerely endeavor so to form such articles as that they might conduce to mutual convenience, and tend to promote mutual satisfaction and friendship, and that such articles, after having been duly ratified, should be added to and make a part of that treaty: and whereas difficulties have arisen with respect to the execution of so much of the fifth article of the said treaty, as requires that the commissioners, appointed under the same should, in their description, particularize the latitude and longitude of the source of the river which may be found to be the one truly intended in the treaty of peace between His Britannic Majesty and the United States, under the name of the river St. Croix, by reason whereof it is expedient that the said commissioners should be released from the obligation of conforming to the provisions of the said article in this respect, the undersigned being respectively named by His Britannic Majesty and the United States of America, their plenipotentiaries, for the purpose of treating of and concluding such articles as may be proper to be added to the said treaty, in conformity to the above-mentioned stipulation, and having communicated to each other their respective full powers, have agreed and concluded, and do hereby declare, in the name of His Britannic Majesty, and of the United States of America, that the commissioners appointed under the fifth article of the said treaty shall not be obliged to particularize, in their description, the latitude and longitude of the source of the river which may be found to be the one truly intended in the aforesaid treaty of peace, under the name of the River St. Croix, but they shall be at liberty to describe the said river, in such other manner as they may judge expedient, which description shall be considered as a compleat execution of the duty required of the said commissioners, in this respect, by the article aforesaid. And, to the end that no uncertainty may hereafter exist on this subject, it is further agreed that, as soon as may be after the decision of the said commissioners, measures shall be concerted between the government of the United States and His Britannic Majesty's Governors or Lieutenant Governors in America, in order to erect and keep in repair, a suitable monument, at the place ascertained and described to be the source of the said River St. Croix, which measures shall, immediately thereupon, and as often afterwards as may be requisite, be duly executed on both sides, with punctuality and good faith.

This explanatory article, when the same shall have been ratified by His Majesty and by the President of the United States, by and with the advice and consent of their Senate, and the respective ratifications mutually exchanged, shall be added to, and make a part of, the treaty of amity, commerce, and navigation, between His Majesty and the United States, signed at London on the 19th day of November, 1794, and shall be permanently binding upon His Majesty and the United States.

In witness whereof, we the said undersigned plenipotentiaries of His Britannic Majesty and the United States of America have signed this present article, and have caused to be affixed thereto the seal of our arms.

DECLARATION UNDER THE FIFTH ARTICLE OF JAY'S TREATY, BY THE COMMISSIONERS OF THE UNITED STATES AND GREAT BRITAIN.

OCTOBER 25, 1798.

Sources.

The declaration of the commissioners under the fifth article of Jay's treaty was signed at Providence, Rhode Island, October 25, 1798. It is interesting to connect the decisions of commissioners with the patent of Acadia, which was issued in 1603, inasmuch as the remains of De Mont's fortification on Neutral Island was the means of determining the true St. Croix. It may also be noted that the town of Amity, which was incorporated in 1836 from Township No. 10, north latitude $45^{\circ} 56'$, is, both by Leroc's monument at its northeastern angle and by its name, a memorial of the "treaty of Amity."

The declaration was printed with "Resolves of the Eighth Legislature of the State of Maine" (Portland, 1828), Appendix, pages 735, 736; also "Documents Relating to the North-Eastern Boundary of the State of Maine" (Boston, 1828), No. 12, 162, 163, and the unexecuted declaration (without date), No. 13, 164, 165; and, in part, "House Executive Documents," 27th Cong. 3d sess., No. 31; it is also included in "Statement on the Part of the United States, of the Case referred, in pursuance of the Convention of 1827 . . ." (printed but not published, Washington, 1829), Appendix II., 35, 36; "British and Foreign State Papers" (London, 1841), I., part i., 807, 808; and with papers relative to the disputed boundaries between the provinces of Canada and New Brunswick, in "Journals of the Legislative Assembly of the Province of Canada" (1852, 1853), Appendix L. L., No. 42. Other sources are "American State Papers, Foreign Relations" (Washington, 1859), VI., 921, 922; John Bassett Moore, "History and Digest of the International Arbitrations to which the United States has been a Party, together with appendices . . .” (Washington, 1898), I., 29-31; and the Maine Historical Society, “Collections and Proceedings” (Portland, 1895), 2d Series, VI., 244, 245.

As the text of the “Collections” is based on the “Barclay Correspondence” it is followed in this reprint.

GREAT BRITAIN.

DECEMBER 24, 1814.

Since the treaty of peace and amity which was signed at Ghent, December 24, 1814, arranged for commissioners to determine the boundaries between the two nations, it is important not only to American diplomacy, but to the territorial history of Maine.

The treaty with message of the president is in "Public Documents," 1814-15, 13 Cong. 3 sess. No. 66, pp., 6-16; in "The Examiner," (1815), 341-346; H. Text.

His Britannic majesty and the United States of America, desirous of terminating the war which has unhappily subsisted between the two countries, and of restoring, upon principles of perfect reciprocity, peace, friendship, and good understanding, between them have, for that purpose, appointed their respective plenipotentiaries, that is to say : his Britannic majesty, on his part, has appointed the right honorable James lord Gambier, late admiral of the white, now admiral of the red squadron of his majesty's fleet, Henry Goulburn, esquire, a member of the imperial parliament, and under-secretary of state, and William Adams, esquire, doctor of civil laws : and the president of the United States, by and with the advice and consent of the senate thereof, has appointed John Quincy Adams, James A. Bayard, Henry Clay, Jonathan Russell, and Albert Gallatin, citizens of the United States, who after a reciprocal communication of their respective full powers, have agreed upon the following articles :

ARTICLE THE FIRST.

There shall be a firm and universal peace, between his Britannic majesty and the United States, and between their respective countries, territories, cities, towns, and people, of every degree, without exception of places or persons. All hostilities, both by sea and land, shall cease as soon as this treaty shall have been ratified by both parties, as hereinafter mentioned. All territory, places, and possessions, whatsoever, taken by either party from the other, during the war, or which may be taken after the signing of this treaty, excepting only the islands hereinafter mentioned, shall be restored without delay, and without causing any destruction, or carrying away any of the artillery or other public property originally captured in the said forts or places, and which shall remain therein upon the exchange of the ratifications of this treaty, or any slaves or other private property. And all archives, records, deeds, and papers, either of a public nature, or belonging to private persons, which in the course of the war, may have fallen into the hands of the officers of either party, shall be, as far as may be practicable, forthwith restored and delivered to the proper authorities and persons to whom they respectively belong. Such of the islands in the bay of Passamaquoddy as are claimed by both parties, shall remain in the possession of the party in whose occupation they may be at the time of the exchange of the ratification of this treaty, until the decision respecting the title to the said islands, shall have been made in conformity with the fourth article of this treaty. No disposition made by this treaty, as to such possession of the islands and territories claimed by both parties, shall, in any manner whatever, be construed to affect the right of either.

ARTICLE THE SECOND.

Immediately after the ratification of this treaty by both parties, as hereinafter mentioned, orders shall be sent to the armies, squadrons, officers, subjects, and citizens, of the two powers, to cease from all hostilities. And to prevent all causes of complaint which might arise on account of the prizes which may be taken at sea after the said ratifications of this treaty, it is reciprocally agreed, that all vessels and effects which may be taken after the space of twelve days from the said ratifications, upon all parts of the coast of North America, from the latitude of fifty degrees north, and as far eastward in the Atlantic ocean as the thirty-sixth degree of west longitude from the meridian of Greenwich, shall be restored on each side: that the time shall be thirty days in all other parts of the Atlantic ocean north of the equinoxial line or equator; and the same time for the British and Irish channels, for the Gulf of Mexico and all parts of the West Indies: forty days for the north seas, for the Baltic, and for all parts of the Mediterranean: sixty days for the Atlantic ocean south of the equator, as far as the latitude of the Cape of Good Hope: ninety days for every part of the world south of the equator: and one hundred and twenty days for all other parts of the world, without exception.

ARTICLE THE THIRD.

All prisoners of war taken on either side, as well by land as by sea, shall be restored as soon as practicable after the ratifications of this treaty, as hereinafter mentioned, on their paying the debts which they may have contracted during their captivity. The two contracting parties respectively engage to discharge, in specie, the advances which may have been made by the other for the sustenance and maintenance of such prisoners.

ARTICLE THE FOURTH.

Whereas it was stipulated by the second article in the treaty of peace, of one thousand seven hundred and eighty-three, between his Britannic majesty and the United States of America, that the boundary of the United States should comprehend all islands within twenty leagues of any part of the shores of the United States, and lying between lines to be drawn due east from the points where the aforesaid boundaries, between Nova Scotia, on the one part, and East Florida on the other, shall respectively touch the Bay of Fundy and the Atlantic ocean, excepting such islands as now are, or heretofore have been, within the limits of Nova Scotia; and whereas the several islands in the bay of Passamaquoddy, which is part of the bay of Fundy, and the island of Grand Menan, in the said bay of Fundy, are claimed by the United States, as being comprehended within their aforesaid boundaries, which said islands are claimed as belonging to his Britannic majesty, as having been at the time of, and previous to, the aforesaid treaty of one thousand seven hundred and eighty-three, within the limits of the province of Nova Scotia. In order, therefore, finally to decide upon these claims, it is agreed that they shall be referred to two commissioners, to be appointed in the following manner, viz: One commissioner shall be appointed by his Britannic majesty, and one by the president of the United States, by and with the advice and consent of the senate thereof; and the said two commissioners so appointed shall be sworn impartially to examine and decide upon the said claims according to such evidence as shall be laid before them on the part of his Britannic majesty and of the United States respectively. The said commissioners shall meet at St. Andrews in the province of New Brunswick, and shall have power to adjourn to such other place or places as they shall think fit. The said commissioners shall, by a declaration or report under their hands and seals, decide to which of the two contracting parties the several islands aforesaid do respectively belong, in conformity with the true intent of the said treaty of peace of one thousand seven hundred and eighty-three. And if the said commissioners shall agree in their decision, both parties shall consider such decision final and conclusive. It is further agreed, that in the event of the two commissioners differing upon all or any of the matters so referred to them, or in the event of both or either of the said commissioners refusing or declining, or wilfully omitting to act as such, they shall make, jointly or separately, a report or reports, as well to the government of his Britannic majesty as to that of the United States, stating, in detail, the points on which they differ, and the grounds upon which they or either of them have so refused, declined or omitted to act. And his Britannic majesty and the government of the United States hereby agree to refer the report or reports of the said commissioners to some friendly sovereign or state, to be then named for that purpose, and who shall be requested to decide on the differences which may be stated in the said report or reports, or upon the report of one commissioner, together with the grounds upon which the other commissioner shall have refused, declined or omitted to act, as the case may be. And if the commissioner so refusing, declining, or omitting to act, shall also wilfully omit to state the grounds upon which he has so done, in such manner that the said statement may be referred to such friendly sovereign or state, together with the report of such other commissioner, then such sovereign or state shall decide ex parte upon the said report alone. And his Britannic majesty and the government of the United States engage to consider the decision of such friendly sovereign or state to be final and conclusive on all the matters so referred.

ARTICLE THE FIFTH.

Whereas neither that point of the highlands, lying due north from the source of the river St. Croix, and designated in the former treaty of peace between the two powers, as the north-west angle of Nova Scotia, nor the north-westernmost head of Connecticut river, has yet been ascertained: and whereas that part of the boundary line between the dominions of the two powers, which extends from the source of the river St. Croix directly north to the abovementioned highlands which divide those rivers that empty themselves into the river St. Lawrence from those which fall into the Atlantic ocean, to the north-westernmost head of Connecticut river, thence down along the middle of that river to the forty-fifth degree of north latitude, thence by a line due west on said latitude, until it strikes the river Iroquois or Cataraguy, has not yet been surveyed; it is agreed, that for these several purposes two commissioners shall be appointed, sworn and authorized to act exactly in the manner directed with respect to those mentioned in the next preceding article, unless otherwise specified in the present article. The said commissioners shall meet at St. Andrews, in the province of New Brunswick, and shall have power to adjourn to such other place or places, as they shall think fit. The said commissioners shall have power to ascertain and determine the points abovementioned, in conformity with the provisions of the said treaty of peace of one thousand seven hundred and eighty-three, and shall cause the boundary aforesaid, from the source of the river St. Croix to the river Iroquois, or Cataraguy, to be surveyed and marked, according to the said provisions. The said commissioners shall make a map of the said boundary, and annex to it a declaration under their hands and seals, certifying it to be the true map of the said boundary, and particularizing the latitude and longitude of the north-west angle of Nova Scotia, of the north-westernmost head of Connecticut river, and of such other points of the said boundary, as they may deem proper. And both parties agree to consider such map and declaration as finally and conclusively fixing the said boundary. And in the event of the said two commissioners differing, or both, or either of them refusing, declining or wilfully omitting to act, such reports, declarations or statements shall be made by them, or either of them, and such reference to a friendly sovereign or state shall be made, in all respects, as in the latter part of the fourth article is contained, and in as full a manner as if the same was herein repeated.

ARTICLE THE EIGHTH.

The several boards of two commissioners mentioned in the four preceding articles, shall respectively have power to appoint a secretary, and to employ such surveyors, or other persons, as they shall judge necessary. Duplicates of all their respective reports, declarations, statements, and decisions, and of their accounts, and of the journal of their proceedings, shall be delivered by them to the agents of his Britannic majesty, and to the agents of the United States, who may be respectively appointed and authorized to manage the business on behalf of their respective governments. The said commissioners shall be respectively paid in such manner as shall be agreed between the two contracting parties, such agreement being to be settled at the time of the exchange of the ratifications of this treaty. And all other expenses attending the said commissioners, shall be defrayed equally by the two parties. And in the case of death, sickness, resignation, or necessary absence, the place of every such commissioner respectively shall be supplied in the same manner as such commissioner was first appointed, and the new commissioner shall take the same oath or affirmation, and do the same duties. It is further agreed between the two contracting parties, that in case any of the islands mentioned in any of the preceding articles which were in the possession of one of the parties prior to the commencement of the present war between the two countries, should, by the decision of any of the boards of commissioners aforesaid, or of the sovereign or state so referred to, as in the four next preceding articles contained, fall within the dominions of the other party, all grants of land made previous to the commencement of the war by the party having had such possession, shall be as valid as if such island or islands had by such decision or decisions been adjudged to be within the dominions of the party having had such possession.

ARTICLE THE NINTH.

The United States of America engage to put an end, immediately after the ratification of the present treaty, to hostilities with all the tribes or nations of Indians, with whom they may be at war at the time of such ratification; and forthwith to restore to such tribes or nations, respectively, all the possessions, rights, and privileges, which they may have enjoyed or been entitled to in one thousand eight hundred and eleven, previous to such hostilities: Provided always, That such tribes or nations shall agree to desist from all hostilities against the United States of America, their citizens and subjects, upon the ratification of the present treaty being notified to such tribes or nations, and shall so desist accordingly. And his Britannic majesty engages, on his part, to put an end, immediately after the ratification of the present treaty, to hostilities with all the tribes or nations of Indians with whom he may be at war at the time of such ratification; and forthwith to restore to such tribes or nations, respectively, all the possessions, rights, and privileges, which they may have enjoyed or been entitled to in one thousand eight hundred and eleven, previous to such hostilities: Provided always, That such tribes or nations shall agree to desist from all hostilities against his Britannic majesty, and his subjects, upon the ratification of the present treaty being notified to such tribes or nations, and shall so desist accordingly.

ARTICLE THE TENTH.

Whereas the traffic in slaves is irreconcilable with the principles of humanity and justice: And whereas both his majesty and the United States are desirous of continuing their efforts to promote its entire abolition; it is hereby agreed that both the contracting parties shall use their best endeavors to accomplish so desirable an object.

ARTICLE THE ELEVENTH.

This treaty, when the same shall have been ratified on both sides, without alteration by either of the contracting parties, and the ratifications mutually exchanged, shall be binding on both parties, and the ratifications shall be exchanged at Washington, in the space of four months from this day, or sooner if practicable.

In faith whereof, we, the respective plenipotentiaries, have signed this treaty, and have hereunto affixed our seals.

Done, in triplicate, at Ghent, the twenty-fourth day of December, one thousand eight hundred and fourteen.

DECISION, WITH DECLARATION, UNDER THE FOURTH ARTICLE OF THE TREATY OF GHENT, BY THE COMMISSIONERS OF THE UNITED STATES AND GREAT BRITAIN.

NOVEMBER 24, 1817.

Sources.

The commissioners appointed under the fourth article of the treaty of Ghent to determine which of the islands in Passamaquoddy bay should belong respectively to the United States and Great Britain, signed their report at New York, November 24, 1817.

In the archives of the Maine Historical Society are many valuable papers which were used by the commissioners. Those papers which belonged to Thomas Barclay were presented by his great-grandson, George Lockhart Rives, who has published "Selections from the Correspondence of Thomas Barclay, formerly British Consul at New York" (New York, 1894), a book which throws much light on the work of the commissioners.

The decision, with declaration, is in a "Statement on the Part of the United States, of the Case referred, in pursuance of the Convention of 1827 . . ." (printed but not published, Washington, 1829), Appendix II., 36, 37; "American State Papers, Foreign Relations" (Washington, 1834), IV., 171; "British and Foreign State Papers" (London, 1837), V., 199, 200; "Statutes at Large of the United States of America" (Boston, 1846), VIII., 250, 251; John H. Haswell, compiler, "Treaties and Conventions concluded between the United States of America and Other Powers since July 4, 1776" (Washington, 1889), 406; Theodore Lyman, Jr., "The Diplomacy of the United States . . ." (Boston, 1828), second edition, II., 107, 108; and John Bassett Moore, "History and Digest of the International Arbitrations to which the United States has been a Party, together with Appendices . . ." (Washington, 1898), I., 62, 63.

The declaration is printed with the decision because it illustrates the fact that arbitration is usually a compromise.

The text adopted is that of "Statutes at Large."

By Thomas Barclay and John Holmes, esquires, commissioners, appointed by virtue of the fourth article of the treaty of peace and amity between his Britannic majesty and the United States of America, concluded at Ghent, on the twenty-fourth day of December, one thousand eight hundred and fourteen, to decide to which of the two contracting parties to the said treaty, the several islands in the Bay of Passamaquoddy, which is part of the Bay of Fundy, and the island of Grand Menan, in the said Bay of Fundy, do respectively belong, in conformity with the true intent of the second article of the treaty of peace of one thousand seven hundred and eighty-three, between his said Britannic majesty and the aforesaid United States of America.

We, the said Thomas Barclay and John Holmes, commissioners as aforesaid, having been duly sworn impartially to examine and decide upon the said claims, according to such evidence as should be laid before us on the part of his Britannic Majesty, and the United States, respectively, have decided, and do decide, that Moose Island, Dudley Island, and Frederick Island in the Bay of Passamaquoddy, which is part of the Bay of Fundy, do, and each of them does, belong to the United States of America; and we have also decided, and do decide, that all the other islands, and each and every of them, in the said Bay of Passamaquoddy, which is part of the Bay of Fundy, and the Island of Grand Menan, in the said Bay of Fundy, do belong to his said Britannic majesty, in conformity with the true intent of the said second article of said treaty of one thousand seven hundred and eighty-three.

In faith and testimony whereof, we have set our hands and affixed our seals, at the city of New York, in the state of New York, in the United States of America, this twenty-fourth day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seventeen.

DECLARATION OF THE COMMISSIONERS UNDER THE FOURTH ARTICLE OF THE TREATY OF GHENT.

New York, 24th November 1817

Sir,

The undersigned commissioners, appointed by virtue of the fourth article of the treaty of Ghent, have attended to the duties assigned them; and have decided that Moose Island, Dudley Island, and Frederick Island, in the Bay of Passamaquoddy, which is part of the Bay of Fundy, do each of them belong to the United States of America, and that all the other islands in the Bay of Passamaquoddy, and the Island of Grand Menan, in the Bay of Fundy, do each of them belong to his Britannic majesty, in conformity with the true intent of the second article of the treaty of peace of one thousand seven hundred and eighty-three. The commissioners have the honor to enclose herewith their decision.

In making this decision, it became necessary that each of the commissioners should yield a part of his individual opinion: several reasons induced them to adopt this measure; one of which was the impression and belief that the navigable waters of the Bay of Passamaquoddy, which, by the treaty of Ghent, is said to be part of the Bay of Fundy, are common to both parties for the purpose of all lawful and direct communication with their own territories and foreign ports.

The undersigned have the honor to be,

With perfect respect, Sir,

Your obedient and humble servants,

J. HOLMES,

THO: BARCLAY.

Secretary of State.

TREATY WITH THE PENOBSCOT TRIBE OF INDIANS,
BY THE COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS.

JUNE 29, 1818.

Sources.

The relations which Massachusetts established with the Indians were continued under the constitution of the State of Maine in accordance with the Articles of Separation; a place is therefore given to the treaty between the commonwealth of Massachusetts and the Penobscot tribe of Indians, which was signed by both parties, June 29, 1818.

March 20, 1843, it was ordered by the "Council for the Governor of the State of Maine" that "the secretary of state be requested to cause the treaties, bonds and other documents, now on file in the secretary's office, in relation to the Penobscot and Passamaquoddy tribes of Indians, necessary to be preserved as evidence of their title to their lands, and their claims against the state, to be printed with the resolves for the year 1843." In accordance with that order they were printed from the original text and bound with "Acts and Resolves passed by the Twenty-third Legislature of the State of Maine" (Augusta, 1843).

The text adopted is that of "Resolves," 253-255; another text is by Joseph W. Porter, editor, "Bangor Historical Magazine" (Bangor, 1886-87), II., 93-95.

Text.

This writing indented and made this twenty ninth day of June, one thousand eight hundred and eighteen, between Edward H. Robbins, Daniel Davis and Mark Langdon Hill, Esqs., commissioners appointed by his excellency John Brooks, governor of the commonwealth of Massachusetts, by and with the advice of council in conformity to a resolve of the legislature of said commonwealth, passed the thirteenth day of February, A. D. one thousand eight hundred and eighteen, to treat with the Penobscot tribe of Indians upon the subject expressed in said resolve, on the one part; and the said Penobscot tribe of Indians, by the undersigned chiefs, captains and men of said tribe, representing the whole thereof, on the other part, Witnesseth, That the said Penobscot tribe of Indians, in consideration of the payments by them now received of said commissioners, amounting to four hundred dollars, and of the payments hereby secured and engaged to be made to them by said commonwealth, do hereby grant, sell, convey, release and quitclaim, to the commonwealth of Massachusetts, all their, the said tribes, right, title, interest and estate, in and to all the lands they claim, occupy and possess by any means whatever on both sides of the Penobscot river, and the branches thereof, above the tract of thirty miles in length on both sides of said river, which said tribe conveyed and released to said commonwealth by their deed of the eighth of August, one thousand seven hundred and ninety-six, excepting and reserving from this sale and conveyance, for the perpetual use of said tribe of Indians, four townships of land of six miles square each, in the following places, viz :

The first beginning on the east bank of the Penobscot river, opposite the five islands, so called, and running up said river according to its course, and crossing the mouth of the Mattawamkeag river, an extent of six miles from the place of beginning, and extending back from said river six miles, and to be laid out in conformity to a general plan or arrangement which shall be made in the survey of the adjoining townships on the river — one other of said townships lies on the opposite or western shore of said river, and is to begin as nearly opposite to the place of beginning of the first described township as can be, having regard to the general plan of the townships that may be laid out on the western side of said Penobscot river, and running up said river according to its course, six miles, and extending back from said river six miles. Two other of said townships are to begin at the foot of an island, in west branch of Penobscot river in Nolacemcae lake, and extending on both sides of said lake, bounding on the ninth range of townships, surveyed by Samuel Weston, Esq., which two townships shall contain six miles square each, to be laid out so as to correspond in courses with the townships which now are, or hereafter may be surveyed on the public lands of the state. And the said tribe do also release and discharge said commonwealth from all demands and claims of any kind and description, in consequence of said tribe's indenture and agreement made with said commonwealth, on the eighth day of August, one thousand seven hundred and ninety-six, by their commissioners, William Sheppard, Nathan Dane, and Daniel Davis, Esquires; and we the undersigned commissioners on our part in behalf of said commonwealth, in consideration of the above covenants, and release of the said Penobscot tribe, do covenant with said Penobscot tribe of Indians, that they shall have, enjoy and improve all the four excepted townships described as aforesaid, and all the islands in the Penobscot river above Oldtown and including said Oldtown island. And the commissioners will purchase for their use as aforesaid, two acres of land in the town of Brewer, adjoining Penobscot river, convenient for their occupation, and provide them with a discreet man of good moral character and industrious habits, to instruct them in the arts of husbandry, and assist them in fencing and tilling their grounds, and raising such articles of production as their lands are suited for, and as will be most beneficial for them, and will erect a store on the island of Oldtown, or contiguous thereto, in which to deposit their yearly supplies, and will now make some necessary repairs on their church, and pay and deliver to said Indians for their absolute use, within ninety days from this date, at said island of Oldtown, the following articles viz : one six pound cannon, one swivel, fifty knives, six brass kettles, two hundred yards of calico, two drums, four fifes, one box pipes, three hundred yards of ribbon, and that annually, and every year, so long as they shall remain a nation, and reside within the commonwealth of Massachusetts, said commonwealth will deliver for the use of said Penobscot tribe of Indians at Oldtown aforesaid, in the month of October, the following articles viz : five hundred bushels of corn, fifteen barrels of wheat flour, seven barrels of clear pork, one hogshead of molasses, and one hundred yards of double breadth broad cloth, to be of red color one year, and blue the next year, and so on alternately, fifty good blankets, one hundred pounds of gunpowder, four hundred pounds of shot, six boxes of chocolate, one hundred and fifty pounds of tobacco, and fifty dollars in silver. The delivery of the articles last aforesaid to commence in October next, and to be divided and distributed at four different times in each year among said tribe, in such manner as that their wants shall be most essentially supplied, and their business most effectually supported. And it is further agreed by and on the part of said tribe, that the said commonwealth shall have a right at all times hereafter to make and keep open all necessary roads, through any lands hereby reserved for the future use of said tribe. And that the citizens of said commonwealth shall have a right to pass and repass any of the rivers, streams, and ponds, which run through any of the lands hereby reserved, for the purpose of transporting their timber and other articles through the same.

In witness whereof, the parties aforesaid have hereunto set our hands and seal.

EXTRACTS FROM THE CONVENTION FOR RIGHTS OF FISHING, BETWEEN THE UNITED STATES AND GREAT BRITAIN.

OCTOBER 20, 1818.

Sources.

That the convention between the United States and Great Britain, which was concluded at London, October 20, 1818, has a close relation to Maine history is shown both by the text itself and its subsequent use by the arbitration commission which met at Halifax, June 15, 1877.

The convention was printed by H. Niles, "Weekly Register," XV., 434-436; it is also in "American State Papers, Foreign Relations," (Washington, 1834), IV., 406, 407; "Statutes at Large of the United States of America," (Boston, 1846), VIII., 248-250; John H. Haswell, compiler, "Treaties and Conventions concluded between the United States of America and Other Powers since July 4, 1776," (Washington, 1889), 415-418; and, in both French and German, by George Frédéric de Martens, editor, "Supplement au Recueil des Principaux Traités d' Alliance, . . ." (Gottingue, 1820), VIII., 570-577.

Extracts from the convention are reprinted here from "American State Papers."

Text.

The United States of America and His Majesty the King of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, desirous to cement the good understanding which happily subsists between them, have, for that purpose, named their respective plenipotentiaries, that is to say: the President of the United States, on his part, has appointed Albert Gallatin, their envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to the court of France and Richard Rush their envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to the court of His Britannic Majesty: and His Majesty has appointed the right honorable Frederick John Robinson, treasurer of His Majesty's navy, and president of the committee of privy council for trade and plantations; and Henry Goulburn, Esq., one of His Majesty's under secretaries of state: who, after having exchanged their respective full powers, found to be in due and proper form have agreed to and concluded the following articles:

ART. I. Whereas differences have arisen respecting the liberty claimed by the United States, for the inhabitants thereof, to take, dry, and cure, fish, on certain coasts, bays, harbours, and creeks, of His Britannic Majesty's dominions in America, it is agreed between the high contracting parties that the inhabitants of the said United States shall have, forever, in common with the subjects of His Britannic Majesty, the liberty to take fish of every kind on that part of the southern coast of Newfoundland which extends from Cape Ray to the Ramea Islands, on the western and northern coast of Newfoundland; from the said Cape Ray to the Quirpon Islands; on the shores of the Magdalen Islands; and also on the coasts, bays, harbours, and creeks, from Mount Joli, on the southern coast of Labrador, to and through the straits of Belleisle, and thence northwardly, indefinitely, along the coast, without prejudice, however, to any of the exclusive rights of the Hudson's Bay Company: and that the American fishermen shall also have liberty, forever, to dry and cure fish in any of the unsettled bays, harbours, and creeks, of the southern part of the coast of Newfoundland, hereabove described, and of the coast of Labrador; but soon as the same, or any portion thereof, shall be settled, it shall not be lawful for the said fishermen to dry or cure fish at such portion so settled, without previous agreement for such purpose with the inhabitants, proprietors, or possessors of the ground. And the United States hereby renounce, forever, any liberty heretofore enjoyed or claimed by the inhabitants thereof, to take, dry, or cure fish, on or within three marine miles, of any of the coasts, bays, creeks, or harbours, of His Britannic Majesty's dominions in America, not included within the above mentioned limits: Provided, however, that the American fishermen shall be admitted to enter such bays or harbors, for the purpose of shelter and of repairing damages therein, of purchasing wood, and of obtaining water, and for no other purpose whatever. But they shall be under such restrictions as may be necessary to prevent their taking, drying, or curing fish therein, or in any other manner whatever abusing the privileges hereby reserved to them.

ART. VI. This convention, when the same shall have been duly ratified by the President of the United States, by and with the advice and consent of their Senate, and by His Britannic Majesty and the respective ratifications mutually exchanged, shall be binding and obligatory on the said United States and on his majesty ; and the ratifications shall be exchanged in six months from this date, or sooner, if possible.

In witness whereof, the respective plenipotentiaries have signed the same, and have thereunto affixed the seal of their arms. Done at London, this twentieth day of October, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eighteen.

ACT RELATING TO THE SEPARATION OF MAINE FROM MASSACHUSETTS PROPER, BY THE GEN- ERAL COURT OF MASSACHUSETTS.

JUNE 19, 1819.

Sources.

Although the question of separation from Massachusetts proper had been agitated at intervals by the people of the District of Maine, the matter did not really take definite form until 1816, when, in response to petitions "from sundry towns," an Act of Separation passed both houses of the legislature of Massachusetts and received the sanction of the governor February 10. The act provided for a formal vote on the question in the District of Maine, promising that, if the affirmative votes were in the ratio of five to four, a convention should then form a constitution. The proceedings of the Brunswick convention are related by Henry Leland Chapman for the Pejepscot Historical Society, "Collections," (Brunswick, 1889), I., 1-20. As a result of the first formal vote the General Court of Massachusetts decided "that the contingency upon which the consent of Massachusetts was to be given for the Separation of the District of Maine has not happened; and that the powers of the Brunswick Convention to take any measures tending to that event have ceased." Three years later another "Act relating to the Separation of Maine from Massachusetts proper and forming the same into a Separate and Independent State" passed both houses and received the approval of the governor, John Brooks, June 19, 1819.

The text of the Act of Separation is printed in "Laws of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts passed at the several sessions of the General Court . . . May, 1818 . . . February, 1822," (Boston, 1822), VIII., 248-260; "Laws of the State of Maine, to which are prefixed the Constitution of the United States, and of the said State" (Brunswick, 1821), 1003-1009; "The Public Laws of the State of Maine, passed by the Legislature at its Session held in January, 1822" (Portland, 1822), 6-25; "The Journal of the Constitutional Convention of the District of Maine, with the Articles of Separation, and Governor Brooks's Proclamation prefixed" (Augusta, 1856), 3-14; Ben: Perley Poore, "The Federal and State Constitutions, Colonial Charters, and Other Organic Laws of the United States" (Washington, 1877), 809, 810; and in "The Revised Statutes of Maine" (Portland, 1884), 35-55.

The text adopted is that of "Laws of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts."

Text.

WHEREAS it has been represented to this Legislature, that a majority of the people of the District of Maine are desirous of establishing a Separate and Independent Government within said district; Therefore,

SEC. 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives, in General Court assembled, and by the authority of the same, That the consent of this Commonwealth be, and the same is hereby given, that the District of Maine may be formed and erected into a Separate and Independent State, if the people of the said District shall, in the manner, and by the majority, hereinafter mentioned, express their consent and agreement thereto, upon the following terms and conditions; and, provided, the Congress of the United States shall give its consent thereto, before the fourth day of March next: which terms and conditions, are as follows, viz:

First, All the lands and buildings belonging to the Commonwealth, within Massachusetts Proper, shall continue to belong to said Commonwealth; and all the lands belonging to the Commonwealth, within the District of Maine, shall belong, the one half thereof, to the said Commonwealth, and the other half thereof, to the State to be formed within the said District, to be divided as is hereinafter mentioned; and the lands within the said District, which shall belong to the said Commonwealth, shall be free from taxation, while the title to the said lands remains in the Commonwealth; and the rights of the Commonwealth to their lands, within said District, and the remedies for the recovery thereof, shall continue the same within the proposed State, and in the Courts thereof as they now are within the said Commonwealth, and in the Courts thereof; for which purposes, and for the maintenance of its rights, and recovery of its lands, the said Commonwealth shall be entitled to all other proper and legal remedies, and may appear in the Courts of the proposed State, and in the Courts of the United States, holden therein, and prosecute as a party, under the name and style of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts; and all rights of action for, or entry into lands, and of actions upon bonds, for the breach of the performance of the condition of settling duties, so called, which have accrued, or may accrue, shall remain in this Commonwealth, to be enforced, commuted, released, or otherwise disposed of, in such manner as this Commonwealth may hereafter determine: Provided, however, that whatever this Commonwealth may hereafter receive or obtain on account thereof, if any thing, shall, after deducting all reasonable charges relating thereto, be divided, one third part thereof, to the new State, and two third parts thereof, to this Commonwealth.

Second. All the arms which have been received by this Commonwealth from the United States, under the law of Congress, entitled "An act making provision for arming and equipping the whole body of militia of the United States," passed April the twenty-third, one thousand eight hundred and eight, shall, as soon as the said District shall become a Separate State, be divided between the two States, in proportion to the returns of the militia, according to which, the said arms have been received from the United States, as aforesaid.

Third. All monies, stock, or other proceeds, hereafter obtained from the United States, on account of the claim of this Commonwealth, for disbursements made, and expenses incurred, for the defence of the State, during the late war with Great Britain, shall be received by this Commonwealth, and when received, shall be divided between the two States, in the proportion of two thirds to this Commonwealth, and one third to the new State.

Fourth. All other property, of every description, belonging to the Commonwealth, shall be holden and receivable by the same, as a fund and security, for all debts, annuities, and Indian subsidies, or claims due by said Commonwealth; and within two years after the said District shall have become a Separate State, the Commissioners to be appointed, as hereinafter provided, if the said States cannot otherwise agree, shall assign portion of the productive property, so held by Commonwealth, as an equivalent and indemnification to said Commonwealth, for all such debts, annuities, or Indian subsidies or claims, which may then remain due, or unsatisfied; and all the surplus of the said property, so holden, as aforesaid, shall be divided between the said Commonwealth and the said District of Maine, in the proportion of two thirds to the said Commonwealth, and one third to the said District. And if, in the judgment of the said Commissioners, the whole of said property, so held, as a fund and security, shall not be sufficient indemnification, the said District shall be liable for, and shall pay to said Commonwealth, one third of the deficiency.

Fifth. The new State shall, as soon as the necessary arrangements can be made for that purpose, assume and perform all the duties and obligations of this Commonwealth, towards the Indians within said District of Maine, whether the same arise from treaties or otherwise; and for this purpose, shall obtain the assent of said Indians, and their release to this Commonwealth of claims and stipulations arising under the treaty at present existing between the said Commonwealth and said Indians; and as an indemnification to such new State, therefor, this Commonwealth, when such arrangements shall be completed, and the said duties and obligations assumed, shall pay to said new State, the value of thirty thousand dollars, in manner following, viz.: The said Commissioners shall set off by metes and bounds, so much of any part of the land, within the said District, falling to this Commonwealth, in the division of the public lands, hereinafter provided for, as in their estimation shall be of the value of thirty thousand dollars; and this Commonwealth shall, thereupon, assign the same to the said new State; or in lieu thereof, may pay the sum of thirty thousand dollars, at its election, which election of the said Commonwealth, shall be made within one year from the time that notice of the doings of the Commissioners, on this subject, shall be made known to the Governor and Council; and if not made within that time, the election shall be with the new State.

Sixth. Commissioners, with the powers and for the purposes mentioned in this act, shall be appointed in manner following: The Executive authority of each State shall appoint two; and the four so appointed, or the major part of them, shall appoint two more; but if they cannot agree in the appointment, the Executive of each State shall appoint one in addition; not, however, in that case, to be a citizen of its own State. And any vacancy happening with respect to these two Commissioners, shall be supplied in the manner provided for their original appointment; and, in addition to the powers herein before given to said Commissioners, they shall have full power and authority, and it shall be their duty, within ten years, next after the commissions shall be filled up, to divide all the public lands within the District, between the respective States, in equal shares, or moieties, in severalty, having regard to quantity, situation and quality; they shall determine what lands shall be surveyed and divided, from time to time; the expense of which surveys, and of the commission shall be borne equally by the two States. They shall keep fair records of their doings, and of the surveys made by their direction; copies of which records, authenticated by them, shall be deposited in the archives of the respective States; transcripts of which, properly certified, may be admitted in evidence, in all questions touching the subject to which they relate. The Executive authority of each State may revoke the power of either or both its Commissioners; having, however, first appointed a substitute, or substitutes, and may fill any vacancy happening with respect to its own Commissioners; four of said Commissioners shall constitute a quorum, for the transaction of business; their decision shall be final, upon all subjects within their cognizance. In case said commission shall expire, the division not having been completed, and either State shall request the renewal or filling up of the same, it shall be renewed, or filled up in the same manner as is herein provided for filling the same, in the first instance, and with the like powers; and if either State shall, after six months notice, neglect or refuse to appoint its Commissioners, either for filling the commission in the first instance, or the renewal thereof, the other may fill up the whole commission.

Seventh. All grants of lands, franchises, immunities, corporate or other rights, and all contracts for, or grants of land not yet located, which have been or may be made by the said Commonwealth, before the separation of said District shall take place, and having or to have effect within the said District, shall continue in full force, after the said District shall become a Separate State. But the grant which has been made to the President and Trustees of Bowdoin College, out of the tax laid upon the banks, within this Commonwealth, shall be charged upon the tax upon the banks within the said District of Maine, and paid according to the terms of said grant; and the President and Trustees, and the Overseers of said College, shall have, hold and enjoy their powers and privileges in all respects; so that the same shall not be subject to be altered, limited, annulled or restrained, except by judicial process, according to the principles of law; and in all grants hereafter to be made, by either State, of unlocated land within the said District, the same reservations shall be made for the benefit of Schools, and of the Ministry, as have heretofore been usual, in grants made by this Commonwealth. And all lands heretofore granted by this Commonwealth, to any religious, literary, or eleemosynary corporation, or society shall be free from taxation, while the same continues to be owned by such corporation, or society.

Eighth. No laws shall be passed in the proposed State, with regard to taxes, actions, or remedies at law, or bars, or limitations thereof, or otherwise making any distinction between the lands and rights of property of proprietors, not resident in, or not citizens of the proposed State, resident therein; and the rights and liabilities of all persons, shall, after the said separation, continue the same as if the said District was still a part of this Commonwealth, in all suits pending, or judgments remaining unsatisfied, on the fifteenth day of March next, where the suits have been commenced in Massachusetts Proper, and process has been served within the District of Maine; or commenced in the District of Maine, and process has been served in Massachusetts Proper, either by taking bail, making attachments, arresting and detaining persons, or otherwise, where execution remains to be done; and in such suits, the Courts within Massachusetts Proper, and within the proposed State, shall continue to have the same jurisdiction as if the said District still remained a part of the Commonwealth. And this Commonwealth shall have the same remedies, within the proposed State, as it now has, for the collection of all taxes, bonds, or debts, which may be assessed, due, made, or contracted, by, to, or with the Commonwealth, on or before the said fifteenth day of March, within the said District of Maine; and all officers within Massachusetts Proper and the District of Maine, shall conduct themselves accordingly.

Ninth. These terms and conditions, as here set forth, when the said District shall become a Separate and Independent State, shall, ipso facto, be incorporated into, and become, and be a part of any constitution, provisional, or other, under which the government of the said proposed State shall, at any time hereafter, be administered; subject, however, to be modified, or annulled, by the agreement of the Legislature of both the said States; but by no other power or body whatsoever.

SEC. 2. Be it further enacted, That the inhabitants of the several towns, districts, and plantations, in the District of Maine, qualified to vote for Governor or Senators, shall assemble in regular meeting, to be notified by warrants of the proper officers, on the fourth Monday of July next, and shall, in open meeting, give in their votes, on this question: "Is it expedient, that the District of Maine shall become a Separate and Independent State, upon the terms and conditions, provided in an act, entitled An act relating to the separation of the District of Maine from Massachusetts Proper, and forming the same into a Separate and Independent State?" And the Selectmen of the towns and districts, and the Assessors of the plantations, shall, in open meeting, receive, sort, count and declare, and the Clerks thereof, respectively shall record the votes given for and against the measure; and the said Selectmen, Assessors and Clerks, respectively, shall record the votes given for and against the measure; and the said Selectmen, Assessors, and Clerks, respectively, shall make out an exact return thereof, under their hands, and shall seal up and transmit the same to the office of the Secretary of this Commonwealth, on or before the fourth Monday of August next. And all returns, not then made, shall be rejected in the counting; and the Governor and Council shall open and examine the said returns, made as aforesaid, and shall count the votes given on the said question: And the Governor shall, by public proclamation, to be made as soon as the state of the votes can be ascertained, after the said fourth Monday of August next, make known the result, by declaring the number of votes appearing in favor of the separation of said District, as aforesaid, and the number of votes appearing against it. And, if the number of votes for the measure shall exceed the number of votes against it, by fifteen hundred, then, and not otherwise, the people of said District shall be deemed to have expressed their consent and agreement, that the said District shall become a Separate and Independent State, upon the terms and conditions above stated; and in case of such majority, the Governor, in his said proclamation, shall call upon the people of said District to choose Delegates to meet in convention for the purposes, and, in the manner hereinafter provided; and in addition to publishing said proclamation, in one or more of the public newspapers printed in Boston, and in the District of Maine, copies of the same, duly authenticated, shall, as soon as can conveniently be done, after the making of the same, be transmitted to the office of the Clerks of the Courts of Common Pleas, in the several counties of the District of Maine, for public examination; and one such copy, at least, shall be transmitted to the Convention of Delegates, hereinafter mentioned, when said Convention shall be formed.

SEC. 3. Be it further enacted, That if it shall be declared by said proclamation, that the said majority of fifteen hundred votes appeared by the returns to be in favor of the separation of the said District as aforesaid; the inhabitants of the several towns and districts, now entitled to send one or more Representatives to the General Court, and all other incorporated towns, shall, on the third Monday of September next, assemble in town meeting, to be notified by warrant of the Selectmen, and shall elect one or more Delegates, (not exceeding the number of Representatives which such town is now entitled to; each town, however, to be at liberty to elect at least one,) to meet Delegates from other towns within the said District, in Convention, for the purpose of forming a Constitution, or frame of Government, for the said District. And at such meeting of the said inhabitants, every person qualified to vote for Senators, shall have a right to vote in the choice of Delegates. And the selectmen shall preside, at such meeting, and shall in open meeting, receive, sort, count and declare the votes, and the Clerk shall make a record thereof, in presence of the Selectmen, and in open meeting. And fair copies of the said record shall be attested by the Selectmen and Town Clerk, and one such copy shall be delivered by the Selectmen to each of the persons duly elected a Delegate.

SEC. 4. Be it further enacted, That the persons so elected Delegates, shall meet in convention, at the Court House, in Portland, in the County of Cumberland, on the second Monday of October next, and they shall be the judges of the returns and elections of their own members, and may adjourn from time to time, and sixty of the persons elected shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business; and the said Delegates shall, as soon as may be, proceed to organize themselves, in Convention, by choosing a President, and such other officers as they may judge expedient, and establishing proper rules of proceedings; and it shall be the duty of the said Convention, to apply to the Congress of the United States, for its assent to be given, before the last day of January next, that the said District shall be admitted into the Union, as a Separate and Independent State. And it shall also be the duty of the said Convention, to form a Constitution, or frame of government, for said new State, and to determine the style and title of the same; and such Constitution, when adopted, and ratified by the people of said District, in the manner hereinafter mentioned, shall, from and after the fifteenth day of March, in the year of our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and twenty, (the consent of the Congress of the United States, then being first had as aforesaid,) be the Constitution of said new State. And the said Convention shall, as soon as may be, after having formed such Constitution, or frame of government, for such new State, cause the same to be published, and sent to the several towns, districts, and plantations, within the said District of Maine; and there shall be a meeting of the inhabitants, in each of said towns, districts, and plantations, to be called and warned by the Selectmen, and Assessors respectively, in due course of law; and on the day named by said Convention, at which meeting, every male inhabitant, having the personal qualifications, herein declared requisite in the election of Delegates to said Convention, shall have a right to vote; and the people so assembled, shall give in their votes in writing, expressing their approbation or disapprobation of the Constitution so prepared, and proposed by said Convention. And the Selectmen of the several towns, and the Assessors of the several districts, and plantations respectively, shall preside at such meetings, and shall receive the votes of all the inhabitants duly qualified as aforesaid, and shall sort and count them in open meeting of the town, district, or plantation; and a fair copy of such record shall be attested by the Selectmen or Assessors, and the Clerk of the town, district, or plantation, respectively, and shall be, by the said Selectmen or Assessors, transmitted and delivered to the said Convention, or to the President thereof, for the time being, or to any Committee appointed to receive the same, on or before the first day of January next; on which day, or within ten days thereafter, the said Convention shall be in session, and shall receive and count all the votes returned, and declare and publish the result; and if a majority of the votes so returned, shall be in favor of the Constitution proposed, as aforesaid, the said Constitution shall go into operation, according to its own provisions; otherwise the constitution of Massachusetts, with the addition of the terms and conditions herein provided, shall be, and be considered as the Constitution of the said proposed state, in case a new Constitution shall not be so adopted and ratified by the people of said District of Maine, the present Constitution of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, shall, with the terms and conditions aforesaid, and with the exceptions hereinafter made, be provisionally, the Constitution or frame of government, for said District; except only such parts of said Constitution of Massachusetts, as relate to the style or title of said State, or may be otherwise inconsistent with, or repugnant to the situation and condition of said new State; and except, that the people of said District shall choose in their Senatorial Districts, as now established, three times the number of Senators now allowed them, and that the Legislature shall choose such a number of Counsellors, not exceeding nine, as they shall determine to be proper. And the said Convention shall designate the place for the first meeting of the Legislature of said new State, and for the organization of its government, and shall appoint a Secretary, pro tempore, for said new State; and the said Convention shall regulate the pay of its members; and the person, authorized by said Convention, may draw upon the treasury of the Commonwealth for the amount of the pay roll, not, however, to exceed the amount of the money paid into the treasury by the several banks within said District, for the tax upon the same, due and payable on the first Monday of October next; and the sum or sums so drawn for, and paid out of the treasury, shall be a charge upon the new State in the division of the property, provided for in the fourth article of the terms and conditions stated in the first section of this act.

SEC. 5. Be it further enacted, That until a Governor of the proposed State shall be chosen and qualified according to the Constitution which may be in operation in said State, the person last chosen President of the said Convention, shall, from and after the fifteenth day of March next, have all the power of the Governor and Council under the Constitution of Massachusetts, until a new Governor shall be chosen and qualified in the said proposed State; excepting only, that the said President shall not have the power to remove from office any officer who may be duly qualified, and executing the duties of his office according to the intent and meaning of this act.

And in order that there may be no failure of justice, and that no danger may arise to the people of the said District of Maine, after the fifteenth day of March next, and before the government of the said State shall be fully organized; therefore,

SEC. 6. Be it further enacted, That all the laws which shall be in force within said District of Maine, upon the fifteenth day of March next, shall still remain and be in force, within the said proposed State, until altered or repealed by the government thereof, such part only excepted as may be inconsistent with the situation and condition of said new State, or repugnant to the Constitution thereof. And all officers, who shall, on the said fifteenth day of March next, hold commissions, or exercise any authority within the said District of Maine, under the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, or by virtue of the laws thereof, excepting only, the Governor, Lieutenant Governor and Council, the Members of the Legislature, and the Justices of the Supreme Judicial Court of the said Commonwealth of Massachusetts, shall continue to have, hold, use, exercise and enjoy, all the powers and authority to them respectively granted or committed, until other persons shall be appointed in their stead, or until their respective offices shall be annulled by the government of said proposed State. And all Courts of Law, whatsoever, within the said proposed State, excepting only the Supreme Judicial Court, shall proceed to hear and determine all causes, matters and things, which are or may be commenced or depending before them, respectively, upon the said fifteenth day of March next, or at any time afterwards, and before the government of the said proposed State shall establish new Courts within the same; and shall continue from and after the said fifteenth day of March next, to exercise the like power and authority, and in like manner as they now by law may do, until such new Courts shall be so established, in their stead.

SEC. 7. Be it further enacted, That all actions, suits, and causes, civil and criminal, and all matters and things whatsoever, that shall, on the said fifteenth day of March next, be in any manner depending in the Supreme Judicial Court of the said Commonwealth of Massachusetts, then last holden within any county in the said District of Maine, and all writs, recognizances, and other processes whatsoever, that may be then returnable to the said Supreme Judicial Court, shall be respectively transferred, and returned to, have day in, and be heard, tried and determined in the highest Court of Law that shall be established in the said new State, by the government thereof; and at the first term of such Court, that shall be held within the county in which such action, writ, process, or other matter or thing, may be so pending or returnable. And in all cases of appeals from any Circuit Court of Common Pleas, or Probate, or other Court, which shall be made after the said fifteenth day of March next, in any action, cause, or suit whatsoever, and which would by law be made to the said Supreme Judicial Court thereof, it shall be sufficient for the appellant to claim an appeal, without naming or designating the Court appealed to; and such appeal shall be entered at the Supreme or Superior Judicial Court, or highest Court of Law, to be established by the government of the said new State, which shall first thereafter be held within or for the county in which such action, cause, or suit may be pending, and shall there be heard, tried, and determined, according to law.

Provided, however, That nothing contained in this section shall be understood or construed to control, in any degree, the right of the people of the said new State, or the government thereof, to establish Judicial Courts, in such manner, and with such authority as they shall see fit; nor to prevent the said people or their government from making any other provisions, pursuant to their Constitution, and not repugnant to the terms and conditions above set forth, respecting all the said actions, suits, processes, matters and things, herein above mentioned, as they shall think most proper, to prevent the discontinuance thereof, and to avoid any delay or failure of justice.

CXXV.

PROCLAMATION FOR A CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION, BY HIS EXCELLENCY, JOHN BROOKS, GOVERNOR OF THE COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS.

AUGUST 24, 1819.

Sources.

In accordance with the provisions of the Act of Separation, the inhabitants of Maine qualified to vote for executive officers assembled on the fourth Monday of July, 1819, to cast their votes upon the question submitted by the General Court of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, "Shall the Legislature be requested to give its consent to the separation of the District of Maine from Massachusetts and the creation of said district into a separate State?" The necessary majority of fifteen hundred having been secured, Governor Brooks issued a proclamation for a constitutional convention to meet at Portland on the second Monday of October, 1819.

The proclamation was printed by H. Niles, "Weekly Register," XVII, 8, 9; also in "The Journal of the Constitutional Convention of the District of Maine, with the Articles of Separation, and Governor Brooks's Proclamation Prefixed" (Augusta, 1856), 17, 18, which is the text adopted.

Text.

WHEREAS by an act of the Legislature of this Commonwealth passed on the nineteenth day of June last, entitled "An act relating to the separation of the District of Maine from Massachusetts proper, and forming the same into a separate and independent State" it is among other things provided, that the inhabitants of the several towns, districts and plantations, in the District of Maine, qualified to vote for Governor or Senators, should assemble in regular meeting to be notified by warrants of the proper officers, on the fourth Monday of July then next, and in open meeting give in their votes on this question,

"Is it expedient that the District of Maine shall become a separate and independent State upon the terms and conditions provided in the act aforesaid?"

And whereas provision is made by said act for the return of the votes so given, both for and against the measure, into the office of the Secretary of this Commonwealth, on or before the fourth Monday of August then next and for the opening, examining and counting of said votes by the Governor and Council;

And whereas it is further provided in said act, that as soon after the said fourth Monday of August as the state of said votes could be ascertained, the Governor should, by public proclamation, make known the result by declaring the number of votes appearing in favor of the separation of said District as aforesaid, and the number of votes appearing against it; and in case the number of votes for the measure should exceed the number of votes against it by fifteen hundred, that the Governor should in his said proclamation, call upon the people of said District to choose delegates to meet in convention for the purposes expressed and in the manner prescribed in said Act;

Now, therefore, I, JOHN BROOKS, Governor of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, do hereby declare and make known, to all whom it may concern, that upon a careful examination in manner aforesaid, of all the votes for and against said measure, duly and legally returned into the Secretary's [Office] conformably to said Act, it appears, that the whole number of votes given in favor of the separation of said District as aforesaid was seventeen thousand and ninety-one, and that the whole number of votes against it was seven thousand one hundred and thirty-two.

And inasmuch as the number of votes for said measure exceeds the number of votes against it by fifteen hundred and upwards, I do hereby, by virtue of the authority given and pursuant to the requisitions contained in said Act, call upon the inhabitants of the several towns and districts now entitled to send one or more representatives to the General Court, and all other incorporated towns in said District of Maine, to assemble in town meeting in their respective towns on the third Monday of September next, to be notified by warrant of the selectmen and elect one or more delegates not exceeding the number of representatives which such town is now entitled to, (each town, however, to be at liberty to elect one,) to meet delegates from other towns within the said District, in convention, at the Court House in Portland, in the County of Cumberland, on the second Monday of October next, for the purpose of forming a constitution or frame of government for the said District, and for other purposes expressed in said Act.

Given under my hand and the seal of the Commonwealth at Boston, this twenty-fourth day of August A. D.

[L. S.] eighteen hundred and nineteen; and in the forty-fourth year of the independence of the United States of America.

JOHN BROOKS.

ACT ADDITIONAL TO THE ACT OF SEPARATION, BY THE GENERAL COURT OF MASSACHUSETTS.

FEBRUARY 25, 1820.

Sources.

All proceedings under the Act of Separation of June 19, 1819, would be null and void unless Maine was admitted into the Union before March 15, 1820. Because debates in the United States Senate over the slavery question in Missouri had prevented the admission of Maine, an act in addition to the Act of Separation arranged not only for an extension of time but also for a provisional government in Maine after the first of April, 1820, in case admission should be long delayed.

The act is in "Laws of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts . . . from May, 1818, to February, 1822" (Boston, 1822), VIII., 425-427; and "Statement on the Part of the United States, of the Case referred, in pursuance of the Convention of 1827 . . ." (printed but not published, Washington, 1829), Appendix V., 60, 61.

The text adopted is that of "Laws of the Commonwealth."

* Adopted Sept. 12, 1898.

Text.

SEC. 1. BE it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives, in General Court assembled, and by the authority of the same, That the consent of the Legislature of this Commonwealth be, and the same is hereby given, that the District of Maine may be formed and erected into a Separate and Independent State, upon the terms and conditions, and in conformity to the enactments contained in an act, entitled "an act relating to the Separation of the District of Maine from Massachusetts Proper, and forming the same into a Separate and Independent State," whenever the Congress of the United States shall give its consent thereto, anything in the said act, limiting the time when such consent should be given, to the contrary notwithstanding: Provided, however, that if the Congress of the United States shall not have given its consent as aforesaid, before the fifteenth day of March next, then all parts of the act, to which this is an addition, and all matters therein contained, which by said act have date or operation from, or relation to the fifteenth day of March next, shall have date and operation from, and relation to the day on which the Congress of the United States shall give its consent as aforesaid; Provided, also, that if the Congress of the United States shall not give its consent as aforesaid, within two years from the fourth day of March next, this present act shall be void and of no effect.

SEC. 2. Be it further enacted, That if it shall not be known on the first Monday of April next, that the Congress of the United States has given its consent as aforesaid, the people of the said District of Maine shall elect, provisionally a Governor, Senators and Representatives, or other officers, necessary to the organization of the government thereof, as a Separate and Independent State, according to the provisions of the constitution of government agreed to by the people of the said District. And the persons so elected, shall assemble at the time and place designated by the said constitution, if the consent of Congress, as aforesaid, shall be given during the present session thereof, but not otherwise; and when assembled as aforesaid, and having first determined on the returns, and qualifications of the persons elected, they shall have the power, as Delegates of the people, for that purpose, to declare on behalf and in the name of the people, the said elections of such persons to be constitutional and valid, for the respective offices and stations, for which they shall have been elected as aforesaid. And if such declaration shall not be made before the persons so elected, shall proceed to transact business, as the Legislature of said State, the said election shall be wholly void, unless it shall appear, that the consent of Congress aforesaid, shall have been given on or before the said first Monday of April next. And if the consent of Congress as aforesaid, shall be given after the said first Monday of April next, and the persons so elected, when assembled as aforesaid, shall not declare the said election valid and constitutional as aforesaid, within ten days from the last Wednesday of May next; then they shall cease to have any power to act in any capacity for the people of the said District, by virtue of their elections as aforesaid; and the people shall again choose Delegates, to meet in convention, in the manner, for the purposes, and with the powers set forth in the third and fourth sections of the act to which this is an addition; the said elections of such Delegates to be made on the first Monday of July next, and the Delegates to meet in convention, at Portland, on the first Monday of September next.

CXXVIII.

ACT FOR THE ADMISSION OF THE STATE OF MAINE
INTO THE UNION, BY THE SIXTEENTH CON-GRESS OF THE UNITED STATES.

MARCH 3, 1820.

Sources.

After the long struggle over the admission of Maine and Missouri had been adjusted by a compromise bill, the act for the admission of Maine to the Union was formally approved March 3, 1820. Maine thus became the tenth legislative state, and the twenty-third state in the Union.

The text of the act is in "Statutes at Large of the United States of America" (Boston, 1850), III., 544; "The Public Laws of the State of Maine, passed by the Legislature at its Session held in January, 1822" (Portland, 1822), 1002; Ben: Perley Poore, compiler, "The Federal and State Constitutions, Colonial Charters, and Other Organic Laws of the United States" (Washington, 1877), 810; and "Statement on the Part of the United States, of the Case Referred, in pursuance of the Convention of 1827. . ." (printed but not published, Washington, 1829), Appendix V., 61.

The text adopted is that of "Statutes at Large," which is the official source.

Text.

WHEREAS, by an act of the state of Massachusetts, passed on the nineteenth day of June, in the year one thousand eight hundred and nineteen, entitled "An act relating to the separation of the district of Maine from Massachusetts proper, and forming the same into a separate and independent state," the people of that part of Massachusetts heretofore known as the district of Maine, did, with the consent of the legislature of said state of Massachusetts, form themselves into an independent state, and did establish a constitution for the government of the same, agreeably to the provisions of said act — Therefore,

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America, in Congress assembled, That from and after the fifteenth day of March, in the year one thousand eight hundred and twenty, the state of Maine is hereby declared to be one of the United States of America, and admitted into the Union on an equal footing with the original states, in all respects whatever.

ARMS AND SEAL OF THE STATE OF MAINE, ADOPTED BY THE FIRST LEGISLATURE OF THE STATE OF MAINE.

JUNE 9, 1820.

Sources.

One of the earliest acts of the legislature of the State of Maine at its first session was to provide a seal and arms for the state. As the description is both interesting and instructive, it is, with the resolve, given a place among these documents, which relate especially to the formation of a sovereign state.

The text adopted is that of "Resolves of the Legislature of the State of Maine at its First Session" (Portland, 1820), 21-23; the description has also been printed by Joseph Williamson, editor, "New England Historical and Genealogical Register" (1883), XXXVII., 43, 44.

Text.

Description of Device, &c. of the SEAL and ARMS of the State of Maine.

A SHIELD, argent, charged with a PINE TREE; a MOOSE DEER, at the foot of it, recumbent. Supporters; on dexter side, an HUSBANDMAN, resting on a scythe; on sinister side a SEAMAN, resting on an anchor.

In the foreground, representing sea and land, and under the Shield, the name of the State in large Roman Capitals, to wit: — MAINE.

The whole surmounted by a Crest, the NORTH STAR. The Motto, in small Roman Capitals, in a label interposed between the Shield and Crest, viz: — DIRIGO.

EXPLANATION.

The MOOSE DEER (Cervus alces) is a native of the forests of Maine. When full grown, it is scarcely inferior to a horse in size. It has a neck, short and thick, a large head, horns dilating almost immediately from the base into a broad, palmated form, a thick, heavy upper lip, hanging very much over the lower, very high shoulders, and long legs. The color is a dark greyish brown, much paler on the legs and under part of the body. The hair is coarse and strong, and is much longer on the top of the shoulders, and ridge of the neck, than on other parts. The eyes and ears are large, the hoofs broad, and the tail extremely short. The greatest height of the Moose Deer is about seventeen hands, and the weight of such an animal about twelve hundred and twenty pounds. In deep snows they collect in numbers in pine forests.

The MAST PINE (Americana, quinis ex uno folliculo setis) leaves five together, cones cylindrical, imbricated, smooth, longer than the leaves, crest of the anthers of two minute, awl-shaped bristles. It is as well the staple of the commerce of Maine, as the pride of her forests. It is an evergreen of towering height, and enormous size. It is the largest and most useful of American Pines and the best timber for masts.

Application of the Emblems, &c.

NAME.

The territory, embraced by the limits of the State, bears the name MAINE.

CREST.

As in the Arms of the United States, a cluster of Stars represents the States, composing the Nation, the NORTH STAR may be considered particularly applicable to the most northern member of the confederacy, or as indicating the situation of the most northern State of the Union.

MOTTO.

“DIRIGO,” I direct, or, I guide. As the Polar Star has been considered the mariner’s guide and director in conducting the ship over the pathless ocean to the desired haven, and the centre of magnetic attraction; as it has been figuratively used to denote the point, to which all affections turn, and as it here is intended to represent the State, it may be considered the citizen’s guide, and the object to which the patriot’s best exertions should be directed.

SHIELD.

The Pine Tree.

The stately Pine, with its straight body, erect head, and evergreen foliage, and whose beauty is exceeded only by its usefulness, while it represents the State, will excite the constant prayer of its citizens, semper viridis.

The Moose Deer.

A native animal of the State, which retires before the approaching steps of human inhabitancy, in his recumbent posture and undisturbed situation, denotes the extent of unsettled lands, which future years may see the abodes of successive generations of men, whose spirit of independence shall be untamed as this emblem, and whose liberty shall be unrestricted as the ranges of the Moose Deer.

The Supporters of the Shield.

An Husbandman with a scythe represents Agriculture generally, and more particularly that of a grazing country ; while a Seaman resting on an anchor, represents Commerce and Fisheries ; and both indicate, that the State is supported by these primary vocations of its inhabitants.

The Committee appointed to report a suitable Device and Seal for the State of Maine, REPORT, a Device for the Seal of the State, a sketch of which, with a description and explanation of the same, are herewith submitted.

They also report the following resolutions :

1. Resolved, That the Secretary of State be directed to procure a suitable Seal, conforming to the sketch aforesaid, and that he cause the Device aforesaid to be engraven thereon, and that said seal, when so completed, be deposited in the office of the Secretary of State, and that the same shall become and be the Seal of this State.

2. Resolved, That the Secretary of State cause the sketch, description and explanation aforesaid, to be fairly copied on parchment and deposited in the office of the Secretary of the State.

AUGUST 17, 1820.

Sources.

Porter, editor, "Bangor Historical Magazine" (Bangor, 1886-87), II., 96-98.

ACT FOR COMPENSATION OF COMMISSIONERS UNDER THE ACT OF SEPARATION, BY THE THIRD
LEGISLATURE OF THE STATE OF MAINE.

FEBRUARY 6, 1822.

Sources.

The act of the legislature of the State of Maine which provided for the payment of commissioners is entitled, "An Act to provide for carrying into effect certain stipulations in the Act for erecting the District of Maine into a separate State." In accordance with Section 5 of the act, the secretary of the State of Maine transmitted a copy to the commonwealth of Massachusetts. The Act of Compensation was passed in concurrence with a similar act by the General Court of Massachusetts, January 29, 1822.

The act is inserted in this collection because it is a link in the chain of obligations connected with the Act of Separation. This text is found in "The Public Acts of the State of Maine, passed by the Legislature at its Session, held in January, 1822" (Portland, 1822), 890, 891.

Text.

SECT. 1. BE it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives, in Legislature assembled, That the Commissioners appointed by virtue of the Act, entitled "An Act relating to the separation of the District of Maine from Massachusetts proper, and forming the same into a separate and independent State," passed the nineteenth day of June, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and nineteen, shall each be entitled to, and receive as compensation for their services, five dollars a day for the time they shall be actually engaged in executing the duties assigned them by virtue of said Act, and for their necessary travel in and about the same, a like sum for every thirty miles travel, the same to include as well their past, as future services; the aforesaid compensation to be in full for their expences as well as their services.

SECT. 4. Be it further enacted, That when the said Commissioners, or a major part of them, shall request the same, the Governor, by and with the advice and consent of Council, be, and hereby is authorized and requested to draw his warrant from time to time for such sum or sums of money, not exceeding said three thousand dollars, as they shall certify to be necessary for the purposes mentioned in the said third section of this Act, in favor of such person or persons as they shall direct.

CXXXII.

AGREEMENT FOR ADJUSTING THE PERSONAL CONCERNS BETWEEN THE TWO STATES, BY THE COMMISSIONERS UNDER THE ACT OF SEPARATION.

MAY 25, 1822.

Sources.

By Article IV., Section 1, of the Act of Separation, the personal concerns of the two states were to be adjusted by commissioners who were to give two-thirds of all the personal property to the commonwealth of Massachusetts and the remaining third to the State of Maine. The assignment by the commissioners, May 25, 1822, divided, on that basis, nearly all the personal property held in common. June 15, 1822, the General Court of Massachusetts passed a resolve for carrying into effect the stipulations of the commissioners. In 1823 bonds and securities of small value necessitated a second division, which gave $281.73 additional to Massachusetts and $140.87 to Maine. A few unassigned securities of no value were lodged with the treasurer of the commonwealth, according to an agreement printed with "Resolves of the Fourth Legislature of the State of Maine" (Portland, 1824), Appendix, 361-363.

The agreement of May 25, 1822, is reprinted from "Resolves of the Third Legislature of the State of Maine" (Portland, 1823), Appendix, 263-265.

Text.

We, the undersigned, Levi Lincoln, James Bridge, George Bliss, Benjamin J. Porter, Lothrop Lewis and Silas Holman, appointed Commissioners under and by virtue of the law of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, entitled "An Act relating to the separation of the District of Maine from Massachusetts proper, and forming the same into a separate and independent State ;” having endeavored faithfully and assiduously at different times, from the first meeting of said Commissioners, on the thirtieth day of October, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and twenty, unto the sixth day of March last, to agree upon the description and amount of all such debts, annuities, indian subsidies or claims which remain due or unsatisfied, and upon the description, amount and assignment of a just portion of the productive property held by said Commonwealth as an equivalent and indemnification therefor: And having made a division of the Military Stores and Ordnance belonging to said Commonwealth on the fifth day of March last: Being unable to agree upon and complete an assignment and division of the residue of said personal property, we adjourned on said sixth day of March last, to meet at Portland on the sixteenth day of May instant, at which time and place we resumed the subject and made further examinations, and in the spirit and with a view to compromise mutually made further concessions. Notwithstanding the difficulty of ascertaining the value and amount of said personal property and the extent of the liabilities of said Commonwealth, we have unanimously agreed upon a settlement, assignment, and division thereof, and have assigned the sum of thirty-seven thousand, four hundred and seventy-one dollars and three cents, estimated by us as a just portion of the productive property to be held by the said Commonwealth, as an equivalent and indemnification to said Commonwealth for all debts, annuities, and indian subsidies or claims due from said Commonwealth, which now remain due, or unsatisfied; except the subsidy or annuity which may be due to the Penobscot tribe of Indians after this present year. All the surplus of the said property, so holden as aforesaid, amounting to the sum of seventy-one thousand nine hundred and ninety-seven dollars and sixteen and a half cents, exclusive of the avails of the Province house, and of the ordnance, arms and military stores, we have divided, and do hereby divide, between the said Commonwealth and the said State, in the proportion of two thirds to the said Commonwealth, and one third to the said State in manner following, to wit; to the State of Maine the sum of Fifteen thousand eight hundred eighty-eight dollars and fifty cents to be paid in cash out of the Treasury of said Commonwealth, and also the one third part in value of all notes, bonds, and securities contained in certain schedules, marked B and C, from the Treasurer of said Commonwealth, made on the sixteenth day of March, 1820, the same to be taken as they stood on the thirteenth day of May instant, and also the one third part in value of all notes, bonds, contracts and securities remaining in the land office of said Commonwealth, as they existed on the same day, to be divided by us, as soon as may be; and also we have divided and assigned to the said State of Maine, all sums of money, dues, claims, and demands belonging to said Commonwealth from the Treasurers of the several Counties, now within the State of Maine, Justices of the Peace, Clerks of the several Courts and County Attornies for the several Counties now in said State, and also from any person or persons who have holden said offices — and also all monies, dues and demands from any person or persons now heretofore Sheriffs or Gaolers of any County of said State, for fines, forfeitures, and bills of costs in criminal prosecutions; together with the ordnance, arms and military stores which we have assigned and set out to said State, according to a schedule signed by Benjamin J. Porter and Silas Holman, bearing date the seventeenth day of May instant, and ratified by us the same day, which accompanies this agreement; all which, with the sum of Fifteen thousand seven hundred and forty-two dollars and twelve cents.

advanced to said State, by said Commonwealth, and that portion of the tax due from the several Banks in said State on the first day of April, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and twenty, which accrued before the sixteenth day of March, in said last mentioned year, heretofore paid into the Treasury of said State, is the full third part and share, as well of the personal property mentioned in said fourth article of said section, as also the avails of the Province house of said Commonwealth, and in full satisfaction of all claims and demands on account of the personal property of said Commonwealth, mentioned in said fourth article of said section; and also of the moiety of seven hundred and nine dollars and seventy-four cents, paid by said State in and about the public lands within said State. And the whole of the residue of said personal property of said Commonwealth, mentioned in said fourth article of said section, of every description and nature whatever, we have divided and do hereby divide to the said Commonwealth, as the just and full two third parts of said property. And it is hereby agreed that the said notes and securities, so divided, and the said monies, dues, claims and demands, so assigned as aforesaid, are to be taken as they are, at the sole risk of the party who shall receive them, without claim or challenge on the other party. And it is further agreed that the said State of Maine, and its officers, shall and may have and use the name and authority of the said Commonwealth and the proper officers thereof, in prosecuting and collecting any of said notes and securities, contracts, debts, dues, claims or demands so divided or assigned to said State, but at the sole and proper risk and charge of said State.

This agreement and division is to be a full and final settlement and adjustment of all personal property, to a portion of which the said State, under said fourth article is or might be entitled; and also of all liabilities and claims for indemnification for which it was thereby made chargeable. Provided however, and it is expressly agreed, that any subsidy or annuity which, after the present year, shall by virtue of the Treaty heretofore made by the said Commonwealth with the Penobscot tribe of Indians, become due and payable, is not hereby adjusted or settled.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, we have set our hands to this agreement in duplicate, this twenty-fifth day of May, in the year of our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and twenty-two.

the islands was published by Joseph W. Porter, editor, "Bangor Historical Magazine" (Bangor, 1887-88), III., 207-209.

The several reports as presented from year to year are included in this compilation to facilitate special study of territorial rights in Maine. The text adopted is that of the "Resolves."

Text.

Whereas, in and by a certain act of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, passed the nineteenth day of June, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and nineteen, entitled "an act relating to the separation of the District of Maine from Massachusetts proper, and forming the same in a separate and independent State," it was among other things enacted that all the lands belonging to the Commonwealth within the District of Maine, should belong, the one half thereof to the said Commonwealth, and the other half thereof to the State to be formed within the said District, to be divided by Commissioners, to be appointed, as in and by the same act was provided, between the respective States in equal shares, or moieties, in severalty, having regard to quantity, situation and quality: And whereas Commissioners, appointed pursuant to said act, have determined in part execution of the powers vested in them by virtue of said act, that the several tracts and parcels of land hereinafter mentioned and described, lying at the date of said act in said District, and now in the State of Maine, should be divided and holden in severalty:

Now therefore, know all men by these presents, that we, Levi Lincoln, James Bridge, George Bliss, Benjamin J. Porter, Silas Holman, and Daniel Rose, Esquires, Commissioners appointed according to the provisions of the aforesaid act, have divided, assigned and set out in severalty, the following tracts and parcels of land, to the Commonwealth

And we have also divided and allotted the following tracts and parcels of land, particularly delineated and laid down in the aforesaid map or plan of said Holman and Rose, and described in their aforementioned report, and the schedules annexed thereto, as lying in the first and second ranges of townships east of said Penobscot river, as herein described, to wit :— River township number one, belonging to the first range of townships north of the Bingham purchase, on the east side of said Penobscot river, containing fourteen thousand six hundred and forty-eight acres ; half township number one, in the said first range, containing twelve thousand one hundred and ninety-one acres ; township number two, in said first range, containing twenty-five thousand four hundred and one acres ; township number three in said range, containing twenty-six thousand and ten acres ; township number four, in said first range, containing thirty-eight thousand four hundred and twenty-four acres : Also half township number six, in said range,

And we have divided and allotted the residue of the lands belonging to the said Commonwealth and the said State, lying in the seventh, eighth and ninth ranges of townships north of the Waldo patent, and west of Penobscot river, except the lots reserved for the future use of government,

REPORT ON LOCATION OF THE SEAT OF GOVERNMENT, BY A COMMITTEE APPOINTED BY THE LEGISLATURE.

JANUARY [13], 1823.

Sources.

The report of the committee appointed according to a resolve of the legislature, February 9, 1822, on the location of a permanent seat of government was presented in favor of Augusta; in 1828 the committee on the location of public buildings made choice of Weston's Hill, or "Capitol Hill;" and in 1829 they adopted the Bulfinch plans for a building similar to the State House in Massachusetts, although on a somewhat reduced scale.

In the history of the State the importance of the public lands is shown by a study of the earlier legislative documents. Although for the erection of the Capitol public lands were appropriated, in 1830, however, rather than to make a further appropriation, the governor in his annual message urged a loan of $25,000 to complete the building.

The report of the committee on the location of the seat of government was printed with "Resolves of the Third Legislature of the State of Maine" (Portland, 1823), Appendix. 288, 289, which is the text adopted.

Text.

To the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Maine:

The Committee appointed in pursuance of a Resolve of this State, of the 8th day of February, 1822, authorizing and directing them "to visit such towns as they might deem proper, and designate some central and suitable place at which the seat of Government may be permanently fixed and established; to ascertain the terms upon which a convenient lot for the accommodation of the State can be obtained; and the time when it will be proper for the Legislature to meet at the place thus to be designated;" ask leave to REPORT:—

That they have attended to the duty assigned them. That they might be enabled more correctly to determine upon the place, which in their opinion would be the most central and suitable for a permanent establishment of the Seat of Government; and ascertain the terms upon which a convenient lot for the accommodation of the State might be obtained; they have visited the following towns, viz: Portland, Brunswick, Hallowell, Augusta, Waterville, Belfast and Wiscasset. In each of those towns, (following the directions of the before mentioned Resolve,) they were received by the respectable inhabitants with the most gratifying politeness; and in each of those towns a choice of very valuable lots are freely offered to the acceptance of the State for the purposes proposed; each of which lots (in the opinion of the committee) is capable of affording not only a convenient, but a very eligible site, for the erection and accommodation of all necessary public buildings. It cannot be necessary, nor perhaps is it expedient, that the committee should report in detail, all the arguments suggested, by situation and circumstances, which have been offered and urged upon the committee in favor of any one of the before mentioned towns, in preference to any other of them, or to any other place. It may be sufficient to observe, that the committee have endeavored to give every consideration its due weight. They are satisfied, that should it be thought most expedient to establish the Seat of Government in any town upon the sea board, Wiscasset is entitled to a decided preference on account of its more central situation, the facility with which it might be defended, in case of an invasion, and the safe and easy access to it by water, at all seasons of the year. Should it be thought most expedient that the Seat of Government be permanently established at some convenient place in the interior, the committee are unanimously of opinion that the site in Augusta, delineated upon a plan marked No. 1, accompanying the proposals offered by the inhabitants of said town, and subscribed by a committee appointed for that purpose, is the most central and suitable place, at which the Seat of Government may be permanently fixed and established. And the committee do respectfully report, That the town of Augusta, in the county of Kennebec, be the place at which the Seat of Government may be permanently fixed and established. And it will be proper for the Legislature to meet at that place, on the first Wednesday of January, which will be in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and *thirty*¹.

All of which is respectfully submitted by

FURTHER DIVISION OF THE PUBLIC LANDS, BY COMMISSIONERS UNDER THE ACT OF SEPARATION.

MAY 21, 1833.

Sources.

The commissioners under the Act of Separation made another division of the public lands, May 21, 1833, having regard, as before, "to quantity, situation, and quality."

¹This Report was amended in the Senate by striking out the words "twenty-seven" and inserting "thirty," and accepted, as amended, by both Houses of the Legislature.

The report was printed with "Resolves of the Fourth Legislature of the State of Maine" (Portland, 1824), Appendix, 364-369, which is the source adopted for this reprint.

Text.

Whereas, in and by a certain act of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, passed the nineteenth day of June, in the year of our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and nineteen, entitled "An Act relating to the separation of the District of Maine from Massachusetts proper, and forming the same into a separate and independent State," it was among other things, enacted that all the lands belonging to the Commonwealth within the District of Maine, should belong the one half thereof to the State to be formed within the said District, to be divided by Commissioners to be appointed, as in and by the same act, was provided, between the respective States in equal shares or moieties in severalty, having regard to quantity, situation, and quality.

Now therefore, know all men by these presents, that we, Levi Lincoln, James Bridge, George Bliss, Benjamin J. CONVENTION FOR THE SETTLEMENT OF BOUNDARIES, BETWEEN THE UNITED STATES AND GREAT BRITAIN.

SEPTEMBER 29, 1827.

Sources.

By the convention between the United States and Great Britain, done at London, September 29, 1827, it was agreed, through the plenipotentiaries of the two powers, that points of difference between the commissioners appointed according to the fifth article of the treaty of Ghent should be referred to some friendly sovereign or state. One result of the convention is the collection of documents in a "Statement on the Part of the United States, of the Case referred, in pursuance of the Convention of 1827 . . ." (printed but not published, Washington, 1829). The convention is in the "Statement," Appendix I., 32-34; "American Annual Register" (New York, 1828), Appendix, 16, 17; "British and Foreign State Papers" (London, 1828), XIV., 1,004-1,008; "House Executive Documents," 19 Cong. 2 sess., No. 53, 6-8; "American State Papers, Foreign Relations" (Washington, 1859), VI., 1,000-1,003; "Statutes at Large of the United States of America" (Boston, 1846), VIII., 362-365; by John H. The text adopted is that of the "Statutes at Large."

Text.

WHEREAS it is provided by the fifth article of the Treaty of Ghent, that, in case the Commissioners appointed under that article for the settlement of the boundary line therein described, should not be able to agree upon such boundary line, the report or reports of those Commissioners, stating the points on which they had differed, should be submitted to some friendly Sovereign or State, and that the decision given by such Sovereign or State, on such points of difference, should be considered by the contracting Parties as final and conclusive: that case having now arisen, and it having, therefore, become expedient to proceed to and regulate the reference, as above described, the United States of America and His Majesty the King of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, have, for that purpose, named their Plenipotentiaries, that is to say: the President of the United States has appointed Albert Gallatin, their Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary at the Court of His Britannick Majesty; and his said majesty, on his part, has appointed the Right Honorable Charles Grant, a member of Parliament, a member of His said Majesty's most Honorably Privy Council, and President of the Committee of the Privy Council for affairs of trade and foreign plantations, and Henry Unwin Addington, Esq. who, after having exchanged their respective full powers, found to be in due and proper form, have agreed to, and concluded the following articles.

Art. 1. It is agreed, that the points of difference which have arisen in the settlement of the boundary between the American and British dominions, as described in the fifth article of the Treaty of Ghent, shall be referred, as therein provided, to some friendly Sovereign or State, who shall be invited to investigate, and make a decision upon, such points of difference.

The two contracting Powers engage to proceed in concert, to the choice of such friendly Sovereign or State, as soon as the ratifications of this Convention shall have been exchanged, and to use their best endeavours to obtain a decision if practicable, within two years after the Arbitrer shall have signified his consent to act as such.

Art. 2. The reports and documents thereunto annexed, of the Commissioners appointed to carry into execution the fifth article of the Treaty of Ghent, being so voluminous and complicated, as to render it improbable that any Sovereign or State should be willing to undertake the office of investigating and arbitrating upon them, it is hereby agreed to substitute for those reports, new and separate statements of the respective cases, severally drawn up by each of the contracting Parties, in such form and terms as each may think fit.

The said statements, when prepared, shall be mutually communicated to each other by the contracting Parties, that is to say : by the United States to His Britannick Majesty's Minister or Charge d' Affaires at Washington, and by Great Britain to the Minister or Charge d' Affaires of the United States at London, within fifteen months after the exchange of the ratifications of the present Convention.

After such communication shall have taken place, each Party shall have the power of drawing up a second and definitive statements, if it thinks fit so to do, in reply to the statement of the other Party, so communicated ; which definitive statements shall also be mutually communicated, in the same manner as aforesaid, to each other, by the contracting Parties, within twenty-one months after the exchange of the ratifications of the present Convention.

Art. 3. Each of the contracting Parties shall, within nine months after the exchange of ratifications of this Convention, communicate to the other, in the same manner as aforesaid, all the evidence intended to be brought in support of its claim, beyond that which is contained in the reports of the Commissioners, or papers thereunto annexed, and other written documents laid before the Commission, under the fifth article of the Treaty of Ghent.

Each of the contracting Parties shall be bound, on the application of the other Party, made within six months after the exchange of the ratifications, of this Convention, to give authentick copies of such individually specified acts of a publick nature, relating to the territory in question, intended to be laid as evidence before the Arbiter, as have been issued under the authority, or are in the exclusive possession, of each Party.

No maps, surveys, or topographical evidence of any description, shall be adduced by either Party, beyond that which is hereinafter stipulated, nor shall any fresh evidence of any description, be adduced or adverted to, by either Party, other than that mutually communicated or applied for, as aforesaid.

Each Party shall have full power to incorporate in, or annex to, either its first or second statement, any portion of the reports of the Commissioners, or papers thereunto annexed, and other written documents laid before the Commission under the fifth article of the Treaty of Ghent, or of the other evidence mutually communicated or applied for as above provided, which it may think fit.

Art. 4. The map called Mitchell's map, by which the framers of the Treaty of 1783 are acknowledged to have regulated their joint and official proceedings, and the map A. which has been agreed on by the contracting Parties, as a delineation of the water courses, and of the boundary lines, in reference to the said water courses, as contended for by each Party respectively, and which has accordingly been signed by the above named Plenipotentiaries, at the same time with this Convention, shall be annexed to the statements of the contracting Parties, and be the only maps that shall be considered as evidence, mutually acknowledged by the contracting Parties, of the topography of the country.

It shall, however, be lawful for either Party, to annex to its respective first statement, for the purposes of general illustration, any of the maps, surveys, or topographical delineations, which were filed with the Commissioners under the fifth article of the Treaty of Ghent, any engraved map heretofore published, and also a transcript of the above mentioned map A, or of a section thereof, in which transcript each Party may lay down the highlands, or other features of the country, as it shall think fit; the water-courses and the boundary lines, as claimed by each party, remaining as laid down in the said map A.

But this transcript, as well as all the other maps, surveys, or topographical delineations, other than the map A, and Mitchell's map, intended to be thus annexed, by either Party, to the respective statements, shall be communicated to the other Party, in the same manner as aforesaid, within nine months after the exchange of the ratifications of this Convention, and shall be subject to such objections and observations, as the other contracting Party may deem it expedient to make thereto, and shall annex to his first statement, either in the margin of such transcript, map or maps, or otherwise.

Art. 5. All the statements, papers, maps, and documents, above mentioned, and which shall have been mutually communicated as aforesaid, shall, without any addition, subtraction or alteration, whatsoever, be jointly and simultaneously delivered in to the arbitrating Sovereign or State, within two years after the exchange of ratifications of this Convention, unless the Arbiter should not, within that time, have consented to act as such; in which case all the said statements, papers, maps, and documents, shall be laid before him within six months after the time when he shall have consented so to act. No other statements, papers, maps, or documents, shall ever be laid before the Arbiter, except as hereinafter provided.

Art. 6. In order to facilitate the attainment of a just and sound decision on the part of the Arbiter, it is agreed that, in case the said Arbiter should desire further elucidation or evidence in regard to any specifick point contained in any of the said statements submitted to him, the requisition for such elucidation or evidence shall be simultaneously made to both Parties, who shall thereupon be permitted to bring further evidence, if required, and to make, each, a written reply to the specifick questions submitted by the said Arbiter, but no further; and such evidence and replies shall be immediately communicated by each Party to the other.

And in case the Arbiter should find the topographical evidence, laid as aforesaid before him, insufficient for the purposes of a sound and just decision, he shall have the power of ordering additional surveys to be made of any portions of the disputed boundary line or territory, as he may think fit; which surveys shall be made at the joint expence of the contracting Parties, and be considered as conclusive by them.

Art. 7. The decision of the Arbiter, when given, shall be taken as final and conclusive; and it shall be carried, without reserve, into immediate effect, by Commissioners appointed for that purpose by the contracting Parties.

Art. 8. This Convention shall be ratified, and the ratifications shall be exchanged in nine months from the date hereof, or sooner, if possible.

In witness whereof, we, the respective Plenipotentiaries, have signed the same, and have affixed thereto the seals of our arms.

FURTHER DIVISION OF THE PUBLIC LANDS
BY COMMISSIONERS UNDER THE ACT OF SEPARATION.

NOVEMBER 7, 1827.

Sources.

The work of surveying lands held by Maine and Massachusetts in common had been carried forward during the year 1827, so that the commissioners under the Act of Separation were able to make still another division November 7, 1827.

The "Doings of the Commissioners" was printed with "Resolves of the Eighth Legislature of the State of Maine" (Portland, 1828), Appendix, 823-826, which is the text adopted.

Text.

Porter, Charles Turner, Reuel Williams, Silas Holman and Daniel Rose, appointed Commissioners pursuant to a certain act of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, passed the nineteenth day of June in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and nineteen, entitled "An Act relating to the separation of the District of Maine from Massachusetts proper, and forming the same into a separate and independent State," to divide all the public lands belonging to the Commonwealth aforesaid in the District of Maine, the one half thereof to the said Commonwealth and the other half thereof to the State of Maine in equal shares or moieties in severalty having regard to quantity, situation and quality, in part execution of the powers vested in us by virtue of said Act have divided, assigned and set out in severalty to said Commonwealth and State respectively the following townships and tracts of land and islands within said state of Maine west of the seventh range of townships west of the monument erected at the source of the St. Croix river according to the survey and plan made by Norris and M'Millan north of the ninth and tenth ranges of townships of the old surveys and of Bingham's Kennebec purchase East of Moosehead Lake ; and of the ten townships surveyed by Neal and M'Kecknie, and south of the line running due west from the monument aforesaid, and of townships heretofore located for the Plymouth Company, the town of Plymouth, the town of Pittston and a line running west from the north west corner of the Pittston location to the East line of the ten townships aforesaid, as surveyed the current year by Joseph Norris and laid down upon his plan thereof dated November eighteen-hundred and twenty seven, and certified by the Commissioners, and described in the field notes and plan of said Norris, and the townships and tracts are to be ascertained by reference to the same ;—to wit, to the said Commonwealth of Massachusetts in the eighth range of townships West of said monument, township numbered one containing eighteen thousand and sixty acres and townships numbered two and three each containing twenty three thousand and forty acres, the tract marked A, partly in the eighth and partly in the ninth ranges of townships containing twenty thousand fifty seven acres, in the tenth range of townships ; township marked B containing seventeen thousand

And we do adjudge that the said lands and islands hereby divided and assigned to the said Commonwealth of Massachusetts and to the said State of Maine respectively, considering their situation and quality, are equal the one to the other.

To have and to hold to the Commonwealth of Massachusetts and to their assigns forever the lands and island above allotted and divided to them, and to the State of Maine and to their assigns forever the lands and islands above allotted and assigned to them in severalty. And it is expressly agreed that the lands and islands so divided, allotted and assigned, are to be taken without allowance for any mistake, former conveyance, or defect of title whatever, and that no claim by one State upon the other shall be made on account of any inequality in said division from any cause whatever.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the said Commissioners have hereunto interchangeably set their hands, and have caused this instrument of division to be recorded this seventh day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and twenty seven.

RESOLVE IN RELATION TO AGGRESSIONS UPON THE NORTHEASTERN FRONTIER, BY THE EIGHTH
LEGISLATURE OF THE STATE OF MAINE.

FEBRUARY 18, 1828.

Sources.

While Maine had been occupied with the work of separation from Massachusetts, the frontier had become involved in hostile relations with New Brunswick. November 9, 1827, Governor Lincoln issued a proclamation with regard to "trespassers on the sovereignty of Maine," urging forbearance and peace, "so that the preparations for preventing the removal of our landmarks, and guarding the sacred and inestimable rights of American citizens may not be embarrassed by any unauthorized acts."

February 18, 1828, the state legislature passed the resolve in relation to aggressions upon the northeastern frontier of the state, which was printed in "Documents relating to the North Eastern Boundary of the State of Maine" (Boston, 1828), 274, 275; and in "Resolves of the Eighth Legislature of the State of Maine" (Portland, 1828), 796, 797.

The text adopted is that of the printed "Documents."

Text.

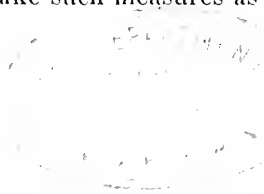

Whereas the sovereignty of this State has been repeatedly violated by the acts of the agents and officers of the Government of the British province of New-Brunswick, and that government, by its agents and officers, has wantonly and injuriously harrassed the citizens of this State, residing on the Northeastern frontier of the same, and within its limits, by assuming to exercise jurisdiction over them, in issuing and executing civil and criminal process against them, by which their property has been seized, and some of them arrested and conveyed out of the State, and subjected to the operation of the laws of that province; in establishing military companies within the territory of this State; imposing fines for neglect of military duty; imposing upon our said citizens an alien tax, and requiring payment of the same; and whereas, by the exercise of the aforesaid unwarranted acts of jurisdiction by the government of the said province, some of our citizens have been deprived of their liberty, their property destroyed, many of them driven from their lands and dwellings, the tranquillity and peace of all of them disturbed, and the settlement and population of that part of the State adjoining said province, greatly retarded, if not wholly prevented: therefore,

Resolved, That the present is a crisis, in which the government and people of this State, have good cause to look to the government of the United States for defence and protection against foreign aggression.

Resolved further, That if new aggressions shall be made by the government of the province of New Brunswick upon the territory of this State, and upon its citizens, and reasonable protection shall not be given by the United States, the Governor be, and he hereby is, requested to use all proper and constitutional means in his power, to protect and defend the citizens aforesaid in the enjoyment of their rights.

Resolved further, That, in the opinion of this Legislature, the Executive of the United States ought, without delay, to demand of the British Government the immediate restoration of John Baker, a citizen of this State, who has been seized by the officers of the Province of New Brunswick, within the territory of the State of Maine, and by them conveyed to Fredericton, in said Province, where he is now confined in prison, and to take such measures as will effect his early release.

Resolved further, That the Governor be, and he hereby is, authorized and requested, with the advice and consent of Council, from time to time, to extend to the family of the said John Baker, such relief as shall be deemed necessary; and he is hereby authorized to draw his warrant on the Treasury for such sum or sums as shall be required for that purpose.

EXTRACT FROM REPORT ON THE BOUNDARY LINE BETWEEN MAINE AND NEW HAMPSHIRE, BY COMMISSIONERS OF THE TWO STATES.

NOVEMBER 13, 1828.

Sources.

After Maine had become an independent state, a new boundary line was run between Maine and New Hampshire by commissioners appointed to make a joint survey of the common boundary. Because of inaccuracies in earlier surveys which were corrected by the new line of 1828, some of the inhabitants of border towns found themselves under the jurisdiction of New Hampshire; from Fryeburg for instance the strip colloquially known as "Fag End" was set off to Conway.

February 28, 1829, the report of the commissioners was approved by the legislature of the State of Maine, and July 1, 1829, in New Hampshire a resolve was passed by the senate and house of representatives in general court convened that the governor by proclamation should make known the course of the new boundary line established by the commissioners. The report was printed with "Resolves of the Ninth Legislature of the State of Maine" (Portland, 1829), 39-43; and by Henry Gannett, "Boundaries of the United States and of the Several States and Territories . . ." (Washington, 1885), 35-38.

The text adopted for this extract from the report is that of the printed "Resolves."

Text.

The Report of the Commissioners appointed by his Majesty's order in Council of February twenty second 1735, and confirmed by his order of the fifth of August 1740, having established, "That the dividing line shall pass up through the mouth of Piscataqua Harbor and up the middle of the river of Newichwannock, part of which is now called the Salmon falls, and through the middle of the same to the farthest head thereof, &c." — and, "that the dividing line shall part the Isle of Sholes, and run through the middle of the Harbor between the Islands to the sea on the southerly side," &c. We have not deemed it necessary to commence our survey until we arrived north, at the head of Salmon falls river; which was determined by Bryant, at his survey in 1740, to be at the outlet of Eastpond, between the town of Wakefield and Shapleigh. From that point we have surveyed and marked the line as follows, viz: We commenced at the Bryant rock, known as such by tradition, which is a rock in the middle of Salmon falls river, at the outlet of Eastpond, about six feet in length, three feet in breadth, three feet in depth and two feet under the surface of the water, as the dam was at the time of the survey, to wit, October 1, 1827, — said stone bears south seventy one degrees west, three rods and eight links from a large rock on the eastern bank marked "1827" — and bears also from a rock near the mill-dam (marked "H") north nineteen degrees and thirty minutes west, and distant twelve rods and twenty one links. At this point the variation of the needle was ascertained to be nine degrees west. From the above stone the line is north seven degrees and forty one minutes east, one hundred and seventy eight rods to Eastpond, and crossing the pond three hundred and eleven rods in width, to a stone Monument, which we erected upon the bank, about three and a half feet high above the surface of the ground, marked N on the west side and M on the east side, which description applies to all the stone monuments hereinafter mentioned, unless they are otherwise particularly described: thence the same course, two hundred and twenty five rods to Fox ridge and to a stone monument, which is placed upon the north side of the road that leads from Wakefield to Shapleigh; thence two hundred rods to Balch's pond; across the pond, one hundred and three and half rods — across a peninsula thirty six rods — across a cove, fifty one rods and seventeen links, across a second peninsula, forty eight rods, across a second cove twenty seven rods ten links; — thence three hundred and seventy rods to the road leading from Newfield to Wakefield, and a stone monument erected on the north side of the same near Campnell's house; thence north six degrees and ten minutes east, five hundred and ninety rods to the line of Parsonsfield to a stone monument with additional mark "1828." At this point the variation of the needle was found to be nine degrees fifteen minutes west; thence same course five hundred and eleven rods crossing the end of Province pond to a stone monument on the Parsonsfield road, near the house of James Andrews, also with additional mark "1828"; thence north eight degrees, and thirty eight minutes east, two hundred and eight rods to the old corner stone of Effingham, about two feet above the ground and not marked; thence north eight degrees, fifty five minutes east, two hundred and seventy seven rods to a large round stone about three feet diameter and two feet high, marked N. and M. by the road upon Towle's Hill; thence north seven degrees fifty five minutes east; six hundred and thirty one rods to a stone monument on the road leading from Parsonsfield to Effingham. At this point the variation of the needle was found to be nine degrees thirty minutes west; thence north five degrees two minutes east, seven hundred thirty four rods to a pine stump upon a small Island in Ossipee river at the foot of the falls ; thence north ten degrees east thirty rods to a stone monument on the north side of the new road from Porter to Effingham ; thence the same course, five hundred fifty eight rods to the top of Bald Mountain ; thence same course three hundred sixteen rods to the top of Bickford Mountain ; thence same course one hundred and ninety three rods to a stone monument on the north side of the road leading from Porter to Eaton. At this point the variation of the needle was found to be nine degrees forty five minutes west ; thence north eight degrees five minutes east, seven hundred and forty four rods to Cragged Mountain ; thence same course sixty seven rods to the corner of Eaton ; thence same course, seven hundred eighty seven and an half rods to the corner of Conway ; thence same course, six hundred ten and an half rods to a stone monument on the south side of the road leading from Brownfield to Conway centre ; thence north eight degrees east, eight hundred seventy one rods to a stone monument on the side of the road leading from Fryeburg village to Conway — at this point the variation of the needle was found to be ten degrees west ; thence same course four rods to a stone monument on the north side of the same road ; thence north eight degrees fifteen minutes east, one hundred two rods to Saco river ; thence same course eighteen rods across said river ; thence same course six hundred forty four rods to a stone monument on the road leading to Fryeburg village, on the north side of the river. This monument is marked as before described and is about eight feet high above the ground ; thence same course one hundred forty two rods to Ballard's Mill Pond ; thence same course sixty one rods six links across said pond ; thence same course three hundred forty four rods to a stone monument on the east side of Chatham road ; thence same course ninety rods to Kimball's Pond; thence same course one hundred thirty six rods across said pond; thence same course one hundred sixty six rods across said pond; thence same course sixty rods to a stone monument on the meadow; thence same course nine hundred forty rods to the corner of Bradley and Eastman's grant; thence same course six hundred and ninety rods to a stone monument on the east side of the cold-river road; this stone is marked as before described, but is not more than two feet above the ground; thence same course one thousand five hundred forty rods to the corner of Warner and Gilman's location a pile of stones: — at this point the variation of the needle was found to be ten degrees twenty three minutes west; thence same course four hundred and fifty rods to top of Mount Royce; thence same course eight hundred ninety eight rods to Wild river; thence same course eight rods across said river; thence same course seven hundred sixty five rods to a stone monument on the north side of the road leading from Lancaster to Bethel; thence same course one hundred rods to Androscoggin river; thence same course eighteen rods across said river; thence north eight degrees ten minutes east, four thousand one hundred sixty two rods across ten streams to Chickwalnepeg river; thence same course two thousand five hundred rods to a stone monument on the north side of the road leading from Errol to Andover; this stone is marked 'N. H.' and 'M'; thence same course two hundred ten rods to Cambridge river; thence same course eight rods across said river; thence same course five hundred sixty seven rods to Umbagog Lake; thence same course ten rods across a peninsula of the same; thence same course two hundred twenty five rods across a bay of said lake; thence same course two hundred six rods across a peninsula of the same; thence same course one thousand one hundred sixty five rods across the north bay of said Lake to a cedar post marked 'N.' 'M.'; thence north eight degrees east seven hundred fourteen rods to pond brook; thence same course two hundred twenty five rods to a stone monument on the south side of the Margalloway river; thence same course ten rods across said river; thence same course one hundred sixty two rods to a spruce, corner of the college grant; thence same course two hundred sixty four rods to Margalloway river a second time. At this point the variation of the needle was found to be eleven degrees forty five minutes west; thence same course ten rods across said river; thence same course two hundred and ninety rods to same river a third time; thence same course across said river ten rods to a monument made with three stones on the north side of said river, about two feet high and not marked; thence same course four hundred forty four rods to corner of township number five in second range in Maine; thence same course one thousand eight hundred six rods to the north corner of the same township; thence same course four hundred and sixty rods to a branch of Little Diamond river; thence same course three hundred fifty rods to another branch of the same; thence same course two thousand one hundred twenty rods to a branch of the Margalloway river; thence same course three hundred thirty two rods to another branch of the same; thence same course four hundred rods to a steep mountain called Prospect Hill; thence same course nine hundred and twenty rods to mount Carmel, sometimes called Sunday mountain; thence same course four hundred rods to a perpendicular precipice; thence same course five hundred and forty rods to a branch of Margalloway river; thence same course two hundred and sixty rods to a branch of the same; thence same course three hundred forty six rods to a second steep precipice; thence same course one hundred eighty six rods to a branch of Margalloway river; thence same course two hundred forty two rods to another branch of the same river; thence same course seventy eight rods to a beaver pond; thence same course one hundred twenty six rods to a yellow birch tree on the highlands which divide the waters that run south from those that run into the St. Lawrence, being the northern extremity of the line, and one hundred and twelve miles two hundred and thirty three rods from the head of Salmon Falls River. Found said tree marked on the east side "M. E. 1789," and on the west "N. H. N. E.," also "M. 54." To these marks we added "N. H." "N. E." and "M. E." "1828" "E. H." "A. M. M." "1828," and stones were piled around the same and marked. The whole course of the line from the Androscoggin river was re-marked by spotting the old marked trees and crossing the spots and marking others in the course: And the line as above surveyed and described, we agree to be the true boundary of said States. And the above described marks and monuments we establish to designate the same, and that the said line hereafter remain the boundary line between the States, unless the Legislature of either State, shall, at the first session after the execution of this agreement, by Resolve disapprove of the same.

EXTRACTS FROM THE AWARD ACCORDING TO THE CONVENTION OF 1827, BY WILLIAM, KING OF THE NETHERLANDS.

JANUARY 10, 1831.

Sources.

After a formal ratification of the convention of 1827, the plenipotentiaries made choice of William, king of the Netherlands, as arbiter of questions submitted under the fifth article of the treaty of Ghent. January 10, 1831, the decision of the arbiter was announced through William Preble, minister of the United States of America at the Hague; March 18 a translation of the award was submitted by the president of the United States to His Excellency Samuel E. Smith, Governor of Maine, and was printed with "Resolves of the Ninth Legislature of the State of Maine" (Portland, 1829), 248-256; also with the "Governor's Message and Documents on the Subject of the Doings of the Arbiter . . ." (printed by order of the Legislature, 1831), Appendix B., 12-22. In both French and English the "award" is bound with a "Statement on the Part of the United States, of the Case referred, under the Convention of 1827 . . ." (printed but not published, Washington, 1829), Supplement, 1-13; a translation is in "American Annual Register" (Boston, 1832), 142-150; also it is printed by Joseph Bouchette. "The British Dominions in North America" (London, 1832), I., Appendix XIX., 489-495; and by Andrew Stuart, "Succinct Account of the Treaties and Negotiations between Great Britain and the United States, relating to the Boundary Line" (London, 1838,) 86-97. A recent text in French and English is found in John Bassett Moore, "History and Digest of the International Arbitrations to which the United States has been a Party, together with Appendices . . ." (Washington, 1898), I., 119-136.

Extracts which relate to the boundary line of Maine are reprinted from the "Resolves."

Text.

William, By the Grace of God, King of the Netherlands, Prince of Orange, Nassau, Grand Duke of Luxembourg, &c. &c. &c.

Having accepted the functions of Arbitrator, conferred upon us by the vote of the Charge d'Affaires of the United States of America, and by that of the Ambassador Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary of Great Britain, to our Minister of Foreign Affairs, under date of the 12th January, 1829, agreeable to the 5th article of the Treaty of Ghent, of the 24th December, 1814, and to the 1st article of the Convention concluded between those Powers at London, on the 29th of September, 1827, in the difference which has arisen between them on the subject of the boundaries of their respective possessions :

Animated by a sincere desire of answering, by a scrupulous and impartial decision, the confidence they have testified to us, and thus to give them a new proof of the high value we attach to it :

Having, to that effect, duly examined and maturely weighed the contents of the first statement, as well as those of the definitive statement of the said difference, which have been respectively delivered to us on the 1st of April of the year 1830, by the Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary of the United States of America, and the Ambassador Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary of His Britannic Majesty, with all the documents thereunto annexed in support of them :

Desirous of fulfilling, at this time the obligations we have contracted in accepting the functions of Arbitrator in the aforesaid difference, by laying before the two High Interested Parties the result of our examination, and our opinion on the three points into which, by common accord, the contestation is divided.

Considering that the three points abovementioned ought to be decided according to the treaties, acts and conventions concluded between the two Powers; that is to say: the Treaty of Peace of 1783, the Treaty of Friendship, Commerce, and Navigation of 1794, the Declaration relative to the River St. Croix of 1798, the Treaty of Peace signed at Ghent in 1814; the Convention of the 29th September, 1827; and Mitchell's Map, and the Map A. referred to in that Convention.

We declare, that, As to the first point, to wit, the question which is the place designated in the Treaties as to the north-west angle of Nova Scotia, and what are the highlands dividing the rivers that empty themselves into the river St. Lawrence from those which fall into the Atlantic Ocean, along which is to be drawn the line of boundary, from that angle to the Northwesternmost head of Connecticut River.

Considering, that the High Interested Parties respectively claim that line of boundary at the South and at the North of the river St. John, and have each indicated upon the Map A, the line which they claim :

Considering, That according to the instances alleged, the term highland applies not only to a hilly or elevated country, but also to land which, without being hilly, divides waters flowing in different directions; and that thus the character more or less hilly and elevated of the country through which are drawn the two lines respectively claimed, at the North, and at the South of the river St. John, cannot form the basis of a choice between them.

That the text of the 2nd article of the Treaty of 1783, recites, in part, the words previously used in the Proclamation of 1763, and in the Quebec Act or 1774, to indicate the Southern boundaries of the Government of Quebec, from Lake Champlain, "In forty five degrees of North Latitude, along the highlands which divide the rivers that empty themselves into the River St. Lawrence from those which fall into the sea, and also along the North coast of the Bay des Chaleurs.”

That in 1763, 1765, 1773, and 1782, it was established that Nova Scotia should be bounded at the North, as far as the Western extremity of the Bay des Chaleurs, by the Southern boundary of the Province of Quebec; that this delimitation is again found, with respect to the Province of Quebec, in the Commission of the Governor General of Quebec of 1786, wherein the language of the Proclamation of 1763 and of the Quebec Act of 1774 has been used, as also in the Commissions of 1786, and others of subsequent dates of the Governors of New Brunswick, with respect to the last mentioned Province, as well as in a great number of maps anterior and posterior, to the Treaty of 1773;¹ and that the 1st Article of the said Treaty specifies, by name, the States whose independence is acknowledged :

But that this mention does not imply (imlique) the entire coincidence of the boundaries between the two Powers, as settled by the following Article, with the ancient delimitation of the British Provinces, whose preservation is not mentioned in the Treaty of 1783, and which owing to its continual changes, and the uncertainty which continued to exist respecting it, created, from time to time, differences between the Provincial authorities :

That there results from the line drawn under the Treaty of 1783 through the great Lakes, west of the River St. Lawrence, a departure from the ancient provincial charters, with regard to the boundaries :

That one would vainly attempt to explain why, if the intention was to retain the ancient provincial boundary, Mitchell's Map, published in 1755, and consequently anterior to the Proclamation of 1763, and to the Quebec Act of 1774, was precisely the one used in the negotiation of 1783 :

That Great Britain proposed, at first, the River Piscataqua as the eastern boundary of the United States ; and did not subsequently agree to the proposition to cause the boundary of Maine, or Massachusetts Bay, to be ascertained at a later period :

That the Treaty of Ghent stipulated for a new examination on the spot, which could not be made applicable to an historical or administrative boundary ;

And that, therefore, the ancient delimitation of the British Provinces, does not, either, afford the basis of a decision :

That the longitude of the Northwest angle of Nova Scotia, which ought to coincide with that of the source of the St. Croix river, was determined only by the Declaration of 1798, which indicated that river :

That the Treaty of Friendship, Commerce and Navigation of 1794, alludes to the doubt which had arisen with respect to the River St. Croix, and that the first instructions of the Congress, at the time of the negotiations which resulted in the Treaty of 1783, locate the said angle at the source of the River St. John :

That the latitude of that angle is upon the banks of the St. Lawrence, according to Mitchell's Map, which is acknowledged to have regulated the combined and official labours of the negotiators of the Treaty of 1783, whereas, agreeably to the delimitation of the Government of Quebec, it is to be looked for at the highlands which divide the rivers that empty themselves into the River St. Lawrence, from those which fall into the sea :

That the nature of the ground east of the before-mentioned angle not having been indicated by the Treaty of 1783, no argument can be drawn from it to locate that angle at one place in preference to another :

That, at all events, if it were deemed proper to place it nearer to the source of the River St. Croix, and look for it, at Mars Hill, for instance, it would be so much the more possible that the boundary of New Brunswick drawn thence northeastwardly would give to that Province several north-west angles, situated farther north and east, according to their greater remoteness from Mars Hill, that the number of degrees of the angle referred to in the Treaty has not been mentioned :

That, consequently, the North-West angle of Nova Scotia, here alluded to, having been unknown in 1783, and the Treaty of Ghent having again declared it to be unascertained, the mention of that historical angle in the Treaty of 1783 is to be considered as a petition of principle (petition de principe), affording no basis for a decision, whereas, if considered as a topographical point, having reference to the definition, viz: "that angle which is formed by a line drawn due North from the source of St. Croix River to the highlands," it forms simply the extremity of the line "along the said highlands, which divide those rivers that empty themselves into the River St. Lawrence, from those which fall into the Atlantic Ocean," — an extremity which a reference to the North-West angle of Nova Scotia does not contribute to ascertain, and which still remaining, itself, to be found, cannot lead to the discovery of the line which it is to terminate :

Lastly, that the arguments deduced from the rights of Sovereignty exercised over the Fief of Madawaska and over the Madawaska settlement — even admitting that such exercise were sufficiently proved — cannot decide the question, for the reason that those two settlements only embrace a portion of the territory in dispute, and that the High Interested Parties have acknowledged the country lying between the two lines respectively claimed by them, as constituting a subject of contestation, and that, therefore, possession cannot be considered as derogating from the right; and that if the ancient delimitation of the Provinces be set aside, which is adduced in support of the line claimed at the North of the river St. John, and especially that which is mentioned in the Proclamation of 1763, and in the Quebec Act of 1774, no argument can be admitted in support of the line claimed at the South of the river St. John, which would tend to prove that such part of the territory in dispute belongs to Canada or to New Brunswick.

Considering; that the question divested of the inconclusive arguments drawn from the nature, more or less hilly, of the ground,—from the ancient delimitation of the Provinces,—from the North-west angle of Nova Scotia, and from the actual possession, resolves itself, in the end, to these: Which is the line drawn due North from the source of the river St. Croix, and which is the ground, no matter whether hilly and elevated, or not, which from that line to the Northwesternmost head of Connecticut river, divides the rivers that empty themselves into the river St. Lawrence from those which fall into the Atlantic Ocean; that the High Interested Parties only agree upon the fact that the boundary sought for must be determined by such a line and by such a ground; that they further agree, since the Declaration of 1798, as to the answer to be given to the first question, with the exception of the latitude at which the line drawn due North from the source of the St. Croix river is to terminate; that said latitude coincides with the extremity of the ground which, from that line to the Northwesternmost source of Connecticut River, divides the rivers which empty themselves into the river St. Lawrence from those which fall into the Atlantic Ocean; and that, therefore, it only remains to ascertain that ground:

That, on entering upon this operation, it is discovered, on the one hand, First, that if, by adopting the line claimed at the North of the river St. John, Great Britain cannot be said as obtaining a territory of less value than if she had accepted, in 1783 the river St. John as her frontier, taking into view the situation of the country situated between the rivers St. John and St. Croix, in the vicinity of the sea, and the possession of both banks of the river St. John in the lower part of its course, said equivalent would, nevertheless be destroyed by the interruption of the communication between Lower Canada and New Brunswick, especially between Quebec and Frederickton; and one would vainly seek to discover what motives could have determined the Court of London to consent to such an interruption :

That if, in the second place, in contra-distinction to the rivers that empty themselves into the river St. Lawrence, it had been proper agreeably to the language used in geography, to comprehend the rivers falling into the Bays of Fundy and des Chaleurs with those emptying themselves directly into the Atlantic Ocean, in the generical denomination of rivers falling into the Atlantic Ocean, it would be hazardous to include into the species belonging to that class the rivers St. John and Restigouche, which the line claimed at the North of the river St. John divides immediately from rivers emptying themselves into the river St. Lawrence, not with other rivers falling into the Atlantic Ocean, but alone; and thus to apply, in interpreting the delimitation established by a Treaty, where each word must have a meaning, to two exclusively special cases, and where no mention is made of the genus (genre), a generical expression which would ascribe to them a broader meaning, or which, if extended to the Schoodiac Lakes, the Penobscot and the Kennebec, which empty themselves directly into the Atlantic Ocean, would establish the principle that the Treaty of 1783 meant highlands which divide as well mediately as immediately, the rivers that empty themselves into the river St. Lawrence from those which fall into the Atlantic Ocean — a principle equally realized by both lines.

Thirdly, That the line claimed at the North of the river St. John does not divide, even immediately, the rivers that empty themselves into the river St. Lawrence from the rivers St. John and Restigouche, but only rivers that empty into the St. John and Restigouche, with the exception of the last part of said line, near the sources of the river St. John, and that hence, in order to reach the Atlantic Ocean, the rivers divided by that line from those that empty themselves into the river St. Lawrence each need two intermediate channels, to wit : the ones, the river St. John and the Bay of Fundy, and the others, the river Restigouche and the Bay of Chaleur :

And on the other hand, That it cannot be sufficiently explained how, if the high Contracting Parties intended, in 1783, to establish the boundary at the South of the river St. John, that river, to which the territory in dispute is, in a great measure, indebted for its distinctive character, has been neutralized and set aside :

That the verb “ divide ” appears to require the contiguity of the objects to be “ divided ” :

That the said boundary forms at its Western extremity, only, the immediate separation between the river Metjar-mettee, and the Northwesternmost head of the Penobscot, and divides, mediately, only, the rivers that empty themselves into the river St. Lawrence from the waters of the Kennebec, Penobscot and Schoodiac Lakes ; while the boundary claimed at the North of the river St. John divides, immediately, the waters of the rivers Restigouche and St. John ; and, mediately, the Schoodiac Lakes, and the waters of the rivers Penobscot and Kennebec, from the rivers that empty themselves into the river St. Lawrence, to wit: the rivers Beaver, Metis, Rimousky, Trois, Pistoles, Green, Du Loup, Kamouraska, Ouelle, Bras St. Nicholas, Du Sud, La Famine and Chaudiere :

That even setting aside the rivers Restigouche and St. John, for the reason that they could not be considered as falling into the Atlantic Ocean, the Northern line would still be as near as to the Schoodiac lakes, and to the waters of the Penobscot and of the Kennebec, as the Southern line would be to the rivers Beaver, Metis, Rimousky and others that empty themselves into the river St. Lawrence; and would, as well as the other, form a mediate separation between those and the rivers falling into the Atlantic Ocean :

That the prior intersection of the Southern boundary, by a line drawn due north from the source of the St. Croix river, could only secure to it an accessory advantage over the other, in case both the one and the other boundary should combine, in the same degree, the qualities required by the Treaties :

And that the fate assigned by that of 1783 to the Connecticut, and even to the St. Lawrence, precludes the supposition that the two Powers could have intended to surrender the whole course of each river, from its source to its mouth, to the share of either the one or the other :

Considering, That, after what precedes, the arguments adduced on either side, and the documents exhibited in support of them, cannot be considered as sufficiently preponderating to determine a preference in favor of one of the two lines respectively claimed by the High Interested Parties, as the boundaries of their possessions from the source of the river St. Croix to the Northwesternmost head of Connecticut River; and that the nature of the difference, and the vague and not sufficiently determinate stipulations of the Treaty of 1783, do not permit to adjudge either of those lines to one of the said Parties, without wounding the principles of law and equity, with regard to the other ;

Considering, That, as has already been said, the question resolves itself into a selection to be made of a ground, dividing the rivers that empty themselves into the River St. Lawrence from those that fall into the Atlantic Ocean : that the High Interested Parties are agreed with regard to the course of the streams delineated by common accord on the Map A. and affording the only basis of a decision ;

And that, therefore, the circumstances upon which such decision could not be further elucidated by means of fresh topographical investigation, nor by the production of additional documents :

We are of opinion, That it will be suitable (il conviendra) to adopt as the boundary of the two States a line drawn due North from the source of the river St. Croix to the point where it intersects the middle of the thalweg¹ of the river St. John, thence the middle of the thalweg of that river, ascending it, to the point where the river St. Francis empties itself into the river St. John, thence the middle of the thalweg of the river St. Francis, ascending it, to the source of its Southwesternmost branch, which source we indicated, on the Map A. by the letter X, authenticated by the signature of our minister of Foreign Affairs, thence a line drawn due West, to the point where it unites with the line claimed by the United States of America and delineated on the Map A, thence said line to the point at which, according to said Map, it coincides with that claimed by Great Britain, and thence the line traced on the Map by the two powers, to the North-westernmost source of Connecticut River.

¹ Thalweg — a German compound word — Thal, valley, and Weg, way. It means here the deepest channel of the river.

Thus done and given under our Royal Seal, at the Hague, this tenth day of January, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and thirty-one, and of our Reign the eighteenth.

ACT TO MODIFY THE ACT OF SEPARATION BY THE ELEVENTH LEGISLATURE OF THE
STATE OF MAINE.

FEBRUARY 19, 1831.

Sources.

Under Article VII. section 1, of the Act of Separation the terms and conditions relating to the administration of ministerial and school funds were strictly defined. The act of February 19, 1831, was designed to give the legislature of Maine greater power in the management of such funds.

The text is from "The Public Acts of the State of Maine, passed by the Eleventh Legislature" (Portland, 1831), 1275, 1276.

Text.

SECT. 1. the same into a separate and independent State," be, and they are hereby, so far modified, or annulled, that the Trustees of any Ministerial or School Fund, incorporated by the Legislature of Massachusetts, in any town within this State, shall have, hold and enjoy their powers and privileges, subject to be altered, restrained, extended or annulled by the Legislature of Maine, with the consent of such Trustees and of the town for whose benefit such fund was established.

SECT. 2. Be it further enacted, That the terms and conditions of the Act aforesaid, be, and they are hereby, so far modified or annulled, that the Legislature of the State of Maine, shall have the power to direct the income of any fund, arising from the proceeds of the sale of land, required to be reserved for the benefit of the Ministry, to be applied for the benefit of primary schools, in the town, in which such land is situate, where the fee in such land has not already become vested in some particular Parish within such town, or in some individual. And this Act shall take effect and be in force, Provided, the Legislature of Massachusetts shall give its consent thereto.

ACT OF SEPARATION MODIFIED, BY THE GENERAL COURT OF MASSACHUSETTS.

JUNE 20, 1831.

Sources.

The "Act to Modify the Act of Separation," which was passed by the legislature of the State of Maine at its eleventh session, was submitted to the General Court of the commonwealth of Massachusetts for ratification, and was approved June 20, 1831, on conditions named in the final clause. The act is included in this collection of Maine documents because it illustrates the relations which the two states held for many years after the formal separation.

The text is reprinted from "Laws of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts" (Boston, 1833), XII., 90-92.

Text.

WHEREAS the legislature of the state of Maine did, on the nineteenth day of February, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and thirty-one, pass an act entitled "an act to modify the terms and conditions of the act of separation," which act of the legislature of the state of Maine is in the following words. "Section 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives, in Legislature assembled, that the terms and conditions mentioned in the act of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, passed on the nineteenth day of June, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and nineteen, entitled, "an act relating to the separation of the District of Maine from Massachusetts proper, and forming the same into a separate and independent state," be, and they are so far modified and annulled, that the trustees of any ministerial or school fund, incorporated by the legislature of Massachusetts in any town within this state, shall have, hold, and enjoy their powers and privileges, subject to be altered, restrained, extended or annulled by the legislature of Maine, with the consent of such trustees, and of the town for whose benefit such fund was established. Section 2. Be it further enacted, That the terms and conditions of the act aforesaid, be, and they are hereby so far modified or annulled, that the legislature of the state of Maine shall have the power to direct the income of any fund arising from the proceeds of the sale of land, required to be reserved for the benefit of the ministry, to be applied for the benefit of primary schools, in the town in which such land is situate, where the fee in such land has not already become vested in some particular parish within such town, or in some individual.—And this act shall take effect and be in force, provided the legislature of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts shall give its consent thereto.” And whereas the Governor of the state of Maine did, pursuant to a resolve of the legislature of that state, transmit to the Governor of this Commonwealth a copy of the aforesaid act, certified by the secretary of state for the state of Maine, with a request that the same might be laid before the legislature of Massachusetts, which having been done, Therefore,

BE it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives, in General Court assembled, and by the authority of the same, That the act of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, passed on the nineteenth day of June, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and nineteen, entitled “An Act relating to the separation of the District of Maine from Massachusetts proper, and forming the same into an independent state,” be so far modified, as to permit an exercise of legislation by the Government of the state of Maine, over the subject of ministerial and school lands within its territorial jurisdiction, granted or reserved for those purposes before the separation of that state from the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, with the restrictions, and upon the conditions expressed in the aforesaid act of the legislature of Maine: provided, that in all such cases the consent of the proprietor or proprietors of such lands shall be previously obtained.

RESOLUTIONS AGAINST ACCEPTING THE AWARD OF WILLIAM, KING OF THE NETHERLANDS,
BY THE TWELFTH LEGISLATURE OF THE STATE OF MAINE.

JANUARY 19, 1832.

Sources.

The award of William, king of the Netherlands, made January 10, 1831, was a compromise rather than an act of arbitration according to the terms of the boundary convention of 1827. By the award boundary lines described according to treaties were rejected and a middle line for the "Highlands" was presented. Inasmuch as the federal government had no right to change the boundaries of a state without its consent, the protest of the State of Maine, which was expressed through the resolutions of January 19, 1832, had a determining influence on the rejection of the award by the senate of the United States.

The resolutions were first printed with the "Report of the Joint Select Committee of the State of Maine of so much of the Governor's Message as Relates to the North-Eastern Boundary" (Augusta, 1832), 6-8; and was reprinted in "Resolves of the Twelfth Legislature of the State of Maine" (Augusta, 1832), 343, 344, which is the text adopted.

Text.

Resolved, That the Constitution of the United States does not invest the General Government with unlimited and absolute powers, but confers only a special and modified sovereignty, without authority to cede to a foreign power any portion of territory belonging to a State, without its consent.

Resolved, “That if there is an attribute of State Sovereignty which is unqualified and undeniable, it is the right of jurisdiction to the utmost limits of State Territory; and if a single obligation under the Constitution rests upon the Confederacy, it is to guaranty the integrity of this territory to the quiet and undisturbed enjoyment of the States.”

Resolved, That the doings of the King of Holland, on the subject of the Boundary between the United States and Great Britain, are not a decision of the question submitted to the King of the Netherlands; and that his recommendation of a suitable or convenient line of boundary is not obligatory upon the parties to the submission.

Resolved, That this State protests against the adoption, by the Government of the United States, of the line of boundary recommended by the King of Holland as a suitable boundary between Great Britain and the United States; inasmuch as it will be a violation of the rights of Maine, — rights acknowledged and insisted upon by the General Government, — and will be a precedent, which endangers the integrity, as well as the independence, of every State in the Union.

Resolved, That while the people of this State are disposed to yield a ready obedience to the Constitution and laws of the United States, they will never consent to surrender any portion of their territory, on the recommendation of a Foreign Power.

Resolved, That the Governor, with advice of Council, be authorized to appoint a competent Agent, whose duty it shall be, as soon as may be, to repair to the City of Washington, and deliver to the President of the United States a copy of the preceding Report and these Resolutions, with a request that he will lay the same before the Senate of the United States; and also to deliver a copy to the Vice President, to each of the Heads of Departments, and to each Member of the Senate, and to our Representatives in Congress.

Resolved, That our Senators in Congress be instructed, and our Representatives requested, to use their best efforts to prevent our State from being dismembered, our territory alienated, and our just rights prostrated, by the adoption of a new line for our North Eastern Boundary, as recommended by the King of Holland.

Resolved, That the Agent to be appointed by the Governor and Council, be instructed to co-operate with our Senators and Representatives, in advocating and enforcing the principles advanced, and positions taken, in the foregoing Resolutions, and in supporting all such measures as shall be deemed best calculated to preserve the integrity of our State, and prevent any portion of our territory and citizens from being transferred to a Foreign Power.

COOPERATION OF MASSACHUSETTS SOLICITED, BY THE TWELFTH LEGISLATURE OF THE STATE OF MAINE.

JANUARY 24, 1832.

Sources.

The intimate relation which existed between Maine and Massachusetts was strengthened by the large amount of public lands still held jointly as well as in severalty by both states, especially upon the frontier, where the work of surveying had been stopped by the disturbed condition of affairs. The twelfth legislature of the State of Maine passed a resolve January 24, 1832, requesting the cooperation of Massachusetts in refusing a new line for the northeastern boundary. February 15 the General Court passed a concurrent resolve to reject the "award" of William, king of the Netherlands.

The text is reprinted from "Resolves of the Twelfth Legislature of the State of Maine" (Augusta, 1832), 344, 345.

Text.

Whereas it appears by the extraordinary recommendation of the King of Holland, acting as Arbitrator on the North Eastern Boundary question, that a portion of our territory, of which the Commonwealth of Massachusetts and the State of Maine are joint owners, is sought to be ceded to Great Britain in violation of the rights of property of the former State, and of the rights of property, as well as sovereignty, of this State; and Whereas a crisis has arrived, which, it is believed, calls for the vigorous and united action of Massachusetts and Maine to save the former from the loss of property and the latter from being dismembered: and

Whereas the people of Maine, recently separated from the Parent State, feel that they will not appeal in vain to the high moral sense, as well as the sympathies, of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts to aid them, at this critical juncture, in preventing their ancient landmarks from being removed, and a portion of their territory and citizens from being wrongfully transferred to a foreign Power; therefore,

Resolved, That the Legislature of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts be requested to co-operate with this State in such measures as shall be best calculated to prevent the adoption of a new line for the Northeastern Boundary of the United States, as recommended by the King of Holland, instead of the old line established by the treaty of seventeen hundred eighty three, whereby a portion of the territory owned by the two States is jeopardized, and the integrity and sovereignty of this State are threatened.

Resolved, That the Governor, with advice of Council, be authorized to appoint an Agent, whose duty it shall be to repair to Boston and deliver to the Executive of Massachusetts a copy of these and other Resolves in relation to the Northeastern Boundary question, passed at this session, with a request that he will lay the same before the Legislature of that Commonwealth, and that he also deliver a copy to each member of the Council and Legislature of the Commonwealth.

RESOLVE RESPECTING THE PUBLIC LANDS HELD IN COMMON BY MAINE AND MASSACHUSETTS, WITH REPORT OF COMMISSIONERS, BY THE TWELFTH LEGISLATURE OF THE
STATE OF MAINE.

MARCH 9, 1832.

Sources.

A plan for the management of the public lands held jointly as well as in severalty by Maine and Massachusetts which was drawn up by the commissioners appointed by the respective states was presented, with resolutions, to the twelfth legislature of the State of Maine, and was approved March 9, 1832; it was accepted and ratified by the General Court of Massachusetts, March 14.

The text is reprinted from "Resolves of the Twelfth Legislature of the State of Maine" (Augusta, 1832), Ch. 119, pp. 439-442.

Text.

Whereas the Commissioners appointed by the respective Governments of Massachusetts and Maine for the purpose of agreeing upon a system for the sale, disposition, and management of the public lands have made Report of their agreement in the words following.

Now we, George W. Coffin the Commissioner appointed on the part of the said Commonwealth, and Daniel Rose, the Commissioner appointed on the part of the State of Maine, pursuant to the authority vested in us, and in execution of the duties assigned to us in and by said Resolves, and our Commissions aforesaid, met at Augusta, in the said State of Maine, on Tuesday the seventeenth day of January, eighteen hundred and thirty two; and having considered the subject matter of our appointment, do agree, without any division of sentiment, to report the following system for the future disposition and management of the public lands, which we believe will advance the interests of both States, by rendering the lands intrinsically more valuable, and consequently more available to their funds; viz: —

That all that section of the State of Maine, which now remains undivided, being the joint property of both States, shall hereafter be placed under the care, supervision and management jointly of the Land Agents of both States, for the time being, with power and authority to cause the same to be explored, from time to time, as they may judge expedient; noting particularly the soil and growth, the situation of the rivers and streams, their capability of affording aids for transportation, and mill privileges, the situation and extent of the mountains and bogs, together with remarks upon the geology of the country, and such other information as can be obtained, indicative of the quality and value of the territory, that the relative qualities of the several sections may be better known and duly appreciated. And that said Agents be authorized and empowered, to dispose of the timber and grass, standing and growing on said territory, in such way and manner as they may consider will best promote the interests of the States; and to sell the land, in lots in such way and manner as will in their judgment be most conducive to the interest of both States, and best promote and expedite the settlement of the Country; and also to sell, in half, or whole townships, any part of said territory, when the wants of the public require them and can be disposed of to advantage; and so long as the same, or any part, remains unsold, to cause it to be protected from the depredations of trespassers, by an adequate supervision of the premises.

And that said Agents be further authorized and empowered to have a road surveyed and constructed, from the north line of the eighth range of townships north of the Waldo patent, in a northerly direction, over the most suitable land they can find for a road, between Moosehead and Chesuncook Lakes, towards the head waters of the Alagash river. And in all sales of land, contracts to be executed jointly by said Agents, on a credit not to exceed five annual payments, secured by notes payable with interest annually; the States to have a lien on all the timber cut on said lands, if any, as security for the payment of said notes; no timber however to be cut unless written permits are first obtained from said Agents. And when said notes are fully paid, and cancelled, said Contracts to have the full effect, and validity of a deed; and unless the notes are paid when due, the Contract to be null and void, and all payments which have been made, to be forfeited to the use of said States. And one moiety of all sums of money, and securities, received for timber, or land, sold according to the foregoing provisions, after deducting the expenses for surveys, explorations, and other incidental charges, shall be placed in the hands of each Agent, for the benefit of their respective States, to be accounted for by each Agent, to the State or Commonwealth which he represents.

And whereas, a very considerable portion of the public lands in Maine, have already been divided, and set off in severalty to each State; and although a separate title, or fee simple is thereby assigned to each State, of the townships so set off, yet in fact, the interest in the territory at large, especially that part which lies north of the monument line, remains the same as before the division took place, and all measures that would have a tendency to facilitate the settlement, and enhance the value before the division was executed, are equally applicable now. The Agents aforesaid, are hereby authorized and empowered, to cause a particular exploration to be made, where the same may be necessary for their information and guidance, of such townships as were surveyed by order of the Commissioners, under the act for the separation of Maine from Massachusetts; and also of the townships lying north, and west of Bingham's Kennebec purchase, and are now unsold, and which are soon likely to be in the market; and when they have obtained such information as will lead to a just estimate of the value of each township, to have them classed in from one to six classes; those that are of the first quality for timber, to be placed in class number one, and those in the next grade, in number two; and those of the first quality for settlement, in the third, and so on, to six classes; and that a minimum price be put upon each class, below which no township, which may hereafter be authorized by the Legislatures to be sold, shall be disposed of, viz: Class number one, at seventy-five cents; number two, at sixty cents; number three, at fifty cents; number four at forty cents; number five, at thirty cents; and number six at twenty cents an acre, after deducting the reservation of the public lots. And said Agents are hereby authorized, from time to time, as their information extends, to admit into the class to which they may belong, such townships as are now remote from the market, and which have not been previously classed; and also place such townships as may have been erroneously estimated at the first valuation, to the class to which they really belong; and transcripts of such valuation, certified by said Agents, shall be delivered to each Agent, that said Agents may proceed to dispose of them, for the benefit of the State which they severally represent, in such way and manner, as they would have done, had not this agreement been made; subject only to the obligation, of not selling at a less price per acre, than the minimum valuation fixed thereon as aforesaid. And such townships as are peculiarly suitable for a settlement, when lotted for that purpose, to be sold in lots, to such persons only, as intend, and will engage to settle and improve the same, to be fixed at the minimum value of fifty cents an acre.

And said Agents are hereby authorized to continue the road that has already been commenced, from Mattawankeag river to the Aroostook river, and also to remove such obstructions in the rivers and streams, and make such other improvements in the territory in general, as in their opinion will add facilities to a settlement of the Country, and provide an easy access to the territory in the interior. Provided, that the expense of such improvements does not exceed the amount of ten per centum, of the amount received for sales of timber, and land; And provided further, that the Executive of either State may suspend the authority of the Agent of that State, in the sale of land, timber, &c., until the meeting of the Legislature, and to the end of the session thereof, unless in the mean time, the Legislature shall otherwise direct the Agent aforesaid. And each State shall be responsible for the fidelity of its own Agent, and shall be accountable to the other, for any pecuniary loss, by reason of the joint sales of the said Agents of any lands, which are not duly accounted for, and the proceeds thereof paid over by the Agent of either State receiving the same, in proportion one to the other.

In testimony whereof we, the said Commissioners, have to this instrument set our hands, this nineteenth day of January, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and thirty-two.

GEO. W. COFFIN,
DANIEL ROSE.

Resolved, That the Legislature of Maine on their part, approve and ratify said agreement and authorize the Land Agent, for the time being, to carry the same into effect, so far as regards this State, Provided, said agreement shall be also ratified and approved by the Legislature of Massachusetts. And provided also that after the expiration of five years from the date of said agreement it shall be competent for the Legislature of either State to discontinue or annul said arrangement, unless both parties should then be satisfied to continue it for a further time.

Resolved, That the Governor be requested to transmit a copy of the foregoing preamble and resolution to the Executive of Massachusetts.

BOND GIVEN TO THE PENOBSCOT TRIBE OF INDIANS, BY COMMISSIONERS OF THE
STATE OF MAINE.

JUNE 10, 1833.

Sources.

The bond given to the Penobscot tribe of Indians, June 10, 1833, was for $50,000 to be deposited for the use of the tribe in lieu of townships purchased from them by the commissioners.

The bond was printed, with Indian treaties, by Joseph W. Porter, editor, "Bangor Historical Magazine" (Bangor, 1886, 1887), II., 99, 100; it was first transcribed from the original document, and printed with "Acts and Resolves of the Twenty-third Legislature of the State of Maine" (Augusta, 1843), 262, 263, which is the text adopted.

Text.

Whereas We, Amos M. Roberts, of Bangor, and Thomas Bartlett, of Orono, in the county of Penobscot, Esquires, commissioners appointed by the governor of Maine, to purchase for said state such of the lands of the Penobscot tribe of Indians as they might be disposed to sell, having met the governor and principal men of said tribe in the council chamber of said tribe, on the 10th day of June, A.D. 1833, for the purpose of purchasing the lands aforesaid, and having discussed the subject of the meeting in open council and there obtained the consent of said tribe to sell their four townships of land to said state, and whereas, the governor and lieutenant governor, by his attorney, by him appointed for that purpose, the councillors and captains of said tribe, then and there executed to said state, under their hands and seals, a deed of said four townships, covenanting for themselves and in behalf of said tribe to warrant and defend the same to the state against the claims of said tribe. Now, therefore, we the commissioners aforesaid, in consideration of the premises have and do hereby covenant with said tribe of Indians, in behalf of the state of Maine, to pay to said tribe the sum of fifty thousand dollars, in the manner following, to wit: said sum of fifty thousand dollars shall be deposited in the states treasury, and the interest, reckoning from the date hereof, shall annually be paid under the direction of the governor and council of said state, through the Indian agent for the benefit of said tribe: provided it should in their opinion, be required for the comfortable support of said tribe, and if at any time at the annual settlement any part of said interest should remain in the treasury, unexpended, it shall be added to the principal of fifty thousand dollars and become a part thereof, and said sum of fifty thousand dollars, together with such increase as it may from year to year receive, and shall forever remain in the treasury an accumulating fund, for the benefit of said tribe.

In witness whereof, we the said commissioners, have hereunto set our hands and seals this 10th day of June, A.D. 1833.

ACT TO ESTABLISH THE MASSACHUSETTS SCHOOL FUND, BY THE GENERAL COURT OF MASSACHUSETTS.

MARCH 31, 1834.

Sources.

The act to establish the Massachusetts school fund is included in this collection of documents relating to the territorial history of Maine that the economic relation of our public lands to the educational interests both of Maine and Massachusetts may be more clearly understood.

The text adopted is that of the "Laws of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts" (Boston, 1836), XIII., 241, 242.

Text.

An Act to Establish the Massachusetts School Fund.

SEC. 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives, in General Court assembled, and by the authority of the same, That, from and after the first day of January next, all monies in the treasury derived from the sale of lands in the state of Maine, and from the claim of the state on the government of the United States for military services, and not otherwise appropriated, together with fifty per centum of all monies thereafter to be received from the sale of lands in Maine, shall be appropriated to constitute a permanent fund for the aid and encouragement of common schools: provided, that such fund shall never exceed one million of dollars.

RESOLVE RELATING TO THE NORTHEASTERN BOUNDARY, BY A COMMITTEE APPOINTED BY THE LEGISLATURE OF THE STATE OF MAINE.

MARCH 30, 1841.

Sources.

The resolves relating to the northeastern boundary, which were presented to the twenty-first legislature of the State of Maine by a committee appointed by the legislature, not only illustrate the condition of affairs on the frontier during the so-called "Madawaska war," but they also represent the sentiment of Maine with regard to the course to be adopted by the federal government.

The resolves were first printed with "Report of the Committee, Charles S. Davis, Chairman, on the Northeastern Boundary, Legislative Documents, 1841," Senate, No. 19, pp. 77-80; and reprinted in "Resolves of the Twenty-first Legislature of the State of Maine" (Augusta, 1841), 637, 638.

The text adopted is that of the "Report."

Text.

Resolved, That the Legislature sees no occasion to renew the declarations heretofore made of the right of this State to the whole of its territory, according to the treaty of 1783, unjustly drawn into question by Great Britain, (entirely recognized by the unanimous Resolutions of Congress in 1838,) nor to repeat its own former Resolutions on the subject. And it regards with grateful satisfaction the strong, increasing and uniform demonstrations, from all parts of the Union, of conviction thereof, and of determination to support the same.

Resolved, That this Legislature adopts and affirms the principles of former Resolves of preceding Legislatures in relation thereto, in all their force and extent; that it approves their spirit, insists on their virtue, adheres to their terms, and holds the National Government bound to fulfil their obligations; that it deprecates any further delay, and cherishes an earnest trust and expectation, that the National Government will not fail, speedily to cause our just rights, too long neglected, to be vindicated and maintained, either by negotiation or by arms.

Resolved, That we truly appreciate the patriotic spirit with which the Federal Government espoused, and our sister States embraced our cause, and the country came to our side, in a most severe and critical emergency; and that, confiding in their continued sympathy and support, and confirmed in the strength of our cause, we feel warranted to rely for safety on the sovereign power of the Union, the people of this State maintaining all their Constitutional rights.

Resolved, That in accordance with the generous examples of our sister States, and not to be behind their free-will offerings on our behalf, this State also voluntarily tenders its whole powers and resources, without reserve, to the supreme authorities of the Union, to sustain our national rights and honor; and it stands ready, furthermore, obeying the call, and abiding the will, of the country, to go forward and occupy that position which belongs and shall be marked out to it; and engages that it will not be wanting in any act, or duty, of devotion to the Union, of fidelity to itself, and, above all, to the common cause of our whole country.

Resolved, That this State is suffering the extreme unresisted wrong of British invasion, begun in 1839, repeated in 1840, and continued to this time, in violation of solemn and deliberate pledges from abroad, guaranteed by our own Executive Government; that the President of the United States, therefore, be requested and called upon to fulfil the obligation of the Federal Constitution, by causing the immediate removal, or expulsion, of the foreign invading force, now stationed within the bounds of Maine; and, other methods failing, to cause military possession to be taken of the disputed territory.

Resolved, That the Government of the United States be earnestly invoked to provide for our future protection against foreign aggression, by proper establishments of military force, upon the frontier, and by the due exertion of its constitutional powers, to liberate and relieve this State from the present heavy burden of its own needful, unavoidable, defence.

Resolved, That the Government of the United States is bound to cause the commission appointed to explore and trace the North-Eastern Boundary line from the North-West angle of Nova Scotia, along those highlands which divide the waters that empty into the river St. Lawrence from those that fall into the Atlantic Ocean, according to the treaty of 1783, to be prosecuted with the utmost speed, vigor, and certainty to its definite and absolute conclusion, and that the same should be completed, and the true line run, and marked, within the period of the present year.

Resolved, That the Governor be requested to transmit a copy of these Resolves, together with this Report, to the President of the United States; and that similar copies of the same be transmitted to the presiding officers of the two branches of Congress, and to the Executives of the several States and the presiding officers of the several Legislatures of said States, and to the Senators and Representatives in Congress of this State and of Massachusetts.

RESOLVE IN FAVOR OF A CONVENTIONAL LINE, BY THE TWENTY-SECOND LEGISLATURE OF THE STATE OF MAINE.

MAY 26, 1842.

Sources.

During the years from 1832, when the award of the king of the Netherlands was waived by both the "interested parties," until 1842, when Maine assented to a compromise, there had been frequent collisions on the frontier. Although the Aroostook, or Madawaska war, called for troops which were sent to the scene of disturbance, the outbreak was a bloodless war: nevertheless it was the occasion of great annoyance and the expenditure of large sums of money.

The printed volumes of "Resolves of the State of Maine" contain valuable material connected with those years of open controversy. Other works are by Albert Gallatin, "The Right of the United States to the North-Eastern Boundary claimed by them" (New York, 1840); Charles S. Daveis, "Report of the Committee on the North Eastern Boundary, Legislative Documents, 1841;" William P. Preble, "The Decision of the King of the Netherlands" (published anonymously, Portland, 1841); Israel Washburn, Jr., "The North-Eastern Boundary," in Maine Historical Society, "Collections," Vol. VIII.; and John G. Deane's map illustrating the loss to Maine by the North-eastern Boundary (1842); in the society's "Collections and Proceedings," Vol. I. In the Library of Harvard University in a bound volume are copies of commissions of the several governors who administered the affairs of the English Provinces from 1769 to 1786: this manuscript volume was used by Mr. Preble while he was minister of the United States at the Court of the Netherlands.

The resolve in favor of a conventional line is printed in "Resolves passed by the Legislature of Maine at the Extra Session, 1842" (Augusta, 1842), 110, 111, also with "House Executive Documents," 27 Cong. 3 sess., No. 2, 67, 68. The text adopted for this reprint is that of the "Resolves."

Text.

Whereas, the preceding legislatures of this state, in conformity with the well settled conviction of all the people thereof, and with incontrovertible evidence before them on the subject, have uniformly declared that the boundary of Maine, on its northern and northeastern frontiers, as designated in the treaty of 1783, can be laid down and fixed according to the terms of that treaty; and that such line embraces all the territory over which this state claims property, sovereignty and jurisdiction; and the executive and Congress of the United States having recognized the validity of that claim in its full extent, this legislature renews such declarations in the most solemn manner; and

Whereas, for a series of years, every attempt to adjust the vexed questions in regard to the establishment of the said boundary having proved ineffectual, it has been represented to the government of this State that the minister plenipotentiary and special of her Britannic Majesty, at Washington, has officially announced to the government of the United States, that he has authority to treat for a conventional line, or line by agreement, on such terms and conditions, and with such considerations and equivalents as may be thought just and equitable; and, that he is ready to enter upon a negotiation for such conventional line as soon as the government of the United States shall say that it is authorized, and ready on its part, to commence such negotiation; and,

Whereas, the government of the United States, not possessing the constitutional power to conclude any such negotiation without the assent of Maine, has invited the government of this State to co-operate to a certain extent, and in a certain form, in an endeavor to terminate a controversy of so long duration :

Now, considering the premises, and believing that the people of this state, after having already manifested a forbearance, honorable to their character, under long continued violations of their rights by a foreign nation ; and, though not disposed to yield to unfounded pretensions, are still willing, in regard to the proposal now made by the general government, to give additional evidence to their fellow citizens throughout the United States of their desire to preserve the peace of this Union, by taking measures to discuss and conclude, if possible, the subject in controversy, in a manner that will secure the honor and interests of the state ; this legislature adopts the following resolutions, with the understanding, however, that, in the event of a failure in such endeavor towards an arrangement, no proceedings thereunder shall be so construed as to prejudice in any manner the rights of the state as they have been herein asserted to exist :

Resolved, That there shall be chosen, by ballot, in convention of both branches of the legislature, four persons who are hereby constituted and appointed commissioners, on the part of this state, to repair to the seat of government of the United States, and to confer with the authorities of that government touching a conventional line, or line by agreement, between the state of Maine and the British provinces, having regard to the line designated by the treaty of 1783 as uniformly claimed by this state, and to the declarations and views expressed in the foregoing preamble, and to give the assent of this state to any such conventional line, with such terms, conditions, considerations and equivalents as they shall deem consistent with the honor and interests of the state ; with the understanding that no such line shall be agreed upon without the unanimous assent of such commissioners.

Resolved, That this state cannot regard the relinquishment by the British government of any claim heretofore advanced by it to territory included within the limits of the line of this state as designated by the treaty of 1783 and uniformly claimed by Maine, as a consideration or equivalent within the meaning of these resolutions.

Resolved, That the said commissioners be furnished by the governor with evidence of their appointment, under the seal of the state.

Resolved, That the governor, by and with the advice and consent of the council, have power to fill any vacancy which may occur in said commission by death, resignation, or otherwise.

Resolved, That the said commissioners make return of their doings herein to the governor, to be by him presented to the legislature at its next session.

EXTRACTS FROM THE TREATY OF WASHINGTON, BETWEEN THE UNITED STATES AND GREAT BRITAIN.

AUGUST 9, 1842.

By the treaty of Washington, August 9, 1842, which is sometimes called from the negotiators the Webster-Ashburton treaty, arrangements were made for the final settlement of boundaries between the different states and the British possessions in North America. Under this treaty Maine and Massachusetts received compensation for all expenses incurred for protection of the frontier, and $300,000 in "equal moieties" for assent to the new boundary line. With the ratification of the treaty the convention of 1827 terminated.

A TREATY

To settle and define the boundaries between the territories of the United States and the possessions of her Britannic Majesty in North America; for the final suppression of the African slave trade; and for the giving up of criminals, fugitives from justice, in certain cases.

Whereas certain portions of the line of boundary between the United States of America and the British dominions in North America, described in the second article of the treaty of peace of 1783, have not yet been ascertained and determined, notwithstanding the repeated attempts which have been heretofore made for that purpose: and whereas it is now thought to be for the interest of both parties, that, avoiding further discussion of their respective rights, arising in this respect under the said treaty, they should agree on a conventional line in said portions of the said boundary, such as may be convenient to both parties, with such equivalents and compensations as are deemed just and reasonable: and whereas, by the treaty concluded at Ghent on the 24th day of December, 1814, between the United States and His Britannic Majesty, an article was agreed to and inserted of the following tenor, viz: "Art. 10. Whereas the traffic in slaves is irreconcilable with the principles of humanity and justice: and whereas both His Majesty and the United States are desirous of continuing their efforts to promote its entire abolition, it is hereby agreed that both the contracting parties shall use their best endeavors to accomplish so desirable an object:" and whereas, notwithstanding the laws which have at various times been passed by the two governments, and the efforts made to suppress it, that criminal traffic is still prosecuted and carried on: and whereas the United States of America and Her Majesty the Queen of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland are determined that, so far as may be in their power, it shall be effectually abolished: and whereas it is found expedient, for the better administration of justice and the prevention of crime within the territories and jurisdiction of the two parties, respectively, that persons committing the crimes hereinafter enumerated, and being fugitives from justice, should, under certain circumstances, be reciprocally delivered up. The United States of America and Her Britannic Majesty, having resolved to treat on these several subjects, have for that purpose appointed their respective plenipotentiaries to negotiate and conclude a treaty, that is to say, the President of the United States has, on his part, furnished with full powers Daniel Webster, Secretary of State of the United States, and Her Majesty the Queen of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland has, on her part, appointed the Right Honorable Alexander Lord Ashburton, a peer of the said United Kingdom, a member of Her Majesty's most honorable Privy Council, and Her Majesty's Minister Plenipotentiary on a special mission to the United States, who, after a reciprocal communication of their respective full powers, have agreed to and signed the following articles :

ARTICLE I.

It is hereby agreed and declared that the line of boundary shall be as follows : Beginning at the monument at the source of the river St. Croix as designated and agreed to by the commissioners under the fifth article of the treaty of 1794, between the governments of the United States and Great Britain ; thence north, following the exploring line run and marked by the surveyors of the two Governments in the years 1817 and 1818, under the fifth article of the treaty of Ghent, to its intersection with the river St. John, and to the middle of the channel thereof ; thence, up the middle of the main channel of the said river St. John, to the mouth of the river St. Francis ; thence, up the middle of the channel of the said river St. Francis, and of the lakes through which it flows, to the outlet of the Lake Pohenagamoock ; thence, southwesterly, in a straight line, to a point on the northwest branch of the river St. John, which point shall be ten miles distant from the main branch of the St. John, in a straight line, and in the nearest direction — but if the said point shall be found to be less than seven miles from the nearest point of the summit or crest of the highlands that divide those rivers which empty themselves into the river St. Lawrence from those which fall into the river St. John, then the said point shall be made to recede down the said northwest branch of the river St. John, to a point seven miles in a straight line from the said summit or crest ; thence, in a straight line, in a course about south, eight degrees west, to the point where the parallel of latitude of forty-six degrees and twenty-five minutes north intersects the south west branch of the St. John ; thence, southerly, by the said branch, to the source thereof in the highlands at the Metjarmette portage; thence, down along the said highlands which divide the waters which empty themselves into the river St. Lawrence from those which fall into the Atlantic ocean, to the head of Hall's stream; thence, down the middle of said stream, till the line thus run intersects the old line of boundary surveyed and marked by Valentine and Collins, previously to the year 1774, as the forty-fifth degree of north latitude, and which has been known and understood to be the line of actual division between the States of New York and Vermont on one side, and the British province of Canada on the other; and from said point of intersection, west, along the said dividing line, as heretofore known and understood, to the Iroquois or St. Lawrence river.

ARTICLE III.

In order to promote the interests and encourage the industry of all the inhabitants of the countries watered by the river St. John and its tributaries, whether living within the State of Maine or the province of New Brunswick, it is agreed that, where, by the provisions of the present treaty, the river St. John is declared to be the line of boundary, the navigation of the said river shall be free and open to both parties, and shall in no way be obstructed by either; that all the produce of the forest, in logs, lumber, timber, boards, staves, or shingles, or of agriculture, not being manufactured, grown on any of those parts of the State of Maine watered by the river St. John, or by its tributaries, of which fact reasonable evidence shall, if required, be produced, shall have free access into and through the said river and its said tributaries, having their source within the State of Maine, to and from the seaport at the mouth of the said river St. John, and to and round the falls of the said river, either by boats, rafts, or other conveyance; that when within the province of New Brunswick, the said produce shall be dealt with as if it were the produce of the said province; that, in like manner, the inhabitants of the territory of the upper St. John, determined by this treaty to belong to Her Britannic Majesty, shall have free access to and through the river, for their produce, in those parts where the said river runs wholly through the State of Maine: Provided, always, That this agreement shall give no right to either party to interfere with any regulations not inconsistent with the terms of this treaty which the Governments, respectively, of Maine or of New Brunswick may make respecting the navigation of the said river, where both banks thereof shall belong to the same party.

ARTICLE IV.

All grants of land heretofore made by either party, within the limits of the territory which by this treaty falls within the dominions of the other party, shall be held valid, ratified, and confirmed to the persons in possession under such grants, to the same extent as if such territory had by this treaty fallen within the dominions of the party by whom such grants were made; and all equitable possessory claims, arising from a possession and improvement, of any lot or parcel of land, by the person actually in possession, or by those under whom such person claims, for more than six years before the date of this treaty, shall, in like manner, be deemed valid, and be confirmed and quieted by a release to the person entitled thereto, of the title to such lot or parcel of land, so described as best to include the improvements made thereon; and in all other respects the two contracting parties agree to deal upon the most liberal principles of equity with the settlers actually dwelling upon the territory falling to them, respectively, which has heretofore been in dispute between them.

ARTICLE V.

Whereas, in the course of the controversy respecting the disputed territory on the northeastern boundary, some moneys have been received by the authorities of Her Britannic Majesty's province of New Brunswick, with the intention of preventing depredations on the forests of the said territory, which moneys were to be carried to a fund called the "disputed territory fund," the proceeds whereof, it was agreed, should be hereafter paid over to the parties interested, in the proportions to be determined by a final settlement of boundaries : It is hereby agreed, that a correct account of all receipts and payments on the said fund shall be delivered to the Government of the United States, within six months after the ratification of this treaty ; and the proportion of the amount due thereon to the States of Maine and Massachusetts, and any bonds or securities appertaining thereto, shall be paid and delivered over to the Government of the United States ; and the Government of the United States agrees to receive for the use of, and pay over to, the States of Maine and Massachusetts, their respective portions of said fund ; and further to pay and satisfy said States, respectively, for all claims for expenses incurred by them in protecting the said heretofore disputed territory, and making a survey thereof, in 1838 ; the Government of the United States agreeing, with the States of Maine and Massachusetts, to pay them the further sum of three hundred thousand dollars in equal moieties, on account of their assent to the line of boundary described in this treaty, and in consideration of the conditions and equivalents received therefor, from the Government of Her Britannic Majesty.

ARTICLE VI.

It is furthermore understood and agreed, that for the purpose of running and tracing those parts of the line between the source of the St. Croix and the St. Lawrence rivers which will require to be run and ascertained, and for marking the residue of said line by proper monuments on the land, two commissioners shall be appointed, one by the President of the United States, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate thereof, and one by Her Britannic Majesty: and the said commissioners shall meet at Bangor, in the State of Maine, on the first day of May next, or as soon thereafter as may be, and shall proceed to mark the line above described, from the source of the St. Croix to the river St. John; and shall trace, on proper maps, the dividing line along said river, and along the river St. Francis, to the outlet of the Lake Pohenagamook; and, from the outlet of the said lake, they shall ascertain, fix, and mark, by proper and durable monuments on the land, the line described in the first article of this treaty; and the said commissioners shall make to each of their respective Governments a joint report or declaration, under their hands and seals, designating such line of boundary, and shall accompany such report or declaration with maps, certified by them to be true maps of the new boundary.

ARTICLE XII.

The present treaty shall be duly ratified, and the mutual exchange of ratifications shall take place in London, within six months from the date hereof, or earlier if possible.

In faith whereof, we, the respective Plenipotentiaries, have signed this treaty, and have hereunto affixed our seals.

Done, in duplicate, at Washington, the ninth day of August, Anno Domini one thousand eight hundred and forty-two.

EXTRACTS FROM REPORT OF THE JOINT COMMISSION OF BOUNDARY, BY COMMISSIONERS UNDER THE TREATY OF WASHINGTON.

JANUARY 28, 1847.

Sources.

The joint commission of boundary, appointed under the treaty of Washington, began its survey in 1843. In the prosecution of its work on the frontier of Maine three hundred men were employed eighteen months, and the area in dispute was estimated at 7,000,000,000 acres. Although Maine had lost five twelfths of the territory in dispute on the northeastern frontier, it was claimed by the commissioners that compensatory advantages were gained on the northwest.

The report of the commission, which was presented January 28, 1847, is in Senate "Executive Documents" 30 Cong., 1 sess., VIII. No. 71, pp. 3-11; and "Report of the Regents of the University on the Boundaries of the State of New York" (Albany, 1884), II., 55-64.

The extracts relating to the Maine boundaries are reprinted from "Executive Documents."

Text.

In obedience with the terms of the treaty, they [the commissioners] met at Bangor in the State of Maine, on the 1st day of May, 1843, where they produced and verified the authority under which they each were respectively to act. They then adjourned, because the weather was not sufficiently open to take the field, to the first of the following month, June, and agreed to meet again at that time at Houlton.

Accordingly, they did meet at that place and began their operations.

It may be desirable to state, at the outset, that, for the sake of convenience, the whole line of boundary marked by the undersigned has been divided, in the mention made of the different portions, into the following grand divisions, viz :

North line, from the source of the St. Croix to the intersection of the St. John.

River St. John, from the intersection of the north line to the mouth of the St. Francis.

River St. Francis, from its mouth to the outlet of Lake Pohenagamook.

Southwest line, from the outlet of Lake Pohenagamook to the northwest branch of the St. John.

South line, from the northwest branch to the parallel of latitude 46 degrees 25 minutes on the southwest branch.

Southwest branch, from the parallel 46 degrees 25 minutes to its source.

Highlands, from the source of the southwest branch of the St. John to the source of Hall's stream.

Hall's stream, from its source to the intersection of the line of Valentine and Collins.

West line, from Hall's stream to the St. Lawrence, near St. Regis, along the line of Valentine and Collins.

To return to the narrative of explorations :

The exploring line of Colonel Bouchette and Mr. Johnson, as directed by the treaty, was traced from the monument at the source of the St. Croix to the intersection of the St. John.

The monument found at the source of the St. Croix, as described in the report of Colonel Bouchette and Mr. Johnson, and the course of their exploring line, was traced by blazes or marks upon the trees.

An old line, cut by the assistant surveyors of Colonel Bouchette and Mr. Johnson, was also found, which terminated about half a mile north of the south branch of the Meduxnekeag, where, by records to which the undersigned referred, they ascertained that it had been abandoned, because of its deviation from the exploring line of Colonel Bouchette and Mr. Johnson.

After the exploration and re-marking of the north line, it was cut out thirty feet wide. The same was afterwards done in all parts where the boundary line passed through woodland. After thus opening the north line, it was surveyed; and iron posts were erected at intervals to mark it.

The general bearing of the line was rather to the west of the meridian of the monument at the source of the St. Croix. The precise line laid down by the undersigned was determined by successive courses, of which each was made to be as long as was convenient, provided it did not pass out of the opening of thirty feet.

At each angle of deflection an iron monument was erected, and placed anglewise with the line. Other monuments were erected at the crossing of roads, rivers, and at every mile, commencing from the source of the St. Croix. Those which were not intended to mark angles of deflection were placed square with the line.

At the intersection of the St. John by the north line, the river is deep and broad. The boundary runs up the middle channel of the river, as indicated by the maps, dividing the islands as follows :

No. 2.	King's island	United States

No. 17.	Honeywell's island	United States
No. 18.	Savage and Johnson's island	United States
No. 19.	Grew's island	United States
No. 20.	Kendall's island	Great Britain

The islands were distributed to Great Britain or to the United States, as they were found to be on the right or left of the deep channel. There was but one doubtful case, La Septieme isle, and that was apportioned to the United States, because the majority of the owners were ascertained to reside on the United States side of the river.

Monuments were erected upon the islands, marking them for Great Britain or the United States, as the case may have been.

After leaving the St. John, the boundary enters the St. Francis, dividing the islands at the mouth of that river in the manner shown in the maps. It then runs up the St. Francis, through the middle of the lakes upon it, to the outlet of Lake Pohenagamook, the third large lake from the mouth of the river. At the outlet, a large monument has been erected.

In order to determine the point on the northwest branch to which the treaty directed that a straight line should be run from the outlet of Lake Pohenagamook, a survey of that stream was made, and also of the main St. John, in the neighborhood of the mouth of the northwest branch, ascertained by the survey to be ten miles in the nearest direction from it, and the distance was afterward verified by chaining.

It was ascertained, also, in accordance with the provisions of the treaty, by a triangulation of the country towards the Highlands dividing the waters of the St. Lawrence and of the St. John, that more than seven miles intervened between the point selected on the northwest branch and the crest of the dividing ridge. A large iron monument was afterwards erected on the point thus selected, and the space around was cleared and sown with grass-seed. It is a short distance below the outlet of Lake Ishaganalshegeck.

The outlet of Lake Pohenagamook and the point on the northwest branch, designated by the treaty, having been thus ascertained and marked in the spring of 1844, a straight line was run between them. Along that line, which passes entirely through forest, monuments were erected at every mile, at the crossings of the principal streams and rivers, and at the tops of those hills where a transit instrument had been set up to test the straightness of the line.

As soon as the parallel of latitude 46 degrees 25 minutes had been determined on the southwest branch, in the early part of the summer of 1844, a straight line was drawn from the boundary point on the northwest branch to a large monument erected on the left bank of the southwest branch, where it is intersected by the parallel of latitude 46 degrees 25 minutes. The line so drawn crosses the southwest branch once before it reaches the parallel of latitude 46 degrees 25 minutes, and at about half a mile distance from that parallel. There, also, a large monument had been set up on the left bank.

From the intersection of the parallel 46 degrees 25 minutes, the boundary ascends the southwest branch, passes through a lake near its head, and so up a small stream which falls into the lake from the west, to the source of that stream, which has been selected as the source of the southwest branch.

On the southwest branch there are two principal forks, at each of which two monuments have been erected; one on each bank of the river, immediately above the forks, and upon the branch established as the boundary. The maps point out their positions. At the mouth of the small stream selected as the source of the southwest branch, a monument has been erected upon a delta formed by two small outlets. Above those outlets three other monuments have been placed, at intervals, upon the same stream.

Upon the crest of the dividing ridge, very close to the source of the southwest branch, a monument has been erected. It is the first point in the Highlands, and from it the boundary runs along the crest, in a southerly direction, passing near the southeastern shore of the Portage lake, and so on to a large monument erected on a small eminence on the east side of the Kennebec road. Thence it passes through a dwelling-house, called Tachereau's, which was standing there at the time the line was run; so by a tortuous course, it runs to the top of the Sandy Stream mountain; thence, inclining to the southwest, it runs over Hog's Back the first, as shown in the map; thence towards Hog's back the second, which it leaves on the north side. Further on, at the head of Leech lake, there is a stream which divides its waters and flows both into Canada and into the United States. The boundary has been made to run up that stream a short distance from the fork, where the waters divide to a second fork; thence between the streams which unite to form that fork, and then to ascend again the dividing ridge. A monument has been erected at the fork first mentioned, where the waters divide.

As the boundary approaches the valley of Spider river, it bends to the southeast, and, by a wide circuit over high and steep hills, it turns the head of Spider river; thence it bends to the northwest, until it approaches within about four miles of Lake Megantic; thence it turns again south, having the valley of Arnold's river on the right, and of Dead river on the left. It leaves Gasferd mountain in Canada, threads its way over very high ground between the head of Arnold's river and the tributaries of the Magalloway; inclines them to the north, to the west, over very rocky, mountainous, and difficult country, leaving Gipp's Peak in the United States, and turns by a sharp angle at Saddle Back, to the south. After that it again inclines to the west, and then to the south, and again to the west, and passes the head of the Connecticut. . . .

In conclusion, the undersigned have the honor to report, that the line of boundary described in the foregoing statement has been run, marked, and surveyed, and the accompanying maps faithfully constructed from that survey.

The undersigned take leave to add, that the most perfect harmony has subsisted between the two commissions, from first to last, and that no differences have arisen between the undersigned in the execution of the duties entrusted to them.

Signed and sealed in duplicate, at the city of Washington, this twenty-eighth day of June, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and forty-seven.

ACT FOR THE SETTLEMENT OF BOUNDARIES BETWEEN THE PROVINCES OF CANADA AND NEW BRUNSWICK, BY THE PARLIAMENT OF GREAT BRITAIN.

Sources.

After the commissioners of boundary under the treaty of Washington had made a report to their respective governments an act for the settlement of boundaries between the provinces of Canada and New Brunswick was passed by the parliament of Great Britain August 7, 1851, and received her Majesty's assent; February 18, 1852, the general assembly of the province of New Brunswick passed an act "to annex the territory awarded by arbitrators and to alter boundary lines."

The act for the settlement of boundaries is found in "The Statutes of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland" (London, 1851), XCI., 304, 305; and as an "inclosure" with despatch from Earl Gray to Govern-General, the Earl of Elgin and Kincardine, in "Journals of the Legislative Assembly of the Province of Canada" (1852-53), Appendix Z. Z., No. 11.

Since the act describes the western boundary of New Brunswick it is inserted among the documents which relate to the territorial history of Maine.

ACT FOR THE SALE OF PUBLIC LANDS IN THE STATE OF MAINE, BY THE GENERAL COURT OF MASSACHUSETTS.

MAY 25, 1853.

Sources.

Although there had been attempts to dispose of the public lands within the State of Maine which belonged to the commonwealth of Massachusetts, the act passed by the General Court, May 25, 1853, in response to proposals made by the State of Maine through Governor Hubbard, was the first decisive step. When, in accordance with the act, an advertisement for the sale of public lands had been inserted by the land agent of Massachusetts in the leading papers of both states, and sealed proposals were called for, it was evident that Massachusetts would sell her public lands in Maine at the earliest opportunity.

The act of sale is reprinted from "Acts and Resolves passed by the General Court of Massachusetts, in the year 1853" (Boston, 1853), 618, 619.

Text.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court assembled, and by the authority of the same as follows:

SECT. 1. The land agent of this commonwealth, with the concurrence of the commissioners appointed by the act of eighteen hundred and fifty, chapter 307, and the acts of 1851, chapter 190, is hereby authorized to sell, for such price and on such terms as they may deem for the interest of the commonwealth, all the timber and lands now remaining unsold in the state of Maine, and belonging to this commonwealth: provided, however, that in case of the sale of said timber and lands, or of any part thereof, on credit, the security to be received for the payment of the purchase money shall be made entirely satisfactory to said land agent and commissioners, wholly independent of any lien upon said timber or lands.

SECT. 2. Prior to the sale of the fee in any township or tract of land to any other party excepting the state of Maine, it shall be the duty of the land agent to offer the same to such person or persons as have already become purchasers of the timber on such township or tract of land, at such prices and on such terms as the said land agent and the commissioners may deem reasonable, and such purchasers of the timber shall have a reasonable time, not exceeding three months, to determine whether they will become the purchasers of the fee in such township or tracts.

SECT. 3. The land agent shall give public notice that all the public lands and timber now belonging to this commonwealth in the state of Maine, are for sale, in parcels not exceeding two townships to any one person or party; and it shall not be lawful to sell more than two townships to any one purchaser or party until after the first day of February of the year one thousand eight hundred and fifty-four: provided, however, that this limitation shall not apply to sales to the state of Maine, nor to sales to such parties as may have already become purchasers of the timber, to whom the fee is to be offered under the provisions of the second section of this act.

SECT. 4. Prior to making any sale of such lands, or of the timber thereon, as may now be held in severalty by Massachusetts or jointly with the state of Maine, the land agent and commissioners aforesaid shall offer to the state of Maine, for such time and on such terms as they shall deem reasonable, the right to become the purchaser thereof.

SECT. 5. After the first day of February of the year one thousand eight hundred and fifty-four, it shall be lawful for the land agent and commissioners to sell all the timber and lands in the state of Maine, belonging to this commonwealth, to any one or more purchaser or purchasers.

SECT. 6. So much of the third section of the act of 1851, chapter 190, as forbids the sale of the fee in the public lands, is hereby repealed.

SECT. 7. This act shall take effect from and after its passage.

[Approved by the Governor, May 25, 1853.]

RESOLVE FOR PURCHASE OF THE RESIDUE OF PUBLIC LANDS, BY THE THIRTY-SECOND LEGISLATURE OF THE STATE OF MAINE IN EXTRA SESSION.

SEPTEMBER 28, 1853.

Sources.

The definite action taken by the General Court of Massachusetts during the session of 1853 made it necessary for Maine to take a decisive and final step to retain the land that really belonged to her by territorial right. Massachusetts was no more desirous to dispose of the public land than Maine was to secure it. Although in 1832, in response to a report presented to the legislature, a resolve had been passed in favor of purchasing, the unsettled condition of the frontier had delayed action.

A contract for the purchase was arranged by commissioners in Boston, July 23, 1853, which was ratified in September.

The resolve was printed in "Acts and Resolves passed by the Extra Session of the Thirty-second Legislature, 1853, and the Thirty-Third Legislature of the State of Maine" (Augusta, 1854), ch. LXXXII, pp. 87, 88.

Text.

Resolved, That the contract for the purchase of all the lands belonging to the Commonwealth of Massachusetts situate in the State of Maine, entered into at Boston on the twenty-third day of July, eighteen hundred and fifty-three, by and between E. M. Wright, Jacob H. Loud, David Wilder, junior, commissioners, and Samuel Warner, junior, land agent of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, in behalf of said commonwealth, and Reuel Williams, W. P. Fessenden, and Elijah L. Hamlin, commissioners of Maine in behalf of said state, be and the same is hereby ratified and confirmed.

Resolved, That to provide for the payment of the purchase money for said lands, there be and hereby is appropriated out of any money in the treasury not otherwise appropriated the sum of one hundred twelve thousand five hundred dollars, and for the balance thereof, being two hundred and fifty thousand dollars, the treasurer of state is hereby authorized and directed to issue payable to the treasurer of said commonwealth or his successor in office, in Boston, certificates of stock therefor in sums not less than ten thousand dollars each, with coupons for each year's interest at the rate of five per cent. per annum attached thereto, which certificates shall be signed by him as treasurer, countersigned by the governor and attested by the secretary of state with the seal of the state, but the coupons shall be signed by the treasurer only — and said stock shall be redeemable at such times as, in the opinion of the treasurer, shall be most advantageous to the state, not exceeding twenty years.

Resolved, That the governor of this state, by and with the advice and consent of council, be, and he hereby is, authorized to draw his warrant on the treasurer of state for the sum of one hundred twelve thousand five hundred dollars, in favor of the treasurer of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts payable on the fifth day of October next. And the treasurer of state is also authorized and directed to deliver to the treasurer of said commonwealth the certificates of stock provided for by the second resolve, bearing date the fifth day of October, eighteen hundred and fifty-three, provided the authorities of said commonwealth shall be ready to deliver a good and sufficient deed to convey to the State of Maine the lands belonging to said commonwealth, lying in the State of Maine, including all claims upon settlers, according to the contract of said commissioners mentioned in the first resolve, which said deed shall first be examined and approved by the commissioners on the part of the State of Maine.

EXTRACTS FROM THE RECIPROCITY TREATY BETWEEN THE UNITED STATES AND GREAT BRITAIN.

JUNE 5, 1854.

Sources.

By the treaty between the United States and Great Britain, June 5, 1854, not only were provisions made for a commission to adjust disputes in relation to fisheries, but rights of commerce, especially of lumbermen on the river St. John, were also regulated. In practice, however, it was found that the "Reciprocity Treaty" was detrimental to the agricultural interests of Maine. In 1862 and the following years the legislature passed resolutions in favor of a new arrangement "which shall be more just and equal, and properly guard and protect the great interests of this State which are injuriously affected by the present treaty." The Reciprocity treaty, however, continued in force until March 17, 1866, when it was terminated in accordance with provisions in Article V.

The treaty is in "Statutes at Large of the United States of America" (Boston, 1855, X., 1089-1092; and John H. Haswell, compiler, "Treaties and Conventions concluded between the United States of America and Other Powers since July 4, 1776" (Washington, 1889), 448-453.

The articles relating to fishing and commerce are reprinted from "Statutes at Large."

Text.

ARTICLE 1. It is agreed by the high contracting parties that, in addition to the liberty secured to the United States fishermen by the abovementioned convention of October 20, 1818, of taking, curing, and drying fish on certain coasts of British North American colonies therein defined, the inhabitants of the United States shall have, in common with the subjects of her Britannic Majesty, the liberty to take fish of every kind, except shell-fish, on the sea-coasts and shores, and in the bays, harbors, and creeks of Canada, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, Prince Edward's Island, and of the several islands thereunto adjacent, without being restricted to any distance from the shore, with permission to land upon the coasts and shores of those colonies and the islands thereof, and also upon the Magdalen Islands, for the purpose of drying their nets and curing their fish: provided that, in so doing, they do not interfere with the rights of private property, or with British fishermen, in the peaceable use of any part of the said coast in their occupancy for the same purpose.

It is understood that the abovementioned liberty applies solely to the sea-fishery, and that the salmon and shad fisheries, and all fisheries in rivers and the mouths of rivers, are hereby reserved, exclusively, for British fishermen.

And it is further agreed, that in order to prevent or settle any disputes as to the places to which the reservation of exclusive right to British fishermen, contained in this article, and that of fishermen in the United States, contained in the next succeeding article, apply, each of the high contracting parties, on the application of either to the other, shall, within six months thereafter, appoint a commissioner. The said commissioners, before proceeding to any business shall make and subscribe a solemn declaration that they will impartially and carefully examine and decide, to the best of their judgment, and according to justice and equity, without fear, favor, or affection to their own country, upon all such places as are intended to be reserved and excluded from the common liberty of fishing, under this and the next succeeding article, and such declaration shall be entered on the record of their proceedings.

The commissioners shall name some third person to act as an arbitrator or umpire in any case or cases on which they may themselves differ in opinion. If they should not be able to agree upon the name of some such third person, they shall each name a person, and it shall be determined by lot which of the two persons so named shall be the arbitrator and umpire in cases of difference or disagreement between the commissioners. The person so to be chosen to be arbitrator or umpire shall, before proceeding to act as such in any case, make and subscribe a solemn declaration in a form similar to that which shall already have been made and subscribed by the commissioners, which shall be entered on the record of their proceedings. In the event of the death, absence, or incapacity of either of the commissioners, or of the arbitrator or umpire, or of their or his omitting, declining, or ceasing to act as such commissioner, arbitrator or umpire, another and different person shall be appointed or named as aforesaid to act as such commissioner, arbitrator, or umpire, in the place and stead of the person so originally appointed or named as aforesaid, and shall make and subscribe such declaration as aforesaid.

Such commissioners shall proceed to examine the coasts of the North American provinces and of the United States, embraced within the provisions of the first and second articles of this treaty, and shall designate the places reserved by the said articles from the common right of fishing therein.

The decision of the commissioners and of the arbitrator or umpire shall be given in writing in such case and shall be signed by them respectively.

The high contracting parties hereby solemnly engage to consider the decision of the commissioners conjointly, or of the arbitrator or umpire, as the case may be, as absolutely final and conclusive in each case decided upon by them or him respectively.

ARTICLE 2. It is agreed by the high contracting parties that British subjects shall have, in common with the citizens of the United States, the liberty to take fish of every kind, except shell-fish, on the eastern sea-coasts and shores of the United States north of the 36th parallel of north latitude, and on the shores of the several islands thereunto adjacent, and in the bays, harbors, and creeks of the said sea-coasts and shores of the United States and of the said islands, without being restricted to any distance from the shore, with permission to land upon the said coasts of the United States and of the islands aforesaid, for the purpose of drying their nets and curing their fish: provided that in so doing, they do not interfere with the rights of private property, or with the fishermen of the United States, in the peaceable use of any part of the said coasts in their occupancy for the same purpose.

It is understood that the abovementioned liberty applies solely to the sea fishery, and salmon and shad fisheries, and all fisheries in rivers and mouths of rivers, are hereby reserved exclusively for fishermen of the United States.

ARTICLE 3. It is agreed that the articles enumerated in the schedule hereunto annexed, being the growth and produce of the aforesaid British colonies or of the United States, shall be admitted into each country, respectively, free from duty:

ARTICLE 4.

And it is further agreed, that no export duty, or other duty, shall be levied on lumber or timber of any kind cut on that portion of the American territory in the State of Maine watered by the River St. John and its tributaries, and floated down that river to the sea, when the same is shipped to the United States from the province of New Brunswick.

ARTICLE 5.

The present treaty shall take effect as soon as the laws required to carry it into operation shall have been passed by the Imperial Parliament of Great Britain and by the Provincial Parliaments of those of the British North American colonies which are affected by this treaty on the one hand, and by the Congress of the United States on the other. Such assent having been given, the treaty shall remain in force for ten years from the date at which it may come into operation, and further, until the expiration of twelve months after either of the high contracting parties shall give notice to the other of its wish to terminate the same; each of the high contracting parties being at liberty to give such notice to the other at the end of the said term of ten years, or at any time afterwards.

It is clearly understood, however that this stipulation is not intended to affect the reservation made by article 4 of the present treaty, with regard to the right of temporarily suspending the operation of articles 3 and 4 thereof.

ARTICLE 7. The present treaty shall be duly ratified, and the mutual exchange of ratifications shall take place in Washington, within six months from the date hereof, or earlier if possible.

In faith whereof, we, the respective plenipotentiaries, have signed this treaty, and have hereunto affixed our seals.

Done in triplicate, at Washington, the fifth day of June, Anno Domini one thousand eight hundred and fifty-four.

EXTRACTS FROM REPORT OF A SURVEY OF THE EASTERN BOUNDARY OF NEW HAMPSHIRE,
BY THE SURVEYORS APPOINTED BY THE TWO STATES.

DECEMBER 21, 1858.

Sources.

Although the boundary line between Maine and New Hampshire had been carefully surveyed in 1828, forest fires had obliterated the old landmarks, and the adjustment of boundary difficulties with Great Britain on the northern line had made it possible to estimate the value of lands in that section. To avoid litigation in 1858 the legislative bodies in both states passed enactments for a new survey from Fryeburg, Maine, to the Canada line.

Extracts from the report of the surveyors are reprinted from John M. Wilson and Henry O. Kent, "Report on the Eastern Boundary of New Hampshire" (Concord, 1859), 17-24; it is also in Henry Gannett, "Boundaries of the United States and of the several States and Territories . . ." (Washington, 1885), 38-40.

During the year 1874 a later survey of the line was made for the purpose of correcting any variations, and marking the boundaries; that report is printed by J. H. Huntington and A. P. Gordon "Report of the Survey of the Boundary between Maine and New Hampshire" (Concord, 1875), 6-9.

The text adopted for the survey of 1858 is that of the printed "Reports."

Text.

The resolutions cited above authorized the marking of the dividing line, between the two States, from the town of Fryeburg to the Canada line; and as that line was marked by former commissioners in 1828, the undersigned did not feel themselves at liberty to make alterations, or to straighten it where curvatures existed; but simply to mark anew, and where the original monuments were effaced and destroyed, to connect by a straight line the two nearest remaining monuments of the reliability of which there could be no doubt. During the continuance of the work, offsets were discovered, but the existence of the distinguishing mark of the old survey, left no doubt of their authenticity, and as the commissioners under whose direction the work was formerly done, established the line marked by them as the true line in the words following, "The whole course of the line from the Androscoggin river, (North) was re-marked by spotting the old marked trees, and crossing the spots, and marking others on the route, and the line as above surveyed and described, we agree to be the true boundary line of said States, and the above described marks and monuments we established to designate the same, and that the said line hereafter remain the boundary line between the States, unless the Legislature of either State shall, at the first session after the execution of this agreement, by resolve, disapprove of the same;" and the Legislature having by their action ratified the agreement, the line, however irregular, became the boundary between the two States, and the undersigned, in conformity with their instructions, felt it their duty to follow it. The report following describes the position and course of the line as re-marked, and the old marks and monuments, as well as those made and established by us. . . . The point commenced at is an iron post situated on a line run in accordance with the "Treaty of Washington, of August 9th, 1842," as the boundary between the United States and the province of Canada, at the corners of the States of Maine and New Hampshire. On the south face of said post are the words, "Albert Smith, U. S. Comsrr;" on the north face, "Lt. Col. I. B. B. Eastcourt, H. B. M. Comsrr;" on the west face, "Boundary, Aug. 9th, 1842," on the east face, "Treaty of Washington." To the marks we added, on the southern half of the west face, "H. O. Kent;" a large flat stone was placed at the southern face of the monument, and marked, "1858 — N. H., Me.;" on either side of a line cut in said stone, bearing the direction of the State line, viz: south, eight degrees west. From this point the line is south, eight degrees west, seventeen rods, seven links, to a large yellow birch stubb, the northern terminus of the former survey; thence one hundred and twenty-six rods to a beaver pond; thence seventy-eight rods to the northwesterly branch of the Magalloway, known as Kent River; thence two hundred and forty-two rods to another branch of the Magalloway; thence one hundred and eighty-six rods to a certain steep precipice, perpendicular on its southern face; thence three hundred and forty-six rods, to a branch of the Magalloway River; thence two hundred and sixty rods to another branch of the same; thence five hundred and forty rods to a precipice, the southern side of Mount Abbott; thence four hundred rods to the summit of Mount Carmel; thence nine hundred and twenty rods, and across four streams, to the summit of Prospect Hill. On this distance we marked a yellow birch tree, "H. O. Kent, Sept. 20th, 1858," and the names of the remainder of the party; thence four hundred rods to another branch of the Magalloway; thence three hundred and thirty-two rods to the Little Magalloway River; thence two thousand one hundred and twenty rods across Bosebuck mountain to a branch of said river. On this distance, at the north-west corner of township No. 5, range 3, in Maine, we marked a white birch tree, "N. H., M.," and on its north and south sides, "IV., III." Thirty rods from the summit of Bosebuck mountain, and on its northern slope, we erected a stone monument, marked "N., M.;" thence three hundred and fifty rods to the Little Diamond River, or Abbot Brook; thence four hundred and sixty rods to the north-west corner of township No. 5, range 2, in Maine. On this distance we found an ancient yellow birch tree, marked "1789 — 35 m.;" to those marks we added "1858;" thence one thousand eight hundred and six rods, to the south-west corner of the same township. On this distance, at the north-east corner of Dartmouth College Second Grant, in N. H., we marked a large, yellow birch tree, "Me., J. M. W., 1858; N. H., H. O. K.;" thence, and across an open bog four hundred and forty-four rods to the north bank of the Magalloway River, to a white maple tree marked "N. H.," "M.;" thence ten rods across said river to a large pine tree, marked "M.," "N. H.;" thence and across a second open bog, two hundred and ninety rods to the same river, and to a large elm stubb; thence ten rods across said river; thence two hundred and sixty-four rods to a spruce post marked "M.," "N. H.," "W. L.," "D. C.," being the south-east corner of Dartmouth College Second Grant; thence one hundred and sixty-two rods to the Magalloway River; thence ten rods across said river to a stone monument on its southerly side, standing about three feet above the ground, and marked "M.," "N. H.;" thence to the original line tree nearest to the clearing of the home farm of Z. F. Durkee, Esq. The course of the line the entire distance from the iron post at the national boundary to this point, bears south eight degrees west; thence across said clearing, the old line marks being gone, south eleven degrees and thirty minutes west, one hundred and sixty-eight rods, to the old crossed trees in the woods south of Pond Brook; thence from Pond Brook, south eight degrees west, seven hundred and fourteen rods to the north bay of Umbagog Lake, and to a cedar tree marked "M.," "N." To this we added "1858."

On this distance, near the corner of Errol and Wentworth's Location, which is a cedar post in a pile of stones, we marked a maple tree, "M. 1858;" "N. H., 1858;" thence south ten degrees and thirty minutes west, one thousand one hundred and sixty-five rods, across the north bay of said lake to the old marked trees on the southern shore; thence south eight degrees west, two hundred and six rods, across a peninsula to a cedar tree marked, "M.," "N. H." A large stone also, on the lake shore, was marked "M"., N. H.;" thence, same course, two hundred and twenty-five rods across a bay of said lake; thence, same course, ten rods across a peninsula; thence same course, thirty-four rods across a cove; thence, same course, five hundred and sixty-seven rods to Cambridge River; thence, same course, eight rods across said river to a white maple stubb; thence, same course, two hundred and ten rods to a stone monument on the north side of the road leading from Andover, Me., to Colebrook, N. H.; thence, same course, to the north edge of the burnt land in Grafton and Success; thence south, eleven degrees west, across ten streams, and the Chickwalnepy River, or Silver Stream, to the old line trees bearing the crosses, easterly of the south end of Success Pond; thence, on the same course south, ten degrees west, following the old mark, to an ash tree bearing the original cross, standing a few rods north of the house of the late Daniel Ingalls, in Shelburne; thence south, eleven degrees west, to a stone monument by the road on the north side of the Androscoggin River, and to the north bank of said river, the whole distance from the stone monument near Umbagog Lake, to the north bank of the Androscoggin River, being six thousand six hundred and sixty-two rods; thence south, eleven degrees west, eighteen rods across said river; thence same course, one hundred rods, crossing the track of the Grand Trunk Railroad, to a stone monument on the north side of the road leading from Lancaster, N. H., to Bethel, Me.; thence, same course, seven hundred sixty-five rods to a hemlock tree on the south bank of Wild River: thence south, sixty-six degrees, thirty minutes west, thirty-four rods on an off-set of the old survey along said south bank to the old line trees; thence following the old line trees south, eleven degrees west, passing the south-east corner of Shelburne, eight hundred ninety-eight rods to the top of Mount Royce, the whole distance being one thousand eight hundred and eighty-one rods. One mile north of the summit of Mount Royce we marked a beech tree, "N. H." "M." "1858;" thence to a large stone marked "N. H." "M.": thence south ten degrees, fifteen minutes west, to a stone monument on the east side of the Cold River Road. On this distance, at the foot of the first precipice on the northern face of Mount Royce, a white birch tree was marked "1858." Further on and east of a bare ledge, a white birch tree was marked "1858," and near it, on the line, a pile of stones was erected. At the first clearing, near the north end of a stone fence, a large stone was marked "M. N. H.": thence, along a stone fence and across a road, through a piece of new growth, and again crossing the road, then following another stone fence on the east side of the road, passing through a field and by the end of another stone fence: thence crossing a road near the west end of a bridge over Cold River: then following the valley of that stream and crossing it six times; then crossing another road where we placed a stone monument; then through a field, striking an old stump and pile of stones, shown as the old line, and passing between a house and barn — and through the western edge of a grove of trees, to the stone monument near the house of Mr. Eastman — the whole distance being one thousand one hundred and ninety rods; thence, one thousand six hundred and thirty rods, to a stone monument standing in the meadow, sixty rods north of the north shore of Kimball's Pond, in Fryburgh, but as the towns of Fryburgh and Stowe have erected no durable monuments on the State's line at their respective corner, we deemed it advisable, under our instructions, to proceed as far south as at least to pass the said corner, and to complete the work at some well defined monument of the old survey. This course bore from the monument to and across an open bog, south, twelve degrees west: thence on the old trees south, nine degrees west, to a stone monument erected by us, near the house of James Clay, in Chatham, and on the north side of the road leading from Stowe to Chatham corners,—said monument is marked "M. N. H., 1858, "; thence on the old line south, eleven degrees west, to the road leading from North Fryburgh to Chatham, at which point we placed a stone monument; thence south, eleven degrees west—to the north-west corner of Fryburgh—being a stake in a pile of stones, in a piece of low ground, southerly of the house of Capt. Bryant, and to the old monument sixty rods north of Kimball's Pond. On the bank north of said corner, on the south side of the road, and near Capt. Bryant's house, we placed a stone monument, marked "M. N. H." "1858."

The different courses laid down in the foregoing Report, are the present bearings of the compass when placed on the line established in 1828. By referring to the report of that survey, it will be perceived that the entire distance from Wentworth's Location to the National Boundary, the bearing is the same, no variation existing,—while from that point southward, a variation of from one to four degrees was discovered, as will be seen by a comparison of the two Reports. The line being now so well defined, both by the old monuments existing, and those added by us, we deemed best, under the tenor of the resolution, to follow the line by the compass, and give its bearings at the present time, rather than to make repeated experiments upon the variation between the true and magnetic meridian, which would be of no practical benefit, as the line, as now marked, must be followed until the States by special enactment shall effect a change in its location.

As the resolution accompanying, contemplated specially, the marking of the line, and as the distance between the termini was formerly chained, and all the courses marked by monuments at present enduring, we did not feel ourselves authorized to incur the additional expense of chaining anew the whole distance.

All doubtful points were, however, located, and all monuments placed in accordance with the Report above, and the distances, when added, as they have been by us, to the distances laid down in the former Report, give a correct series of courses and distances between the two extremities of the line.

The line was marked by the erection of stone monuments at all road crossings and noticeable points where none before existed, and by retouching the old monuments. Many large and prominent trees were blazed and marked on either side "N. H." "M.", and the names of various members of the party were added, together with the date, "1858."

Aside from the monuments described above, the whole course of the line was marked by spotting the old marked trees, and all others on the route, and by marking the spots with a double cross, X thus, and the under brush was cleared away so as to enable one to follow the line by a continual observance of the spots.

It is believed that the line above described is now sufficiently marked and designated to afford a distinguishable and permanent dividing line, which will subserve all the purposes of the two States equally well as a more expensive system of monuments.

ACT TO PROVIDE MEANS FOR DEFENCE OF THE NORTHEASTERN FRONTIER, BY THE THIRTY- THIRD LEGISLATURE OF THE STATE OF MAINE.

MARCH 24, 1864.

Sources.

After the adjustment of boundary difficulties by the treaty of Washington, the citizens of Maine were awake to the importance of frontier defences. Not only was a garrison needed at Fort Kent, but a military road was demanded. Different memorials and petitions were presented both to the State legislature and to the secretary of war. Although the legislature made occasional appropriations to erect bridges on the road from the American line, it was not until 1864 that any fully defined plan was reached. In the construction of a military railway the state was to furnish aid by a grant of public lands which were still a fruitful source of revenue; in 1865 Massachusetts assigned to Maine all remaining claims held jointly by the two states against the federal government. As the act of 1864 provided also for immigration on favorable terms it has a two-fold relation to the interests of the state of Maine. Subsequent legislative enactments illustrate the further progress of the European and North American Railway scheme.

The text adopted is that of "Acts and Resolves of the Forty-third Legislature of the State of Maine" (Augusta, 1864), Ch. 401, pp., 387-390.

Text.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in Legislature assembled, as follows :

SECT. 1. Whereas, the legislature of Maine by resolves unanimously adopted and approved by the Governor on the thirty-first day of January, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and sixty-three, asked protection of the United States government in the language following : " Maine expects and earnestly demands, that measures be taken at once by the general government for the protection of its northeastern frontier, and that this can be accomplished only by a military railroad from Bangor to the St. John river," it is hereby enacted, that to aid in the construction of such a line of railway, the proceeds of the sale of timber on ten townships of the public lands of this state, which townships shall be designated under the direction of the governor, state treasurer and land agent, who are constituted a board for this purpose, shall be paid into the treasury of the state for the use of the European and North American Railway Company, upon the terms and conditions hereinafter expressed, and the timber on these ten townships shall be advertised in a newspaper having the largest circulation in the counties where located, and three months in two newspapers having the largest circulation in the cities of Portland and Bangor. Sealed proposals shall be received by the governor, state treasurer and land agent, and a record of the proposals be made and kept in the land office, which shall be open to any one after the day of sale, and said sale shall be in one-eighth sections of townships ; and all moneys, securities or lands received on account of the claims of Maine upon the United States government which accrued prior to eighteen hundred and sixty, viz: The claims for interest on moneys heretofore received from the United States for the value of lands assigned to occupants under the fourth article of the treaty of Washington, and for timber cut on the territory formerly in dispute between the United States and Great Britain, after deducting the expenses for obtaining the same, shall be paid into the treasury of the state for the use of the European and North American Railway Company, on the terms and conditions hereinafter expressed.

SECT. 2. As soon as said railway company shall have constructed and completed its line by the running of cars from Bangor to Lincoln, and have notified the governor of the state of that fact, and that said company has located its line to the boundary of New Brunswick, and is ready to proceed with the further construction of said railway, it shall be lawful for the governor to approve of said location, and to notify said company of the same, and thereupon the said company shall be entitled to the benefit of the provisions of this act; and thereafter as soon as said company shall construct and complete by the running of cars, ten additional miles of railway from Lincoln toward the mouth of the Mattawamkeag, the governor shall pay over to said company such sum as may then be in the hands of the treasurer derived from the proceeds of such sales of timber; and of such claims, at the rate of ten thousand dollars per mile for said ten miles, or pro rata for any sum then in hand, less than at the rate of ten thousand dollars per mile, and so on from time to time at the rate of ten thousand dollars per mile, or pro rata, as fast as an additional ten miles is completed, until the line shall be completed from Bangor to the boundary line of New Brunswick; and as soon as said railway company shall locate a line from some point in embranchment thereof in a northerly direction toward the Aroostook river, and complete ten miles from said main line by the running of cars thereon, the governor shall pay to said company at the rate of ten thousand dollars per mile, or pro rata, for each mile of railway so built and completed from their main line in a northerly direction, from the proceeds of the lands and claims hereinbefore set forth, and so on from time to time as an additional ten miles shall be completed by the running of cars, until the entire line of said railway shall be completed to the northern boundary of the state, with a branch line to the St. John river at Woodstock.

SECT. 3. In case the commonwealth of Massachusetts shall assign and transfer to the European and North American Railway Company, or to the state of Maine in trust for said company, the claims jointly held by her with Maine against the general government, to aid the construction of said railroad, and also release and discharge or assign and transfer the balance due from the state of Maine for the purchase of her interests in the public lands lying in Maine, under date October fifth, eighteen hundred and fifty-three, it shall be lawful for the governor, state treasurer and land agent to transfer to said company all the public lands lying on waters of the Penobscot and St. John River, for the uses and purposes set forth in this act. Provided, however, that there shall be excepted from said conveyance and from the operations of this act, all timber and lumber and lands granted or voted by the present or any preceding legislature, reserving to the state the right to locate such grants within the present year of our Lord eighteen hundred and sixty-four, or within the time or times limited therefor in the several acts or resolves granting the same, all lands heretofore reserved or set apart for public schools, and all lands set apart and designated for settlement under existing laws; and all the lands set apart for the purposes of settlement, shall be sold to settlers, upon the same terms and conditions by the land agent, as is now authorized by law. And it is further provided, that all lands conveyed to said company under this act, which are in the opinion of the governor, state treasurer and land agent, suitable for settlement, shall be surveyed into lots by said company, of suitable sizes for the purposes of settlement, not exceeding one hundred and sixty acres to any one lot, which lands shall be open to settlers at a price not exceeding one dollar per acre, on condition of a continued residence thereon for five years, and performance of such settling duties as are now required by the state. And said company is charged with the duty of encouraging immigration into the state, and shall be required to appoint a suitable emigrant agent, and annually publish such plans, statements and other information, as shall give to the public a better knowledge of the extent, value and situation of the public lands of Maine, now open for settlement, and cause this information to be printed in our own and other languages, and distributed into other states of this Union, and into foreign lands. And the legislature of this state shall have the right at all times to inquire into the manner in which these trusts are executed, and to pass any laws that may be necessary, and to impose fines and penalties to secure a compliance with the provisions, liabilities and duties herein before set forth and enjoined. Providing and excepting, that no lands belonging to the state of Maine, lying within the county of Piscataquis, shall be taken by virtue of this act for the purpose of aiding in the construction of the trunk line of the European and North American Railway; but that all of said lands lying in said county of Piscataquis, shall be and are hereby appropriated under the limitations and restrictions relating to other lands herein granted, and shall be applied in aid of the construction of a branch of said railway extending to the slate quarries in the valley of the Pleasant river at Brownville, and to the Katahdin Iron works, from any point on the line of said railway between Oldtown and Lincoln, as provided in section two of "an act authorizing the further extension of the European and North American Railway" Feb. 20, 1864, passed at the present session of the legislature.

SECT. 4. All benefits of this act shall be forfeited by said European and North American Railway Company, upon the appropriation and use of the proceeds of timber or lands hereby granted to any other purpose than the construction of the main line of said railway or branches into Aroostook and Piscataquis counties.

SECT. 5. This act shall take effect on its approval by the governor.

Approved March 24, 1864.

ACT TO PROMOTE IMMIGRATION AND FACILITATE THE SETTLEMENT OF PUBLIC LANDS, BY THE FIFTIETH LEGISLATURE OF THE STATE OF MAINE.

FEBRUARY 24, 1871.

Sources.

The attention of the Legislature of the State of Maine had been repeatedly called to the northeastern frontier, especially during the Civil War which diverted "numbers of the industrious and valuable men of Maine from peaceful pursuits of private life to public services, thereby diminishing important departments of mechanical and agricultural employments, the restoration of which would be of incalculable profit." In recognition of the fact that "the strength and prosperity of a state depend immediately upon its population," practical steps were taken to establish a colony of Scandinavians upon the unoccupied lands of the frontier. The success of the colony at New Sweden is well known. Particulars of the first twenty-five years are narrated by William Widgery Thomas "The Story of New Sweden as told at the Quarter Centennial Celebration of the Founding of the Swedish Colony in the Woods of Maine, June 25, 1896" (Portland, 1896).

The legislative enactments which extend through a series of years are here represented by the Act of February 24, 1871, which is reprinted from "Acts and Resolves of the Fiftieth Legislature of the State of Maine" (Augusta, 1871), 157, 158.

Text.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in Legislature assembled, as follows :

SECT. 1. There shall be a board of immigration in this state, composed of the governor, secretary of state and land agent.

SECT. 2. It shall be the duty of said board to appoint a commissioner of immigration, an agent resident in Sweden, and an agent resident in New Sweden, Maine, and to exercise a general supervision over the expenditure of all moneys appropriated by this act.

SECT. 3. It shall be the duty of said commissioner to collect statistics and other useful information concerning the climate, soil, productions and resources of the state, the amount and location of unsettled lands in Maine, the terms offered by the state to settlers, together with the condition and progress of the colony at New Sweden, and such other information as he may deem proper, and cause the same to be translated into the Swedish language and distributed in Sweden and the United States in such manner as may be deemed desirable and best calculated to promote the provisions of this act; provided the whole amount expended for this purpose shall not exceed the sum of one thousand dollars.

SECT. 4. It shall be the further duty of said commissioner to exercise a general care and oversight over all immigrants coming to Maine, to give them all needful information, to assist them in settling upon the public lands of the state, or obtaining employment within its borders, and to have the special charge of the colony of New Sweden, to the end that its development and prosperity may be promoted in every way consistent with law; and the compensation and entire expenses of said commissioner shall not exceed the sum of twenty-five hundred dollars.

SECT. 5. The first agent provided for in section second of this act shall reside in Gothenburg, Sweden; shall have charge of the printing and of the distribution throughout Sweden of all documents and information to be furnished him by the commissioner, shall use his best endeavors in every lawful way to encourage emigration to Maine, to protect the emigrants from fraud and imposition, and to enable them to embark from Sweden with proper guarantees for their safety and comfort on their passage, and with suitable information to the Swedish colony of our state; and the compensation of said agent shall not exceed the sum of five hundred dollars.

SECT. 6. The second agent provided for in section second of this act shall reside in New Sweden, shall have special charge of the state store-house, stores, tools and all other state property there, shall receive and disburse all state supplies and keep proper accounts and vouchers therefor; and the compensation of said agent shall not exceed the sum of two hundred dollars.

SECT. 9. The board aforesaid may cause all immigrants arriving under the provisions of this act to be settled on any of the public lands of the state not otherwise appropriated, and assign to each man over twenty-one years of age, by certificate from the land agent, a lot of one hundred acres of land; and the land agent shall, at the expiration of five years from the date of said assignment, grant each of the persons aforesaid or his heirs at law, a deed of warranty or other valid title of the lot assigned him; provided, each of said persons has established his residence on the lot assigned him, has built him a comfortable house thereon, and has cleared not less than fifteen acres of land within the time aforesaid, ten of which shall be laid down to grass; and all said persons shall be exempt from state taxation until January first, in the year of our Lord eighteen hundred and seventy-six.

SECT. 10. The governor is hereby authorized to draw his warrant upon the treasury for any of the sums specified in this act.

SECT. 11. All acts and parts of acts inconsistent with this act are hereby repealed, and this act shall take effect when approved, and shall continue in force one year from its approval.

EXTRACTS FROM THE TREATY OF WASHINGTON, BETWEEN THE UNITED STATES AND GREAT BRITAIN.

MAY 8, 1871.

Sources.

The treaty of Washington, May 8, 1871, not only arranged for a court of arbitration to settle the Alabama claims, but it also made provision for fisheries, navigation and commerce. Because strong protests had been presented by the citizens of Maine against the unequal working of the Reciprocity treaty of 1854, certain clauses of the treaty of 1871 were directly aimed at the regulation of evils developed by the working of earlier treaties. Although articles XVIII., — XXV., XXX., and XXXII. terminated July 1, 1885, in accordance with the provisions of the treaty, they are included because of their relation to important rights of fishing.

The treaty is in "Statutes at Large of the United States of America" (Boston, 1871), XVII., 863-877; and John H. Haswell, compiler, "Treaties and Conventions Concluded Between the United States of America and Other Powers Since July 4, 1776" (Washington, 1889), 478-493. Among other sources it is in Charles Samwer and Jules Hopf, editors, "Nouveau Recueil Général de Traités . . ." (Gottingue, 1875), XX., 698-719; it was also printed by Caleb Cushing, "The Treaty of Washington, Its Negotiation, Execution, and the Discussions Relating Thereto" (New York, 1873), Appendix, 257-274; and by the same in French, which was the language used by the tribunal, at Geneva, "La Traité de Washington, sa Négociation, sa Mise á Execution, et les Discussions auxquelles il a donné Lieu" (Rouse's Point, 1873; Paris, 1874), Appendix, 349-373.

Extracts from the treaty of Washington, with the proclamation by President Grant, are reprinted in this compilation from "Statutes at Large."

Text.

WHEREAS a treaty, between the United States of America and her Majesty the Queen of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, concerning the settlement of all causes of difference between the two countries, was concluded and signed at Washington by the high commissioners and plenipotentiaries of the respective governments on the eighth day of May last; which treaty is word for word as follows:—

[NOTE. Articles I. to XVII. inclusive arrange for a tribunal of arbitration to meet at Geneva in Switzerland; said decision to be final.]

ARTICLE XVIII.

It is agreed by the high contracting parties that, in addition to the liberty secured to the United States fishermen by the convention between the United States and Great Britain, signed at London on the 20th day of October, 1818, of taking, curing, and drying fish on certain coasts of the British North American Colonies therein defined, the inhabitants of the United States shall have, in common with the subjects of her Britannic Majesty, the liberty, for the term of years mentioned in Article XXXIII. of this treaty, to take fish of every kind, except shell-fish, on the sea coasts and shores, and in the bays, harbors, and creeks, of the provinces of Quebec, Nova Scotia, and New Brunswick, and the colony of Prince Edward's Island, and of the several islands thereunto adjacent, without being restricted to any distance from the shore, with permission to land upon the said coasts and shores and islands, and also upon the Magdalen Islands, for the purpose of drying their nets and curing their fish; provided that, in so doing, they do not interfere with the rights of private property, or with British fishermen, in the peaceable use of any part of the said coasts in their occupancy for the same purpose.

It is understood that the above-mentioned liberty applies solely to the sea fishery, and that the salmon and shad fisheries, and all other fisheries in rivers and the mouths of rivers, are hereby reserved exclusively for British fishermen.

ARTICLE XIX.

It is agreed by the high contracting parties that British subjects shall have, in common with the citizens of the United States, the liberty for the term of years mentioned in Article XXXIII. of this treaty, to take fish of every kind, except shell-fish, on the eastern sea-coasts and shores of the United States north of the thirty-ninth parallel of north latitude, and on the shores of the several islands thereunto adjacent, and in the bays, harbors, and creeks of the said sea-coasts and shores of the United States and of the said islands without being restricted to any distance from the shore, with permission to land upon the said coasts of the United States and of the islands aforesaid, for the purpose of drying their nets and curing their fish; provided that, in so doing, they do not interfere with the rights of private property, or with the fishermen of the United States in the peaceable use of any part of the said coasts in their occupancy for the same purpose.

It is understood that the above-mentioned liberty applies solely to the sea fishery, and that salmon and shad fisheries, and all fisheries in rivers and mouths of rivers, are hereby reserved exclusively for fishermen of the United States.

ARTICLE XX.

It is agreed that the places designated by the Commissioners appointed under the first article of the treaty between the United States and Great Britain, concluded at Washington on the 5th of June, 1854, upon the coasts of her Britannic Majesty's dominions and the United States, as places reserved from the common right of fishing under that treaty, shall be regarded as in like manner reserved from the common right of fishing under the preceding articles. In case any question should arise between the governments of the United States and of her Britannic Majesty as to the common right of fishing in places not thus designated as reserved, it is agreed that a commission shall be appointed to designate such places, and shall be constituted in the same manner, and have the same powers, duties, and authority as the commission appointed under the said first article of the treaty of the 5th of June, 1854.

ARTICLE XXI.

It is agreed that, for the term of years mentioned in Article XXXIII. of this treaty, fish oil and fish of all kinds (except fish of the inland lakes, and of the rivers falling into them, and except fish preserved in oil), being the produce of the fisheries of the United States, or of the Dominion of Canada, or of Prince Edward's Island, shall be admitted into each country, respectively free of duty.

ARTICLE XXII.

Inasmuch as it is asserted by the government of her Britannic Majesty that the privileges accorded to the citizens of the United States under Article XVIII. of this treaty are of greater value than those accorded by Articles XIX. and XXI. of this treaty to the subjects of her Britannic Majesty, and this assertion is not admitted by the government of the United States, it is further agreed that the commissioners shall be appointed to determine, having regard to the privileges accorded by the United States to the subjects of her Britannic Majesty, as stated in Articles XIX. and XXI. of this treaty, the amount of any compensation which, in their opinion, ought to be paid by the government of the United States to the government of her Britannic Majesty in return for the privileges accorded to the citizens of the United States under Article XVIII. of this treaty; and that any sum of money which the said commissioners may so award shall be paid by the United States government, in a gross sum, within twelve months after such award shall have been given.

ARTICLE XXIII.

The commissioners referred to in the preceding article shall be appointed in the following manner, that is to say: One commissioner shall be named by the President of the United States, one by her Britannic Majesty, and a third by the President of the United States and her Britannic Majesty conjointly; and in case the third commissioner shall not have been so named within a period of three months from the date when this article shall take effect, then the third commissioner shall be named by the representative at London of his Majesty the Emperor of Austria and King of Hungary. In case of the death, absence, or incapacity of any commissioner or in the event of any commissioner omitting or ceasing to act, the vacancy shall be filled in the manner hereinbefore provided for making the original appointment, the period of three months in case such substitution being calculated from the date of the happening of the vacancy.

The commissioners so named shall meet in the city of Halifax, in the province of Nova Scotia, at the earliest convenient period after they have been respectively named, and shall, before proceeding to any business, make and subscribe a solemn declaration that they will impartially and carefully examine and decide the matters referred to them to the best of their judgment, and according to justice and equity ; and such declaration shall be entered on the record of their proceedings.

Each of the high contracting parties shall also name one person to attend the commission as its agent, to represent it generally in all matters connected with the commission.

ARTICLE XXIV.

The proceedings shall be conducted in such order as the commissioners appointed under Articles XXII. and XXIII. of this treaty shall determine. They shall be bound to receive such oral or written testimony as either government may present. If either party shall offer oral testimony, the other party shall have the right of cross-examination, under such rules as the commissioners shall prescribe.

If in the case submitted to the commissioners either party shall have specified or alluded to any report or document in its own exclusive possession, without annexing a copy, such party shall be bound, if the other party thinks proper to apply for it, to furnish that party with a copy thereof; and either party may call upon the other, through the commissioners, to produce the originals or certified copies of any papers adduced as evidence, giving in each instance such reasonable notice as the commissioners may require.

The case on either side shall be closed within a period of six months from the date of the organization of the commission, and the commissioners shall be requested to give their award as soon as possible thereafter. The aforesaid period of six months may be extended for three months in case of a vacancy occurring among the commissioners under the circumstances contemplated in Article XXIII. of this treaty.

ARTICLE XXV.

The commissioners shall keep an accurate record and correct minutes or notes of all their proceedings, with the dates thereof, and may appoint and employ a secretary and any other necessary officer or officers to assist them in the transaction of the business to come before them.

Each of the high contracting parties shall pay its own commissioner and agent or counsel; all other expenses shall be defrayed by the two governments in equal moieties.

[Articles XXVI. to XXVIII. relate to rights of navigation.]

ARTICLE XXIX.

It is agreed, that, for the term of years mentioned in Article XXXIII. of this treaty, goods, wares, or merchandise arriving at the ports of New York, Boston, and Portland, and any other ports in the United States which have been or may, from time to time be specially designated by the President of the United States, and destined for her Britannic Majesty's possessions in North America, may be entered at the proper custom-house and conveyed in transit, without the payment of duties, through the territory of the United States, under such rules, regulations and conditions for the protection of the revenue as the government of the United States may from time to time prescribe: and under like rules, regulations and conditions, goods, wares, or merchandise may be conveyed in transit, without the payment of duties, from such possessions through the territory of the United States for export from the said ports of the United States.

It is further agreed that, for the like period, goods, wares, or merchandise arriving at any of the ports of her Britannic Majesty's possessions in North America, and destined for the United States, may be entered at the proper custom-house and conveyed in transit, without the payment of duties, through the said possessions, under such rules and regulations, and conditions for the protection of the revenue as the governments of the said possessions may from time to time prescribe; and, under like rules, regulations, and conditions, goods, wares, or merchandise may be conveyed in transit, without payment of duties, from the United States through the said possessions to other places in the United States, or for export from ports in the said possessions.

ARTICLE XXXI.

The government of her Britannic Majesty further engages to urge upon the parliament of the dominion of Canada and the legislature of New Brunswick, that no export duty, or other duty, shall be levied on lumber or timber of any kind cut on that portion of the American territory in the State of Maine watered by the river St. John and its tributaries, and floated down that river to the sea, when the same is shipped to the United States from the province of New Brunswick.
